CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Relative to the President's program of program cuts and tax increases.

Whereas on February 17, 1993, President Clinton outlined in a state of the Union speech a program for increased spending and deficit reduction including new programs, spending cuts and taxes;

Whereas the 1990 budget agreement provides that there will be no increased expenditures without matching offsets or additional revenues unless an emergency is declared;

Whereas it would be unwise to declare an emergency under existing circumstances;

Whereas it would be unwise to provide for additional expenditures in a piecemeal fashion without simultaneously providing for appropriate offsets in budget cuts and or additional revenues;

Whereas it would be unwise to take any piecemeal action which would add to the deficit; and

Whereas legislation to cut existing programs and to increase taxes would most likely be the most difficult part of any new legislative program: Now, therefore, be it

1       Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate
2 concurring), That it be the sense of the Congress that no
3 action should be taken on any legislative proposal on the 4 President's program unless it is a unified package contain-
5 ing offsets for any additional expenditures through cuts
6 in programs or increased taxes.
