1   SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

2           (a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

3                   (1) The United Nations Food and Agricultural 4           Organization reports, that in 2006, an estimated 5           850,000,000 people in the world, with 824,000,000 in 6           developing countries, were chronically hungry.

7                   (2) The largest concentrations of the chronically 8           hungry—an estimated 298,000,000 individuals—are 9           in South Asia, with most of those individuals con-
 10          centrated in India, where there are an estimated
 11          212,000,000 undernourished individuals, and in sub-
 12          Saharan Africa, where there are an estimated
 13          206,000,000 hungry people.

14                  (3) The number of food and humanitarian emer-
 15          gencies has doubled from an average of about 15 per 16          year in the 1980s to more than 30 per year since
 17          2000, due in large part to increasing conflicts, pov-

1 erty, and natural disasters around the world. Some 2 emergencies are exacerbated by multiple shocks, such 3 as civil wars, recurring droughts, and endemic dis-
4 ease, adding to their complexity and protracting the 5 crises for many years.

6 (4) The United Nations reports that progress is 7 being made toward reaching the Millennium Develop-
8 ment Goal of reducing the proportion of hungry peo-
9 ple in the world by half by 2015. In 1990, the propor-
10 tion of people in the developing countries living with 11 insufficient food was estimated to be 20 percent. By 12 2003, that percentage declined to 17 percent. How- 13 ever, from 1996 to 2006, the absolute number of hun-
14 gry people increased from 790,000,000 to 850,000,000.

15 (5) The number of hungry people in the most se-
16 riously affected regions of the world, namely South
17 Asia and sub-Saharan Africa, is increasing. In sub-
18 Saharan Africa, in 1990, there were an estimated 19 169,000,000 chronically-hungry people; in 2003, the 20 number of chronically-hungry people increased to 21 206,000,000.

22 (6) The major United States Government re-
23 sponse to reducing hunger in developing countries is 24 to provide United States agricultural commodities as 25 food assistance. In fiscal year 2006, the United States

1        provided 3,000,000 metric tons of food valued at more
2        than $2,000,000,000 to meet emergency food needs
3        and to support development projects in developing 4        countries.

5                (7) In 2006, the United States provided food as- 6        istance to 65 countries, more than half of which were 7        in sub-Saharan Africa. Approximately 8        $1,200,000,000, or 60 percent of such assistance, was 9        provided as emergency food assistance. The United 10        States Agency for International Development esti-
11        mates that 50,000,000 to 70,000,000 people benefit
12        from United States food assistance programs annu-
13        ally.

14                (8)(A) Food assistance contributed by the United 15        States Government has totaled more than 16        $73,000,000,000 since 1946. Over the last decade, the 17        United States has been the single largest donor of 18        international food assistance, with a large proportion
19        of the assistance provided through the United Nations
20        World Food Program and most of that assistance is 21        for emergencies.

22                (B) The United States contributed more than 23        52,000,000 tons of food assistance between 1996 and 24        2005, more than half of the nearly 100,000,000 tons
25        of food assistance delivered worldwide in this period.

1        In 2006, the United States contributed $1,125,000,000
2        or about 40 percent of total donor contributions to the 3        World Food Program in that year.

4            (9) Private voluntary organizations and co-
5        operatives are critical implementing partners in 6        United States food assistance programs. In addition
7        to assisting people whose lives and livelihoods are en-
8        dangered due to crises, such organizations and co-
9        operatives help communities that suffer from chronic
10       hunger, delivering technical assistance and training
11       and building local institutional capacity.

12           (10)(A) Although the Farm Security and Rural 13        Investment Act of 2002 (Public Law 107–171) called 14        for increased levels of non-emergency food assistance
15        in order to address chronic hunger needs and to have 16        lasting impacts on vulnerable communities, according 17        to the Government Accountability Office, by 2006,
18        non-emergency food assistance programs were reduced
19        to 42 percent of their 2001 levels.

20           (B) Implementing partner organizations report
21        that due to these reductions, such organizations have 22        been forced to close operations in countries that are 23        prone to emergencies and with populations that suffer
24        from chronic hunger. As a result of such reductions,

1 there is little opportunity to develop new programs
2 that address food insecurity in developing countries.

3 (11) Food assistance experts, advocates, and im-
4 plementers have argued that distributing food com-
5 modities alone will not reduce food insecurity. Food
6 assistance needs to be combined with other non-food
7 resources, such as assistance to promote agricultural 8 development, economic growth, and assistance to sup-
9 port education, water, and health programs, to ensure 10 that food assistance has an impact on chronically-
11 hungry people.

12 (12) Women play an essential role in promoting 13 food security and production throughout the world.
14 According to the United Nations Food and Agricul-
15 tural Organization, rural women are responsible for 16 half of the world's food production and produce be-
17 tween 60 and 80 percent of the food in most devel-
18 oping countries.

19 (b) PURPOSES.— The purposes of this Act are—

20 (1) to promote United States emergency and 21 non-emergency food and other assistance programs as 22 described in title I of this Act in an efficient and ef-
23 fective manner; and

1           (2) to promote United States agricultural export
2           programs as described in title II of this Act in an ef-
3           ficient and effective manner.

18          Global Crop Diversity Trust ensures significant bene-
19          fits to United States farmers.

20          (b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress
21          that the President should provide significant United States
