“(4) CONTINUATION OF ELIGIBILITY.—An individual who is a PACE program eligible individual may be deemed to continue to be such an individual notwithstanding a determination that the individual no longer meets the requirement of subsection (a)(5)(B) if, in accordance with regulations, in the absence of continued coverage under a PACE program the individual reasonably would be expected to meet such requirement within the succeeding 6-month period.

“(B) SERVICE AREA OVERLAP.—In designating a service area under a PACE program agreement under subparagraph (A)(i), the Secretary (in consultation with the State administering agency) may exclude from designation an area that is already covered under another PACE program agreement, in order to avoid unnecessary duplication of services and avoid impairing the financial and service viability of an existing program.

“(3) DATA COLLECTION.—

“(4) OVERSIGHT.—

“(A) ANNUAL, CLOSE OVERSIGHT DURING TRIAL PERIOD.—During the trial period (as defined in subsection (a)(9)) with respect to a PACE program operated by a PACE provider, the Secretary (in cooperation with the State administering agency) shall conduct a comprehensive annual review of the operation of the PACE program by the provider in order to assure compliance with the requirements of this section and regulations. “(i) Condition the continuation of the PACE program agreement upon timely execution of a corrective action plan.

“(ii) Withhold some or all further payments under the PACE program agreement under this section or section 1894 with respect to PACE program services furnished by such provider until the deficiencies have been corrected.

“(8) TIMELY CONSIDERATION OF APPLICATIONS FOR PACE PROGRAM PROVIDER STATUS.—In considering an application for PACE provider program status, the application shall be deemed approved unless the Secretary, within 90 days after the date of the submission of the application to the Secretary, either denies such request in writing or informs the applicant in writing with respect to any additional information that is needed in order to make a final determination with respect to the application. After the date the Secretary receives such additional information, the application shall be deemed approved unless the Secretary, within 90 days of such date, denies such request.

“(2) USE OF PACE PROTOCOL.—

“(B) FLEXIBILITY.—The Secretary (in close consultation with State administering agencies) may modify or waive such provisions of the PACE protocol in order to provide for reasonable flexibility in adapting the PACE service delivery model to the needs of particular organizations (such as those in rural areas or those that may determine it appropriate to use non-staff physicians accordingly to State licensing law requirements) under this section and section 1932 where such flexibility is not inconsistent with and would not impair the essential elements, objectives, and requirements of the this section, including—

“(i) the focus on frail elderly qualifying individuals who require the level of care provided in a nursing facility;

“(ii) the delivery of comprehensive, integrated acute and long-term care services;

“(iii) the interdisciplinary team approach to care management and service delivery;

“(B) CONSIDERATIONS.—In issuing such regulations, the Secretary shall—

“(3) ELIGIBILITY SCREENING; COORDINATION WITH OTHER HEALTH COVERAGE PROGRAMS.—The plan shall include a description of procedures to be used to ensure—

“(4) RESTRICTION ON APPLICATION OF PREEXISTING CONDITION EXCLUSIONS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), the State child health plan shall not permit the imposition of any preexisting condition exclusion for covered benefits under the plan.

“(B) GROUP HEALTH PLANS AND GROUP HEALTH INSURANCE COVERAGE.—If the State child health plan provides for benefits through payment for, or a contract with, a group health plan or group health insurance coverage, the plan may permit the imposition of a preexisting condition exclusion but only insofar as it is permitted under the applicable provisions of part 7 of subtitle B of title I of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 and title XXVII of the Public Health Service Act.

“(5) SPECIAL PROTECTION FOR CHILDREN WITH CHRONIC HEALTH CONDITIONS AND SPECIAL HEALTH CARE NEEDS.—In the case of a child who has a chronic condition, life-threatening condition, or combination of conditions that warrants medical specialty care and who is eligible for benefits under the plan with respect to such care, the State child health plan shall assure access to such care, including the use of a medical specialist as a primary care provider.

“(7) TREATMENT OF CASH PAYMENTS.—Payments in the form of cash or vouchers provided as child health or other assistance under the State child health plan to parents, guardians or other caretakers of a targeted low-income child are not considered income for purpose of eligibility for, or benefits provided under, any means-tested Federal or Federally-assisted program.

“(4) FLOOR FOR STATES.—Subject to paragraph (5), in no case shall the amount of the allotment under this subsection for one of the 50 States or the District of Columbia for a year be less than $2,000,000. To the extent that the application of the previous sentence results in an increase in the allotment to a State above the amount otherwise provided, the allotments for the other States and the District of Columbia under this subsection shall be decreased in a pro rata manner (but not below $2,000,000) so that the total of such allotments in a fiscal year does not exceed the amount otherwise provided for allotment under paragraph (1) for that fiscal year.

“(5) OFFSET FOR EXPENDITURES UNDER MEDICAID PRESUMPTIVE ELIGIBILITY.—The amount of the allotment otherwise provided to a State under this subsection for a fiscal year shall be reduced by the amount of the payments made to the State under section 1903(a) for calendar quarters during such fiscal year that are attributable to provision of medical assistance to

“(e) 3-YEAR AVAILABILITY OF AMOUNTS ALLOTTED.—Amounts allotted to a State pursuant to this section for a fiscal year shall remain available for expenditure by the State through the end of the second succeeding fiscal year.

“SEC. 2104. PAYMENTS TO STATES.

“(3) PURCHASE OF FAMILY COVERAGE.—The Secretary shall establish rules regarding the extent to which payment may be made under subsection (a)(1) for the purchase of family coverage under a group health plan or health insurance coverage that includes coverage of targeted low-income children. Under such rules such payment may be permitted, notwithstanding that a portion may be considered attributable to purchase of coverage for other family members, if the State demonstrates that purchase of such coverage is cost effective relative to the amounts that the State would have paid to obtain comparable coverage only of the targeted low-income children involved. “(ii) the organization (or an agent or other entity acting on the organization’s behalf) materially misrepresented the plan’s provisions in marketing the plan to the individual; or

“(2) PRIORITY.—If the Secretary determines that a MedicarePlus organization, in relation to a MedicarePlus plan it offers, has a capacity limit and the number of MedicarePlus eligible individuals who elect the plan under this section exceeds the capacity limit, the organization may limit the election of individuals of the plan under this section but only if priority in election is provided—

“(A) first to such individuals as have elected the plan at the time of the determination, and

“(B) then to other such individuals in such a manner that does not discriminate, on a basis described in section 1852(b), among the individuals (who seek to elect the plan).

The preceding sentence shall not apply if it would result in the enrollment of enrollees substantially nonrepresentative, as de-

“(3) LIMITATION ON TERMINATION OF ELECTION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), a MedicarePlus organization may not for any reason terminate the election of any individual under this section for a MedicarePlus plan it offers.

“(D) ORGANIZATION OBLIGATION WITH RESPECT TO ELECTION FORMS.—Pursuant to a contract under section 1857, each MedicarePlus organization receiving an election form under subsection (c)(2) shall transmit to the Secretary (at such time and in such manner as the Secretary may specify) a copy of such form or such other information respecting the election as the Secretary may specify.

“(2) REVIEW.—The standards established under section 1856 shall include guidelines for the review of all such material or form submitted and under such guidelines the Secretary shall disapprove (or later require the correction of) such material or form if the material or form is materially inaccurate or misleading or otherwise makes a material misrepresentation.

“(3) DEEMED APPROVAL (1-STOP SHOPPING).—In the case of material or form that is submitted under paragraph (1)(A) to the Secretary or a regional office of the Department of Health and Human Services and the Secretary or the office has not disapproved the distribution of marketing material or form under paragraph (1)(B) with respect to a MedicarePlus plan in an area, the Secretary is deemed not to have disapproved such distribution in all other areas covered by the plan and organization except to the extent that such material or form is specific only to an area involved.

“(4) PROHIBITION OF CERTAIN MARKETING PRACTICES.—Each MedicarePlus organization shall conform to fair marketing standards, in relation to MedicarePlus plans offered under this part, included in the standards established under section 1856. Such standards shall include a prohibition against a MedicarePlus organization (or agent of such an organization) completing any portion of any election form used to carry out elections under this section on behalf of any individual.

“(i) EFFECT OF ELECTION OF MEDICAREPLUS PLAN OPTION.—Subject to sections 1852(a)(5), 1857(f)(2), and 1857(g)—

“(1) payments under a contract with a MedicarePlus organization under section 1853(a) with respect to an individual electing a MedicarePlus plan offered by the organization shall be instead of the amounts which (in the absence of the contract) would otherwise be payable under parts A and B for items and services furnished to the individual, and

“(2) subject to subsections (e) and (f) of section 1853, only the MedicarePlus organization shall be entitled to receive payments from the Secretary under this title for services furnished to the individual.

“BENEFITS AND BENEFICIARY PROTECTIONS

“(2) SATISFACTION OF REQUIREMENT.—A MedicarePlus plan (other than an MSA plan) offered by a MedicarePlus organization satisfies paragraph (1)(A), with respect to benefits for items and services furnished other than through a provider that has a contract with the organization offering the plan, if the plan provides (in addition to any cost sharing provided for under the plan) for at least the total dollar amount of payment for such items and services as would otherwise be authorized under parts A and B (including any balance billing permitted under such parts).

“(3) SUPPLEMENTAL BENEFITS.—

“(A) BENEFITS INCLUDED SUBJECT TO SECRETARY’S APPROVAL.—Each MedicarePlus organization may provide to individuals enrolled under this part (without affording those individuals an option to decline the coverage) supplemental health care benefits that the Secretary may approve. The Secretary shall approve any such supplemental benefits unless the Secretary determines that including such supplemental benefits would substantially discourage enrollment by MedicarePlus eligible individuals with the organization.

“(B) AT ENROLLEES’ OPTION.—A MedicarePlus organization may provide to individuals enrolled under this part (other than under an MSA plan) supplemental health care benefits that the individuals may elect, at their option, to have covered.

“(4) ORGANIZATION AS SECONDARY PAYER.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a MedicarePlus organization may (in the case of the provision of items and services to an individual under a MedicarePlus plan under circumstances in which payment under this title is made secondary pursuant to section 1862(b)(2)) charge or authorize the provider of such services to charge, in accordance with the charges allowed under such a law, plan, or policy—

“(A) the insurance carrier, employer, or other entity which under such law, plan, or policy is to pay for the provision of such services, or

“(B) such individual to the extent that the individual has been paid under such law, plan, or policy for such services.

“(5) NATIONAL COVERAGE DETERMINATIONS.—If there is a national coverage determination made in the period beginning on the date of an announcement under section 1853(b) and ending on the date of the next announcement under such section and the Secretary projects that the determination will result in a significant change in the costs to a MedicarePlus organization of providing the benefits that are the subject of such national coverage determination and that such change in costs was not incorporated in the determination of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate under section 1853 included in the announcement made at the beginning of such period—

“(A) such determination shall not apply to contracts under this part until the first contract year that begins after the end of such period, and

“(B) if such coverage determination provides for coverage of additional benefits or coverage under additional circumstances, section 1851(i) shall not apply to payment for such additional benefits or benefits provided under such additional circumstances until the first contract year that begins after the end of such period, unless otherwise required by law.

“(b) ANTIDISCRIMINATION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—A MedicarePlus organization may not deny, limit, or condition the coverage or provision of benefits under this part, for individuals permitted to be enrolled with the organization under this part, based on any health status-related factor described in section 2702(a)(1) of the Public Health Service Act.

“(2) CONSTRUCTION.—Paragraph (1) shall not be construed as requiring a MedicarePlus organization to enroll individuals who are determined to have end-stage renal disease, except as provided under section 1851(a)(3)(B).

“(c) DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF PLAN PROVISIONS.—A MedicarePlus organization shall disclose, in clear, accurate, and standardized form to each enrollee with a MedicarePlus plan offered by the organization under this part at the time of enrollment and at least annually thereafter, the following information regarding such plan:

“(ii) serious impairment to bodily functions, or

“(iii) serious dysfunction of any bodily organ or part.

“(ii) as affecting the application of deductibles and coinsurance.

“(e) QUALITY ASSURANCE PROGRAM.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each MedicarePlus organization must have arrangements, consistent with any regulation, for an ongoing quality assurance program for health care services it provides to individuals enrolled with MedicarePlus plans of the organization.

“(K) include measures of consumer satisfaction; and “(L) provide the Secretary with such access to information collected as may be appropriate to monitor and ensure the quality of care provided under this part.

“(3) EXTERNAL REVIEW.—Each MedicarePlus organization shall, for each MedicarePlus plan it operates, have an agreement with an independent quality review and improvement organization approved by the Secretary to perform functions of the type described in sections 1154(a)(4)(B) and 1154(a)(14) with respect to services furnished by MedicarePlus plans for which payment is made under this title.

“(4) TREATMENT OF ACCREDITATION.—The Secretary shall provide that a MedicarePlus organization is deemed to meet requirements of paragraphs (1) through (3) of this subsection and subsection (h) (relating to confidentiality and accuracy of enrollee records) if the organization is accredited (and periodically reaccredited) by a private organization under a process that the Secretary has determined assures that the organization, as a condition of accreditation, applies and enforces standards with respect to the requirements involved that are no less stringent than the standards established under section 1856 to carry out the respective requirements.

“(g) GRIEVANCES AND APPEALS.—

“(1) GRIEVANCE MECHANISM.—Each MedicarePlus organization must provide meaningful procedures for hearing and resolving grievances between the organization (including any entity or individual through which the organization provides health care services) and enrollees with MedicarePlus plans of the organization under this part.

“(2) APPEALS.—An enrollee with a MedicarePlus plan of a MedicarePlus organization under this part who is dissatisfied by reason of the enrollee’s failure to receive any health service to which the enrollee believes the enrollee is entitled and at no greater charge than the enrollee believes the enrollee is required to pay is entitled, if the amount in controversy is $100 or more, to a hearing before the Secretary to the same extent as is provided in section 205(b), and in any such hearing the Secretary shall make the organization a party. If the amount in controversy is $1,000 or more, the individual or organization shall, upon notifying the other party, be entitled to judicial review of the Secretary’s final decision as provided in section 205(g), and both the individual and the organization shall be entitled to be parties to that judicial review. The organization shall also permit the acceptance of such requests by physicians.

“(B) ORGANIZATION PROCEDURES.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The MedicarePlus organization shall maintain procedures for expediting organization determinations and reconsiderations when, upon request of an enrollee, the organization determines that the application of normal time frames for making a determination (or a reconsideration involving a determination) could seriously jeopardize the life or health of the enrollee or the enrollee’s ability to regain maximum function.

“(ii) TIMELY RESPONSE.—In an urgent case described in clause (i), the organization shall notify the enrollee (and the physician involved, as appropriate) of the determination (or determination on the reconsideration) as expeditiously as the enrollee's health condition requires, but not later than 72 hours (or 24 hours in the case of a reconsideration) of the time of receipt of the request for the determination or reconsideration (or receipt of the information necessary to make the determination or reconsideration), or such longer period as the Secretary may permit in specified cases.

“(iii) SECRETARIAL REPORT.—The Secretary shall annually report publicly on the number and disposition of denials and appeals within each MedicarePlus organization, and those reviewed and resolved by the independent entities under this subsection.

such care or treatment are provided under the plan, if the professional is acting within the lawful scope of practice.

“(B) CONSCIENCE PROTECTION.—Subparagraph (A) shall not be construed as requiring a MedicarePlus plan to provide, reimburse for, or provide coverage of a counseling or referral service if the MedicarePlus organization offering the plan—

“(i) objects to the provision of such service on moral or religious grounds; and

“(ii) in the manner and through the written instrumentalities such MedicarePlus organization deems appropriate, makes available information on its policies regarding such service to prospective enrollees before or during enrollment and to enrollees within 90 days after the date that the organization or plan adopts a change in policy regarding such a counseling or referral service.

“(D) HEALTH CARE PROFESSIONAL DEFINED.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term ‘health care professional’ means a physician (as defined in section 1861(r)) or other health care professional if coverage for the professional’s services is provided under the MedicarePlus plan for the services of the professional. Such term includes a podiatrist, optometrist, chiropractor, psychologist, dentist, physician assistant, physical or occupational therapist and therapy assistant, speech-language pathologist, audiologist, registered or licensed practical nurse (including nurse practitioner, clinical nurse specialist, certified registered nurse anesthetist, and certified nurse-midwife), licensed certified social worker, registered respiratory therapist, and certified respiratory therapy technician.

“(4) LIMITATIONS ON HEALTH CARE PROVIDER INCENTIVE PLANS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—No MedicarePlus organization may operate any health care provider incentive plan (as defined in subparagraph (B)) unless the following requirements are met:

“(i) No specific payment is made directly or indirectly under the plan to a health care provider or health care provider group as an inducement to reduce or limit medically necessary services provided with respect to a specific individual enrolled with the organization.

“(ii) If the plan places a health care provider or health care provider group at substantial financial risk (as determined by the Secretary) for services not provided by the health care provider or health care provider group, the organization—

“(I) provides stop-loss protection for the health care provider or group that is adequate and appro-appropriate, based on standards developed by the Secretary that take into account the number of health care providers placed at such substantial financial risk in the group or under the plan and the number of individuals enrolled with the organization who receive services from the health care provider or group, and “(II) conducts periodic surveys of both individuals enrolled and individuals previously enrolled with the organization to determine the degree of access of such individuals to services provided by the organization and satisfaction with the quality of such services.

“(iii) The organization provides the Secretary with descriptive information regarding the plan, sufficient to permit the Secretary to determine whether the plan is in compliance with the requirements of this subparagraph.

“(B) HEALTH CARE PROVIDER INCENTIVE PLAN DEFINED.—In this paragraph, the term ‘health care provider incentive plan’ means any compensation arrangement between a MedicarePlus organization and a health care provider or health care provider group that may directly or indirectly have the effect of reducing or limiting services provided with respect to individuals enrolled with the organization under this part.

“(C) HEALTH CARE PROVIDER DEFINED.—For the purposes of this paragraph, the term ‘health care provider’ has the meaning given the term ‘health care professional’ in paragraph (3)(D).

“(5) LIMITATION ON PROVIDER INDEMNIFICATION.—A MedicarePlus organization may not provide (directly or indirectly) for a provider (or group of providers) to indemnify the organization against any liability resulting from a civil action brought for any damage caused to an enrollee with a MedicarePlus plan of the organization under this part by the organization’s denial of medically necessary care.

“(6) LIMITATION ON NON-COMPETE CLAUSE.—A MedicarePlus organization may not (directly or indirectly) seek to enforce any contractual provision which prevents a provider whose contractual obligations to the organization for the provision of services through the organization have ended from joining or forming any competing MedicarePlus organization that is a provider-sponsored organization in the same area.

“(k) TREATMENT OF SERVICES FURNISHED BY CERTAIN PROVIDERS.—A physician or other entity (other than a provider of services) that does not have a contract establishing payment amounts for services furnished to an individual enrolled under this part with a MedicarePlus organization shall accept as payment in full for covered services under this title that are furnished to such an individual the amounts that the physician or other entity could collect if the individual were not so enrolled. Any penalty or other provision of law that applies to such a payment with respect to an individual entitled to benefits under this title (but not enrolled with a MedicarePlus organization under this part) also applies with respect to an individual so enrolled.

“(l) DISCLOSURE OF USE OF DSH AND TEACHING HOSPITALS.—Each MedicarePlus organization shall provide the Secretary with information on—

“(1) the extent to which the organization provides inpatient and outpatient hospital benefits under this part—

“(A) through the use of hospitals that are eligible for additional payments under section 1886(d)(5)(F)(i) (relating to so-called DSH hospitals), or

“(B) through the use of teaching hospitals that receive payments under section 1886(h); and

“(2) the extent to which differences between payment rates to different hospitals reflect the disproportionate share percentage of low-income patients and the presence of medical residency training programs in those hospitals.

“(m) OUT-OF-NETWORK ACCESS.—If an organization offers to members enrolled under this section one plan which provides for coverage of services covered under parts A and B primarily through providers and other persons who are members of a network of providers and other persons who have entered into a contract with the organization to provide such services, nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing the organization from offering such members (at the time of enrollment) another plan which provides for coverage of such items which are not furnished through such network providers.

“(n) NON-PREEMPTION OF STATE LAW.—A State may establish or enforce requirements with respect to beneficiary protections in this section, but only if such requirements are more stringent than the requirements established under this section.

“(o) NONDISCRIMINATION IN SELECTION OF NETWORK HEALTH PROFESSIONALS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—A MedicarePlus organization offering a MedicarePlus plan offering network coverage shall not discriminate in selecting the members of its health professional network (or in establishing the terms and conditions for membership in such network) on the basis of the race, national origin, gender, age, or disability (other than a disability that impairs the ability of an individual to provide health care services or that may threaten the health of enrollees) of the health professional.

“(2) APPROPRIATE RANGE OF SERVICES.—A MedicarePlus organization shall not deny any health care professionals, based solely on the license or certification as applicable under State law, the ability to participate in providing covered health care services, or be reimbursed or indemnified by a network plan for providing such services under this part.

“(3) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection:

“(p) SPECIAL RULE FOR UNRESTRICTED FEE-FOR-SERVICE MSA PLANS.—Subsections (j)(1) and (k) shall not apply to a MedicarePlus organization with respect to an MSA plan it offers if the plan does not limit the providers through whom benefits may be obtained under the plan.

“PAYMENTS TO MEDICAREPLUS ORGANIZATIONS

“(1) MONTHLY PAYMENTS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Under a contract under section 1857 and subject to subsections (e) and (f), the Secretary shall make monthly payments under this section in advance to each MedicarePlus organization, with respect to coverage of an individual under this part in a MedicarePlus payment area for a month, in an amount equal to $\frac{1}{12}$ of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate (as calculated under subsection (c)) with respect to that individual for that area, adjusted for such risk factors as age, disability status, gender, institutional status, and such other factors as the Secretary determines to be appropriate, so as to ensure actuarial equivalence. The Secretary may add to, modify, or substitute for such factors, if such changes will improve the determination of actuarial equivalence.

“(B) SPECIAL RULE FOR END-STAGE RENAL DISEASE.—The Secretary shall establish separate rates of payment to a MedicarePlus organization with respect to classes of individuals determined to have end-stage renal disease and enrolled in a MedicarePlus plan of the organization. Such rates of payment shall be actuarially equivalent to rates paid to other enrollees in the MedicarePlus payment area (or such other area as specified by the Secretary). In accordance with regulations, the Secretary shall provide for the application of the seventh sentence of section 1881(b)(7) to payments under this section covering the provision of renal dialysis treatment in the same manner as such sentence applies to composite rate payments described in such sentence.

“(2) ADJUSTMENT TO REFLECT NUMBER OF ENROLLEES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The amount of payment under this subsection may be retroactively adjusted to take into account any difference between the actual number of individuals enrolled with an organization under this part and the number of such individuals estimated to be so enrolled in determining the amount of the advance payment.

“(B) SPECIAL RULE FOR CERTAIN ENROLLEES.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), the Secretary may make retroactive adjustments under subparagraph (A) to take into account individuals enrolled during the period beginning on the date on which the individual enrolls with a MedicarePlus organization under a plan operated, sponsored, or contributed to by the individual’s employer or former employer (or the employer or former employer of the individual’s spouse) and ending on the date on which the individual is enrolled in the organization under this part, except that for purposes of making such retroactive adjustments under this subparagraph, such period may not exceed 90 days.

“(ii) EXCEPTION.—No adjustment may be made under clause (i) with respect to any individual who does not certify that the organization provided the individual with the information required to be disclosed under section 1852(c) at the time the individual enrolled with the organization.

“(3) ESTABLISHMENT OF RISK ADJUSTMENT FACTORS.—

“(A) REPORT.—The Secretary shall develop, and submit to Congress by not later than October 1, 1999, a report on a method of risk adjustment of payment rates under this section that accounts for variations in per capita costs based on health status. Such report shall include an evaluation of such method by an outside, independent actuary of the actuarial soundness of the proposal.

“(B) DATA COLLECTION.—In order to carry out this paragraph, the Secretary shall require MedicarePlus organizations (and eligible organizations with risk-sharing contracts under section 1876) to submit, for periods beginning on or after January 1, 1998, data regarding inpatient hospital services and other services and other information the Secretary deems necessary.

“(b) ANNUAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF PAYMENT RATES.—

“(1) ANNUAL ANNOUNCEMENT.—The Secretary shall annually determine, and shall announce (in a manner intended to provide notice to interested parties) not later than August 1 before the calendar year concerned—

“(A) the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for each MedicarePlus payment area for the year, and

“(B) the risk and other factors to be used in adjusting such rates under subsection (a)(1)(A) for payments for months in that year.

“(2) ADVANCE NOTICE OF METHODOLOGICAL CHANGES.—At least 45 days before making the announcement under paragraph (1) for a year, the Secretary shall provide for notice to MedicarePlus organizations of proposed changes to be made in the methodology from the methodology and assumptions used in the previous announcement and shall provide such organizations an opportunity to comment on such proposed changes.

“(c) CALCULATION OF ANNUAL MEDICAREPLUS CAPITATION RATES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this part, each annual MedicarePlus capitation rate, for a MedicarePlus payment area for a contract year consisting of a calendar year, is equal to the largest of the amounts specified in the following subparagraphs (A), (B), or (C):

“(A) BLENDED CAPITATION RATE.—The sum of—

“(i) area-specific percentage for the year (as specified under paragraph (2) for the year) of the annual area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate for the year for the MedicarePlus payment area, as determined under paragraph (3), and

“(ii) national percentage (as specified under paragraph (2) for the year) of the input-price-adjusted annual national MedicarePlus capitation rate for the year, as determined under paragraph (4), multiplied by the payment adjustment factors described in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (5).

“(B) MINIMUM AMOUNT.—12 multiplied by the following amount:

“(i) For 1998, $350 (but not to exceed, in the case of an area outside the 50 States and the District of Columbia, 150 percent of the annual per capita rate of payment for 1997 determined under section 1876(a)(1)(C) for the area).

“(ii) For a succeeding year, the minimum amount specified in this clause (or clause (i)) for the preceding year increased by the national per capita MedicarePlus growth percentage, specified under paragraph (6) for that succeeding year.

“(C) MINIMUM PERCENTAGE INCREASE.—

“(i) For 1998, the annual per capita rate of payment for 1997 determined under section 1876(a)(1)(C) for the MedicarePlus payment area.

“(ii) For 1999 and 2000, 101 percent of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate under this paragraph for the area for the previous year.

“(iii) For a subsequent year, 102 percent of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate under this paragraph for the area for the previous year.

“(2) AREA-SPECIFIC AND NATIONAL PERCENTAGES.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(A)—

“(A) for 1998, the ‘area-specific percentage’ is 90 percent and the ‘national percentage’ is 10 percent,

“(B) for 1999, the ‘area-specific percentage’ is 85 percent and the ‘national percentage’ is 15 percent,

“(C) for 2000, the ‘area-specific percentage’ is 80 percent and the ‘national percentage’ is 20 percent,

“(D) for 2001, the ‘area-specific percentage’ is 75 percent and the ‘national percentage’ is 25 percent, and

“(3) ANNUAL AREA-SPECIFIC MEDICAREPLUS CAPITATION RATE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(A), subject to subparagraph (B), the annual area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate for a MedicarePlus payment area—

“(i) for 1998 is the annual per capita rate of payment for 1997 determined under section 1876(a)(1)(C) for the area, increased by the national per capita MedicarePlus growth percentage for 1998 (as defined in paragraph (6)); or “(ii) for a subsequent year is the annual area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate for the previous year determined under this paragraph for the area, increased by the national per capita MedicarePlus growth percentage for such subsequent year.

“(B) REMOVAL OF MEDICAL EDUCATION AND DISPROPORTIONATE SHARE HOSPITAL PAYMENTS FROM CALCULATION OF ADJUSTED AVERAGE PER CAPITA COST.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—In determining the area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate under subparagraph (A), for a year (beginning with 1998), the annual per capita rate of payment for 1997 determined under section 1876(a)(1)(C) shall be adjusted to exclude from the rate the applicable percent (specified in clause (ii)) of the payment adjustments described in subparagraph (C).

“(ii) APPLICABLE PERCENT.—For purposes of clause (i), the applicable percent for—

“(I) 1998 is 20 percent,

“(II) 1999 is 40 percent,

“(III) 2000 is 60 percent,

“(IV) 2001 is 80 percent, and

“(V) a succeeding year is 100 percent.

“(C) PAYMENT ADJUSTMENT.—The payment adjustments described in this subparagraph are payment adjustments which the Secretary estimates were payable during 1997—

“(i) under section 1886(d)(5)(F) for hospitals serving a disproportionate share of low-income patients, “(ii) for the indirect costs of medical education under section 1886(d)(5)(B), and “(iii) for direct graduate medical education costs under section 1886(h), multiplied by a ratio (estimated by the Secretary) of total payments under subsection (h) and section 1858 in 1998 to payments under such subsection and payments under such section in such year for hospitals not reimbursed under section 1814(b)(3).

“(4) INPUT-PRICE-ADJUSTED ANNUAL NATIONAL MEDICAREPLUS CAPITATION RATE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(A), the input-price-adjusted annual national MedicarePlus capitation rate for a MedicarePlus payment area for a year is equal to the sum, for all the types of medicare services (as classified by the Secretary), of the product (for each such type of service) of—

“(i) the national standardized annual MedicarePlus capitation rate (determined under subparagraph (B)) for the year,

“(ii) the proportion of such rate for the year which is attributable to such type of services, and

“(iii) an index that reflects (for that year and that type of services) the relative input price of such services in the area compared to the national average input price of such services.

In applying clause (iii), the Secretary shall, subject to subparagraph (C), apply those indices under this title that are used in applying (or updating) national payment rates for specific areas and localities.

“(B) NATIONAL STANDARDIZED ANNUAL MEDICAREPLUS CAPITATION RATE.—In subparagraph (A)(i), the ‘national standardized annual MedicarePlus capitation rate’ for a year is equal to—

“(i) the sum (for all MedicarePlus payment areas) of the product of—

“(II) the average number of medicare beneficiaries residing in that area in the year, multiplied by the average of the risk factor weights used to adjust payments under subsection (a)(1)(A) for such beneficiaries in such area; divided by

“(C) SPECIAL RULES FOR 1998.—In applying this paragraph for 1998—

“(i) medicare services shall be divided into 2 types of services: part A services and part B services;

“(ii) the proportions described in subparagraph (A)(ii)—

“(I) for part A services shall be the ratio (expressed as a percentage) of the national average annual per capita rate of payment for part A for

1997 to the total national average annual per capita rate of payment for parts A and B for 1997, and

“(II) for part B services shall be 100 percent minus the ratio described in subclause (I);

“(iii) for part A services, 70 percent of payments attributable to such services shall be adjusted by the index used under section 1886(d)(3)(E) to adjust payment rates for relative hospital wage levels for hospitals located in the payment area involved;

“(iv) for part B services—

“(I) 66 percent of payments attributable to such services shall be adjusted by the index of the geographic area factors under section 1848(e) used to adjust payment rates for physicians’ services furnished in the payment area, and

“(v) the index values shall be computed based only on the beneficiary population who are 65 years of age or older and who are not determined to have end stage renal disease.

“(5) PAYMENT ADJUSTMENT BUDGET NEUTRALITY FACTORS.—

For purposes of paragraph (1)(A)—

“(A) BLENDED RATE PAYMENT ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For each year, the Secretary shall compute a blended rate payment adjustment factor such that, not taking into account subparagraphs (B) and (C) of paragraph (1) and the application of the payment adjustment factor described in subparagraph (B) but taking into account paragraph (7), the aggregate of the payments that would be made under this part is equal to the aggregate payments that would have been made under this part (not taking into account such subparagraphs and such other adjustment factor) if the area-specific percentage under paragraph (1) for the year had been 100 percent and the national percentage had been 0 percent.

“(B) FLOOR-AND-MINIMUM-UPDATE PAYMENT ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For each year, the Secretary shall compute a floor-and-minimum-update payment adjustment factor so that, taking into account the application of the blended rate payment adjustment factor under subparagraph (A) and subparagraphs (B) and (C) of paragraph (1) and the application of the adjustment factor under this subparagraph, the aggregate of the payments under this part shall not exceed the aggregate payments that would have been made under this part if subparagraphs (B) and (C) of paragraph (1) did not apply and if the floor-and-minimum-update payment adjustment factor under this subparagraph was 1.

“(6) NATIONAL PER CAPITA MEDICAREPLUS GROWTH PERCENTAGE DEFINED.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—In this part, the ‘national per capita MedicarePlus growth percentage’ for a year is the percentage determined by the Secretary, by April 30th before the beginning of the year involved, to reflect the Secretary’s estimate of the projected per capita rate of growth in expenditures under this title for an individual entitled to benefits under part A and enrolled under part B, reduced by the number of percentage points specified in subparagraph (B) for the year. Separate determinations may be made for aged enrollees, disabled enrollees, and enrollees with end-stage renal disease. Such percentage shall include an adjustment for over or under projection in the growth percentage for previous years.

- “(i) for 1998, 0.5 percentage points,
- “(ii) for 1999, 0.5 percentage points,
- “(iii) for 2000, 0.5 percentage points,
- “(iv) for 2001, 0.5 percentage points,
- “(v) for 2002, 0.5 percentage points, and
- “(vi) for a year after 2002, 0 percentage points.

“(d) MEDICAREPLUS PAYMENT AREA DEFINED.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In this part, except as provided in paragraph (3), the term ‘MedicarePlus payment area’ means a county, or equivalent area specified by the Secretary.

“(3) GEOGRAPHIC ADJUSTMENT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Upon written request of the chief executive officer of a State for a contract year (beginning after 1998) made at least 7 months before the beginning of the year, the Secretary shall make a geographic adjustment to a MedicarePlus payment area in the State otherwise determined under paragraph (1)—

- “(i) to a single statewide MedicarePlus payment area,
- “(ii) to the metropolitan based system described in subparagraph (C), or
- “(iii) to consolidating into a single MedicarePlus payment area noncontiguous counties (or equivalent areas described in paragraph (1)) within a State.

Such adjustment shall be effective for payments for months beginning with January of the year following the year in which the request is received.

“(B) BUDGET NEUTRALITY ADJUSTMENT.—In the case of a State requesting an adjustment under this paragraph, the Secretary shall adjust the payment rates otherwise established under this section for MedicarePlus payment areas in the State in a manner so that the aggregate of the payments under this section in the State shall not exceed the aggregate payments that would have been made under this section for MedicarePlus payment areas in the State in the absence of the adjustment under this paragraph.

“(C) METROPOLITAN BASED SYSTEM.—The metropolitan based system described in this subparagraph is one in which—

“(i) all the portions of each metropolitan statistical area in the State or in the case of a consolidated metropolitan statistical area, all of the portions of each primary metropolitan statistical area within the consolidated area within the State, are treated as a single MedicarePlus payment area, and

“(ii) all areas in the State that do not fall within a metropolitan statistical area are treated as a single MedicarePlus payment area.

“(D) AREAS.—In subparagraph (C), the terms ‘metropolitan statistical area’, ‘consolidated metropolitan statistical area’, and ‘primary metropolitan statistical area’ mean any area designated as such by the Secretary of Commerce.

“(e) SPECIAL RULES FOR INDIVIDUALS ELECTING MSA PLANS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If the amount of the monthly premium for an MSA plan for a MedicarePlus payment area for a year is less than $\frac{1}{12}$ of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate applied under this section for the area and year involved, the Secretary shall deposit an amount equal to 100 percent of such difference in a MedicarePlus MSA established (and, if applicable, designated) by the individual under paragraph (2).

“(2) ESTABLISHMENT AND DESIGNATION OF MEDICAREPLUS MEDICAL SAVINGS ACCOUNT AS REQUIREMENT FOR PAYMENT OF CONTRIBUTION.—In the case of an individual who has elected coverage under an MSA plan, no payment shall be made under paragraph (1) on behalf of an individual for a month unless the individual—

“(A) has established before the beginning of the month (or by such other deadline as the Secretary may specify) a MedicarePlus MSA (as defined in section 138(b)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986), and

“(B) if the individual has established more than one such MedicarePlus MSA, has designated one of such accounts as the individual’s MedicarePlus MSA for purposes of this part.

Under rules under this section, such an individual may change the designation of such account under subparagraph (B) for purposes of this part.

“(3) LUMP SUM DEPOSIT OF MEDICAL SAVINGS ACCOUNT CONTRIBUTION.—In the case of an individual electing an MSA plan effective beginning with a month in a year, the amount of the contribution to the MedicarePlus MSA on behalf of the individual for that month and all successive months in the year shall be deposited during that first month. In the case of a termination of such an election as of a month before the end of a year, the Secretary shall provide for a procedure for the recovery of deposits attributable to the remaining months in the year.

“(f) PAYMENTS FROM TRUST FUND.—The payment to a MedicarePlus organization under this section for individuals enrolled under this part with the organization and payments to a MedicarePlus MSA under subsection (e)(1) shall be made from the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund in such proportion as the Secretary determines reflects the relative weight that benefits under part A and under part B represents of the actuarial value of the total benefits under this title. Monthly payments otherwise payable under this section for October 2001 shall be paid on the last business day of September 2001.

“(g) SPECIAL RULE FOR CERTAIN INPATIENT HOSPITAL STAYS.—In the case of an individual who is receiving inpatient hospital services from a subsection (d) hospital (as defined in section 1886(d)(1)(B)) as of the effective date of the individual’s—

“(1) election under this part of a MedicarePlus plan offered by a MedicarePlus organization—

“(A) payment for such services until the date of the individual’s discharge shall be made under this title through the MedicarePlus plan or the medicare fee-for-service program option described in section 1851(a)(1)(A) (as the case may be) elected before the election with such organization,

“(B) the elected organization shall not be financially responsible for payment for such services until the date after the date of the individual’s discharge, and

“(C) the organization shall nonetheless be paid the full amount otherwise payable to the organization under this part; or

“(2) termination of election with respect to a MedicarePlus organization under this part—

“(A) the organization shall be financially responsible for payment for such services after such date and until the date of the individual’s discharge,

“(C) the terminated organization shall not receive any payment with respect to the individual under this part during the period the individual is not enrolled.

“SEC. 1854. (a) SUBMISSION AND CHARGING OF PREMIUMS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (3), each MedicarePlus organization shall file with the Secretary each year, in a form and manner and at a time specified by the Secretary—

“(A) the amount of the monthly premium for coverage for services under section 1852(a) under each MedicarePlus plan it offers under this part in each MedicarePlus payment area (as defined in section 1853(d)) in which the plan is being offered; and

“(2) TERMINOLOGY.—In this part—

“(A) the term ‘monthly premium’ means, with respect to a MedicarePlus plan offered by a MedicarePlus organization, the monthly premium filed under paragraph (1), not taking into account the amount of any payment made toward the premium under section 1853; and

“(B) the term ‘net monthly premium’ means, with respect to such a plan and an individual enrolled with the plan, the premium (as defined in subparagraph (A)) for the plan reduced by the amount of payment made toward such premium under section 1853.

“(b) MONTHLY PREMIUM CHARGED.—The monthly amount of the premium charged by a MedicarePlus organization for a MedicarePlus plan offered in a MedicarePlus payment area to an individual under this part shall be equal to the net monthly premium plus any monthly premium charged in accordance with subsection (e)(2) for supplemental benefits.

“(c) UNIFORM PREMIUM.—The monthly premium and monthly amount charged under subsection (b) of a MedicarePlus organization under this part may not vary among individuals who reside in the same MedicarePlus payment area.

“(d) TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF IMPOSING PREMIUMS.—Each MedicarePlus organization shall permit the payment of net monthly premiums on a monthly basis and may terminate election of individuals for a MedicarePlus plan for failure to make premium payments only in accordance with section 1851(g)(3)(B)(i). A MedicarePlus organization is not authorized to provide for cash or other monetary rebates as an inducement for enrollment or otherwise.

“(e) LIMITATION ON ENROLLEE COST-SHARING.—

“(1) FOR BASIC AND ADDITIONAL BENEFITS.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), in no event may—

“(A) the net monthly premium (multiplied by 12) and the actuarial value of the deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments applicable on average to individuals enrolled under this part with a MedicarePlus plan of an organization with respect to required benefits described in section 1852(a)(1) and additional benefits (if any) required under subsection (f)(1) for a year, exceed

“(B) the actuarial value of the deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments that would be applicable on average to individuals entitled to benefits under part A and enrolled under part B if they were not members of a MedicarePlus organization for the year.

“(2) FOR SUPPLEMENTAL BENEFITS.—If the MedicarePlus organization provides to its members enrolled under this part supplemental benefits described in section 1852(a)(3), the sum of the monthly premium rate (multiplied by 12) charged for such supplemental benefits and the actuarial value of its deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments charged with respect to such benefits may not exceed the adjusted community rate for such benefits (as defined in subsection (f)(4)).

“(3) EXCEPTION FOR MSA PLANS.—Paragraphs (1) and (2) do not apply to an MSA plan.

“(4) DETERMINATION ON OTHER BASIS.—If the Secretary determines that adequate data are not available to determine the actuarial value under paragraph (1)(A) or (2), the Secretary may determine such amount with respect to all individuals in the MedicarePlus payment area, the State, or in the United States, eligible to enroll in the MedicarePlus plan involved under this part or on the basis of other appropriate data.

“(1) REQUIREMENT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Each MedicarePlus organization (in relation to a MedicarePlus plan it offers) shall provide that if there is an excess amount (as defined in subparagraph (B)) for the plan for a contract year, subject to the succeeding provisions of this subsection, the organization shall provide to individuals such additional benefits (as the organization may specify) in a value which is at least equal to the adjusted excess amount (as defined in subparagraph (C)).

“(D) NO APPLICATION TO MSA PLANS.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to an MSA plan.

“(E) UNIFORM APPLICATION.—This paragraph shall be applied uniformly for all enrollees for a plan in a MedicarePlus payment area.

“(F) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as preventing a MedicarePlus organization from providing health care benefits that are in addition to the benefits otherwise required to be provided under this paragraph and from imposing a premium for such additional benefits.

“(2) STABILIZATION FUND.—A MedicarePlus organization may provide that a part of the value of an excess amount described in paragraph (1) be withheld and reserved in the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and in the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund (in such proportions as the Secretary determines to be appropriate) by the Secretary for subsequent annual contract periods, to the extent required to stabilize and prevent undue fluctuations in the additional benefits offered in those subsequent periods by the organization in accordance with such paragraph. Any of such value of the amount reserved which is not provided as additional benefits described in paragraph (1)(A) to individuals electing the MedicarePlus plan of the organization in accordance with such paragraph prior to the end of such periods, shall revert for the use of such trust funds.

“(3) DETERMINATION BASED ON INSUFFICIENT DATA.—For purposes of this subsection, if the Secretary finds that there is insufficient enrollment experience (including no enrollment experience in the case of a provider-sponsored organization) to determine an average of the capitation payments to be made under this part at the beginning of a contract period, the Secretary may determine such an average based on the enrollment experience of other contracts entered into under this part.

“(4) ADJUSTED COMMUNITY RATE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this subsection, subject to subparagraph (B), the term ‘adjusted community rate’ for a service or services means, at the election of a MedicarePlus organization, either—

“(i) the rate of payment for that service or services which the Secretary annually determines would apply to an individual electing a MedicarePlus plan under this part if the rate of payment were determined under a ‘community rating system’ (as defined in section 1302(8) of the Public Health Service Act, other than subparagraph (C)), or

“(ii) such portion of the weighted aggregate premium, which the Secretary annually estimates would apply to such an individual, as the Secretary annually estimates is attributable to that service or services,

but adjusted for differences between the utilization characteristics of the individuals electing coverage under this part and the utilization characteristics of the other enrollees with the plan (or, if the Secretary finds that adequate data are not available to adjust for those differences, the differences between the utilization characteristics of individuals selecting other MedicarePlus coverage, or MedicarePlus eligible individuals in the area, in the State, or in the United States, eligible to elect MedicarePlus coverage under this part and the utilization characteristics of the rest of the population in the area, in the State, or in the United States, respectively).

“(B) SPECIAL RULE FOR PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATIONS.—In the case of a MedicarePlus organization that is a provider-sponsored organization, the adjusted community rate under subparagraph (A) for a MedicarePlus plan of the organization may be computed (in a manner specified by the Secretary) using data in the general commercial marketplace or (during a transition period) based on the costs incurred by the organization in providing such a plan.

“(g) PERIODIC AUDITING.—The Secretary shall provide for the annual auditing of the financial records (including data relating to medicare utilization, costs, and computation of the adjusted community rate) of at least one-third of the MedicarePlus organizations offering MedicarePlus plans under this part. The Comptroller General shall monitor auditing activities conducted under this subsection.

“(h) PROHIBITION OF STATE IMPOSITION OF PREMIUM TAXES.—No State may impose a premium tax or similar tax with respect to premiums on MedicarePlus plans or the offering of such plans.

“SEC. 1855. (a) ORGANIZED AND LICENSED UNDER STATE LAW.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), a MedicarePlus organization shall be organized and licensed under State law as a risk-bearing entity eligible to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage in each State in which it offers a MedicarePlus plan.

“(2) SPECIAL EXCEPTION FOR PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATIONS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a provider-sponsored organization that seeks to offer a MedicarePlus plan in a State, the Secretary shall waive the requirement of paragraph (1) that the organization be licensed in that State if—

“(i) the organization files an application for such waiver with the Secretary, and

“(ii) the Secretary determines, based on the application and other evidence presented to the Secretary, that any of the grounds for approval of the application described in subparagraph (B), (C), or (D) has been met.

“(B) FAILURE TO ACT ON LICENSURE APPLICATION ON A TIMELY BASIS.—A ground for approval of such a waiver application is that the State has failed to complete action on a licensing application of the organization within 90 days of the date of the State’s receipt of the application. No period before the date of the enactment of this section shall be included in determining such 90-day period.

“(C) DENIAL OF APPLICATION BASED ON DISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT.—A ground for approval of such a waiver application is that the State has denied such a licensing application and—

“(i) the State has imposed documentation or information requirements not related to solvency requirements that are not generally applicable to other entities engaged in substantially similar business, or

“(ii) the standards or review process imposed by the State as a condition of approval of the license imposes any material requirements, procedures, or standards (other than requirements and standards relating to solvency) to such organizations that are not generally applicable to other entities engaged in substantially similar business.

“(D) DENIAL OF APPLICATION BASED ON APPLICATION OF SOLVENCY REQUIREMENTS.—A ground for approval of such a waiver application is that the State has denied such a licensing application based (in whole or in part) on the organization’s failure to meet applicable solvency requirements and—

“(i) such requirements are not the same as the solvency standards established under section 1856(a); or

“(ii) the State has imposed as a condition of approval of the license any documentation or information requirements relating to solvency or other material requirements, procedures, or standards relating to solvency that are different from the requirements, procedures, and standards applied by the Secretary under subsection (d)(2).

For purposes of this subparagraph, the term ‘solvency requirements’ means requirements relating to solvency and other matters covered under the standards established under section 1856(a).

“(E) TREATMENT OF WAIVER.—Subject to section 1852(m), in the case of a waiver granted under this paragraph for a provider-sponsored organization—

“(i) the waiver shall be effective for a 36-month period, except it may be renewed based on a subsequent application filed during the last 6 months of such period,

“(ii) the waiver is conditioned upon the pendency of the licensure application during the period the waiver is in effect, and

“(iii) any provisions of State law which relate to the licensing of the organization and which prohibit the organization from providing coverage pursuant to a contract under this part shall be superseded.

Nothing in this subparagraph shall be construed as limiting the number of times such a waiver may be renewed. Nothing in clause (iii) shall be construed as waiving any provision of State law which relates to quality of care or consumer protection (and does not relate to solvency standards) and which is imposed on a uniform basis and is generally applicable to other entities engaged in substantially similar business.

“(F) PROMPT ACTION ON APPLICATION.—The Secretary shall grant or deny such a waiver application within 60 days after the date the Secretary determines that a substantially complete application has been filed. Nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing an organization which has had such a waiver application denied from submitting a subsequent waiver application.

“(3) EXCEPTION IF REQUIRED TO OFFER MORE THAN MEDICAREPLUS PLANS.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to a MedicarePlus organization in a State if the State requires the organization, as a condition of licensure, to offer any product or plan other than a MedicarePlus plan.

“(4) LICENSURE DOES NOT SUBSTITUTE FOR OR CONSTITUTE CERTIFICATION.—The fact that an organization is licensed in accordance with paragraph (1) does not deem the organization to meet other requirements imposed under this part.

“(b) PREPAID PAYMENT.—A MedicarePlus organization shall be compensated (except for premiums, deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments) for the provision of health care services to enrolled members under the contract under this part by a payment which is paid on a periodic basis without regard to the date the health care services are provided and which is fixed without regard to the frequency, extent, or kind of health care service actually provided to a member.

“(c) ASSUMPTION OF FULL FINANCIAL RISK.—The MedicarePlus organization shall assume full financial risk on a prospective basis for the provision of the health care services (except, at the election of the organization, hospice care) for which benefits are required to be provided under section 1852(a)(1), except that the organization—

“(1) may obtain insurance or make other arrangements for the cost of providing to any enrolled member such services the aggregate value of which exceeds $5,000 in any year,

“(2) may obtain insurance or make other arrangements for the cost of such services provided to its enrolled members other than through the organization because medical necessity required their provision before they could be secured through the organization,

“(3) may obtain insurance or make other arrangements for not more than 90 percent of the amount by which its costs for any of its fiscal years exceed 115 percent of its income for such fiscal year, and

“(4) may make arrangements with physicians or other health professionals, health care institutions, or any combination of such individuals or institutions to assume all or part of the financial risk on a prospective basis for the provision of basic health services by the physicians or other health professionals or through the institutions.

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each MedicarePlus organization that is a provider-sponsored organization, that is not licensed by a State under subsection (a), and for which a waiver application has been approved under subsection (a)(2), shall meet standards established under section 1856(a) relating to the financial solvency and capital adequacy of the organization.

“(2) CERTIFICATION PROCESS FOR SOLVENCY STANDARDS FOR PSOS.—The Secretary shall establish a process for the receipt and approval of applications of a provider-sponsored organization described in paragraph (1) for certification (and periodic recertification) of the organization as meeting such solvency standards. Under such process, the Secretary shall act upon such an application not later than 60 days after the date the application has been received.

“(e) PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATION DEFINED.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In this part, the term ‘provider-sponsored organization’ means a public or private entity—

“(A) that is established or organized by a health care provider, or group of affiliated health care providers,

“(B) that provides a substantial proportion (as defined by the Secretary in accordance with paragraph (2)) of the health care items and services under the contract under this part directly through the provider or affiliated group of providers, and

“(C) with respect to which those affiliated providers that share, directly or indirectly, substantial financial risk with respect to the provision of such items and services have at least a majority financial interest in the entity.

“(2) SUBSTANTIAL PROPORTION.—In defining what is a ‘substantial proportion’ for purposes of paragraph (1)(B), the Secretary—

“(A) shall take into account (i) the need for such an organization to assume responsibility for a substantial proportion of services in order to assure financial stability and (ii) the practical difficulties in such an organization integrating a very wide range of service providers; and

“(B) may vary such proportion based upon relevant differences among organizations, such as their location in an urban or rural area.

“(3) AFFILIATION.—For purposes of this subsection, a provider is ‘affiliated’ with another provider if, through contract, ownership, or otherwise—

“(A) one provider, directly or indirectly, controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with the other,

“(B) both providers are part of a controlled group of corporations under section 1563 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, or

“(C) both providers are part of an affiliated service group under section 414 of such Code.

“(4) CONTROL.—For purposes of paragraph (3), control is presumed to exist if one party, directly or indirectly, owns, controls, or holds the power to vote, or proxies for, not less than 51 percent of the voting rights or governance rights of another.

“(5) HEALTH CARE PROVIDER DEFINED.—In this subsection, the term ‘health care provider’ means—

“(A) any individual who is engaged in the delivery of health care services in a State and who is required by State law or regulation to be licensed or certified by the State to engage in the delivery of such services in the State, and

“(B) any entity that is engaged in the delivery of health care services in a State and that, if it is required by State law or regulation to be licensed or certified by the State to engage in the delivery of such services in the State, is so licensed.

“(6) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall issue regulations to carry out this subsection.

“ESTABLISHMENT OF STANDARDS

“(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish, on an expedited basis and using a negotiated rulemaking process under subchapter III of chapter 5 of title 5, United States Code, standards described in section 1855(d)(1) (relating to the financial solvency and capital adequacy of the organization) that entities must meet to qualify as provider-sponsored organizations under this part.

“(B) FACTORS TO CONSIDER FOR SOLVENCY STANDARDS.—In establishing solvency standards under subparagraph (A) for provider-sponsored organizations, the Secretary shall consult with interested parties and shall take into account—

“(i) the delivery system assets of such an organization and ability of such an organization to provide services directly to enrollees through affiliated providers, and

“(ii) alternative means of protecting against insolvency, including reinsurance, unrestricted surplus, letters of credit, guarantees, organizational insurance coverage, partnerships with other licensed entities, and valuation attributable to the ability of such an organization to meet its service obligations through direct delivery of care.

“(C) ENROLLEE PROTECTION AGAINST INSOLVENCY.—Such standards shall include provisions to prevent enrollees from being held liable to any person or entity for the MedicarePlus organization’s debts in the event of the organization’s insolvency.

“(2) PUBLICATION OF NOTICE.—In carrying out the rulemaking process under this subsection, the Secretary, after consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, the American Academy of Actuaries, organizations representative of medicare beneficiaries, and other interested parties, shall publish the notice provided for under section 564(a) of title 5, United States Code, by not later than 45 days after the date of the enactment of this section.

“(3) TARGET DATE FOR PUBLICATION OF RULE.—As part of the notice under paragraph (2), and for purposes of this subsection, the ‘target date for publication’ (referred to in section 564(a)(5) of such title) shall be April 1, 1998.

“(4) ABBREVIATED PERIOD FOR SUBMISSION OF COMMENTS.—In applying section 564(c) of such title under this subsection, ‘15 days’ shall be substituted for ‘30 days’.

“(5) APPOINTMENT OF NEGOTIATED RULEMAKING COMMITTEE AND FACILITATOR.—The Secretary shall provide for—

“(A) the appointment of a negotiated rulemaking committee under section 565(a) of such title by not later than 30 days after the end of the comment period provided for under section 564(c) of such title (as shortened under paragraph (4)), and

“(B) the nomination of a facilitator under section 566(c) of such title by not later than 10 days after the date of appointment of the committee.

“(6) PRELIMINARY COMMITTEE REPORT.—The negotiated rulemaking committee appointed under paragraph (5) shall report to the Secretary, by not later than January 1, 1998, regarding the committee’s progress on achieving a consensus with regard to the rulemaking proceeding and whether such consensus is likely to occur before one month before the target date for publication of the rule. If the committee reports that the committee has failed to make significant progress towards such consensus or is unlikely to reach such consensus by the target date, the Secretary may terminate such process and provide for the publication of a rule under this subsection through such other methods as the Secretary may provide.

“(7) FINAL COMMITTEE REPORT.—If the committee is not terminated under paragraph (6), the rulemaking committee shall submit a report containing a proposed rule by not later than one month before the target date of publication.

“(8) INTERIM, FINAL EFFECT.—The Secretary shall publish a rule under this subsection in the Federal Register by not later than the target date of publication. Such rule shall be effective and final immediately on an interim basis, but is subject to change and revision after public notice and opportunity for a period (of not less than 60 days) for public comment. In connection with such rule, the Secretary shall specify the process for the timely review and approval of applications of entities to be certified as provider-sponsored organizations pursuant to such rules and consistent with this subsection.

“(9) PUBLICATION OF RULE AFTER PUBLIC COMMENT.—The Secretary shall provide for consideration of such comments and republication of such rule by not later than 1 year after the target date of publication.

“(b) ESTABLISHMENT OF OTHER STANDARDS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish by regulation other standards (not described in subsection (a)) for MedicarePlus organizations and plans consistent with, and to carry out, this part.

“(2) USE OF CURRENT STANDARDS.—Consistent with the requirements of this part, standards established under this subsection shall be based on standards established under section 1876 to carry out analogous provisions of such section. The Secretary shall also consider State model and other standards relating to consumer protection and assuring quality of care.

“(3) USE OF INTERIM STANDARDS.—For the period in which this part is in effect and standards are being developed and established under the preceding provisions of this subsection, the Secretary shall provide by not later than June 1, 1998, for the application of such interim standards (without regard to any requirements for notice and public comment) as may be appropriate to provide for the expedited implementation of this part. Such interim standards shall not apply after the date standards are established under the preceding provisions of this subsection.

“(4) APPLICATION OF NEW STANDARDS TO ENTITIES WITH A CONTRACT.—In the case of a MedicarePlus organization with a contract in effect under this part at the time standards applicable to the organization under this section are changed, the organization may elect not to have such changes apply to the organization until the end of the current contract year (or, if there is less than 6 months remaining in the contract year, until 1 year after the end of the current contract year).

“(5) RELATION TO STATE LAWS.—Subject to section 1852(m), the standards established under this subsection shall supersede any State law or regulation with respect to MedicarePlus plans which are offered by MedicarePlus organizations under this part to the extent such law or regulation is inconsistent with such standards. The previous sentence shall not be construed as superseding a State law or regulation that is not related to solvency, that is applied on a uniform basis and is generally applicable to other entities engaged in substantially similar business, and that provides consumer protections in addition to, or more stringent than, those provided under the standards under this subsection.

“CONTRACTS WITH MEDICAREPLUS ORGANIZATIONS

“SEC. 1857. (a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall not permit the election under section 1851 of a MedicarePlus plan offered by a MedicarePlus organization under this part, and no payment shall be made under section 1853 to an organization, unless the Secretary has entered into a contract under this section with the organization with respect to the offering of such plan. Such a contract with an organization may cover more than one MedicarePlus plan. Such contract shall provide that the organization agrees to comply with the applicable requirements and standards of this part and the terms and conditions of payment as provided for in this part.

“(b) MINIMUM ENROLLMENT REQUIREMENTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), the Secretary may not enter into a contract under this section with a MedicarePlus organization unless the organization has at least 5,000 individuals (or 1,500 individuals in the case of an organization that is a provider-sponsored organization) who are receiving health benefits through the organization, except that the standards under section 1856 may permit the organization to have a lesser number of beneficiaries (but not less than 500 in the case of an organization that is a provider-sponsored organization) if the organization primarily serves individuals residing outside of urbanized areas.

“(2) EXCEPTION FOR MSA PLAN.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply with respect to a contract that relates only to an MSA plan.

“(3) ALLOWING TRANSITION.—The Secretary may waive the requirement of paragraph (1) during the first 3 contract years with respect to an organization.

“(c) CONTRACT PERIOD AND EFFECTIVENESS.—

SEC. 4413. PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT SYSTEM FOR HOSPITAL OUTPATIENT DEPARTMENT SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1833 (42 U.S.C. 1395l) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(t) PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT SYSTEM FOR HOSPITAL OUTPATIENT DEPARTMENT SERVICES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—With respect to hospital outpatient services designated by the Secretary (in this section referred to as ‘covered OPD services’) and furnished during a year beginning with 1999, the amount of payment under this part shall be determined under a prospective payment system established by the Secretary in accordance with this subsection.

“(2) SYSTEM REQUIREMENTS.—Under the payment system—

“(A) the Secretary shall develop a classification system for covered OPD services;

“(B) the Secretary may establish groups of covered OPD services, within the classification system described in subparagraph (A), so that services classified within each group are comparable clinically and with respect to the use of resources;

“(C) the Secretary shall, using data on claims from 1996 and using data from the most recent available cost reports, establish relative payment weights for covered OPD services (and any groups of such services described in subparagraph (B)) based on median hospital costs and shall determine projections of the frequency of utilization of each such service (or group of services) in 1999;

“(D) the Secretary shall determine a wage adjustment factor to adjust the portion of payment and coinsurance attributable to labor-related costs for relative differences in labor and labor-related costs across geographic regions in a budget neutral manner;

“(E) the Secretary shall establish other adjustments, in a budget neutral manner, as determined to be necessary to ensure equitable payments, such as outlier adjustments, adjustments to account for variations in coinsurance payments for procedures with similar resource costs, or adjustments for certain classes of hospitals; and

“(F) the Secretary shall develop a method for controlling unnecessary increases in the volume of covered OPD services.

“(3) CALCULATION OF BASE AMOUNTS.—

“(B) UNADJUSTED COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this subsection, subject to clause (ii), the ‘unadjusted copayment amount’ applicable to a covered OPD service (or group of such services) is 20 percent of national median of the charges for the service (or services within the group) furnished during 1996, updated to 1999 using the Secretary’s estimate of charge growth during the period.

“(ii) ADJUSTED TO BE 20 PERCENT WHEN FULLY PHASED IN.—If the pre-deductible payment percentage for a covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in a year would be equal to or exceed 80 percent, then the unadjusted copayment amount shall be 25 percent of amount determined under subparagraph (D)(i).

“(C) CALCULATION OF CONVERSION FACTORS.—

“(I) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish a 1999 conversion factor for determining the medicare pre-deductible OPD fee payment amounts for each covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in 1999. Such conversion factor shall be established on the basis of the weights and frequencies described in paragraph (2)(C) and in a manner such that the sum for all services and groups of the products (described in subclause (II) for each such service or group) equals the total projected amount described in subparagraph (A).

“(II) PRODUCT DESCRIBED.—The product described in this subclause, for a service or group, is the product of the medicare pre-deductible OPD fee payment amounts (taking into account appropriate adjustments described in paragraphs (2)(D) and (2)(E)) and the frequencies for such service or group.

“(ii) SUBSEQUENT YEARS.—Subject to paragraph (8)(B), the Secretary shall establish a conversion factor for covered OPD services furnished in subsequent years in an amount equal to the conversion factor established under this subparagraph and applicable to such services furnished in the previous year increased by the OPD payment increase factor specified under clause (iii) for the year involved.

“(iii) OPD PAYMENT INCREASE FACTOR.—For purposes of this subparagraph, the ‘OPD payment increase factor’ for services furnished in a year is equal to the sum of—

“(I) market basket percentage increase (applicable under section 1886(b)(3)(B)(iii)) to hospital discharges occurring during the fiscal year ending in such year, and

“(II) in the case of a covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in a year in which the pre-deductible payment percentage would not exceed 80 percent, 3.5 percentage points, but in no case greater than such number of percentage points as will result in the pre-deductible payment percentage exceeding 80 percent.

In applying the previous sentence for years beginning with 2000, the Secretary may substitute for the market basket percentage increase under subclause (I) an annual percentage increase that is computed and applied with respect to covered OPD services furnished in a year in the same manner as the market basket percentage increase is determined and applied to inpatient hospital services for discharges occurring in a fiscal year.

(or group of such services) furnished in a year is equal to the ratio of—

“(i) the conversion factor established under subparagraph (C) for the year, multiplied by the weighting factor established under paragraph (2)(C) for the service (or group), to

“(ii) the sum of the amount determined under clause (i) and the unadjusted copayment amount determined under subparagraph (B) for such service or group.

“(E) CALCULATION OF MEDICARE OPD FEE SCHEDULE AMOUNTS.—The Secretary shall compute a medicare OPD fee schedule amount for each covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in a year, in an amount equal to the product of—

“(i) the conversion factor computed under subparagraph (C) for the year, and

“(ii) the relative payment weight (determined under paragraph (2)(C)) for the service or group.

“(4) MEDICARE PAYMENT AMOUNT.—The amount of payment made from the Trust Fund under this part for a covered OPD service (and such services classified within a group) furnished in a year is determined as follows:

“(A) FEE SCHEDULE AND COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—Add (i) the medicare OPD fee schedule amount (computed under paragraph (3)(E)) for the service or group and year, and (ii) the unadjusted copayment amount (determined under paragraph (3)(B)) for the service or group.

“(B) SUBTRACT APPLICABLE DEDUCTIBLE.—Reduce the adjusted sum by the amount of the deductible under section 1833(b), to the extent applicable.

“(C) APPLY PAYMENT PROPORTION TO REMAINDER.—Multiply the amount so determined under subparagraph (B) by the pre-deductible payment percentage (as determined under paragraph (3)(D)) for the service or group and year involved.

“(D) LABOR-RELATED ADJUSTMENT.—The amount of payment is the product determined under subparagraph (C) with the labor-related portion of such product adjusted for relative differences in the cost of labor and other factors determined by the Secretary, as computed under paragraph (2)(D).

“(5) COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the copayment amount under this subsection is determined as follows:

“(i) UNADJUSTED COPAYMENT.—Compute the amount by which the amount described in paragraph (4)(B) exceeds the amount of payment determined under paragraph (4)(C).

“(ii) LABOR ADJUSTMENT.—The copayment amount is the difference determined under clause (i) with the labor-related portion of such difference adjusted for relative differences in the cost of labor and other factors determined by the Secretary, as computed under paragraphs (2)(D). The adjustment under this clause shall be made in a manner that does not result in any change in the aggregate copayments made in any year if the adjustment had not been made.

“(B) ELECTION TO OFFER REDUCED COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—The Secretary shall establish a procedure under which a hospital, before the beginning of a year (beginning with 1999), may elect to reduce the copayment amount otherwise established under subparagraph (A) for some or all covered OPD services to an amount that is not less than 25 percent of the medicare OPD fee schedule amount (computed under paragraph (3)(E)) for the service involved, adjusted for relative differences in the cost of labor and other factors determined by the Secretary, as computed under subparagraphs (D) and (E) of paragraph (2). Under such procedures, such reduced copayment amount may not be further reduced or increased during the year involved and the hospital may disseminate information on the reduction of copayment amount effected under this subparagraph.

“(6) PERIODIC REVIEW AND ADJUSTMENTS COMPONENTS OF PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT SYSTEM.—

“(A) PERIODIC REVIEW.—The Secretary may periodically review and revise the groups, the relative payment weights, and the wage and other adjustments described in paragraph (2) to take into account changes in medical practice, changes in technology, the addition of new services, new cost data, and other relevant information and factors.

“(B) BUDGET NEUTRALITY ADJUSTMENT.—If the Secretary makes adjustments under subparagraph (A), then the adjustments for a year may not cause the estimated amount of expenditures under this part for the year to increase or decrease from the estimated amount of expenditures under this part that would have been made if the adjustments had not been made.

“(C) UPDATE FACTOR.—If the Secretary determines under methodologies described in subparagraph (2)(F) that the volume of services paid for under this subsection increased beyond amounts established through those methodologies, the Secretary may appropriately adjust the update to the conversion factor otherwise applicable in a subsequent year.

“(7) SPECIAL RULE FOR AMBULANCE SERVICES.—The Secretary shall pay for hospital outpatient services that are ambulance services on the basis described in the matter in subsection (a)(1) preceding subparagraph (A).

“(8) SPECIAL RULES FOR CERTAIN HOSPITALS.—In the case of hospitals described in section 1886(d)(1)(B)(v)—

“(A) the system under this subsection shall not apply to covered OPD services furnished before January 1, 2000; and

“(B) the Secretary may establish a separate conversion factor for such services in a manner that specifically takes into account the unique costs incurred by such hospitals by virtue of their patient population and service intensity.

“(9) LIMITATION ON REVIEW.—There shall be no administrative or judicial review under section 1869, 1878, or otherwise of—

“(A) the development of the classification system under paragraph (2), including the establishment of groups and relative payment weights for covered OPD services, of wage adjustment factors, other adjustments, and methods described in paragraph (2)(F);

“(B) the calculation of base amounts under paragraph (3);

“(C) periodic adjustments made under paragraph (6); and

“(D) the establishment of a separate conversion factor under paragraph (8)(B).”.

(b) COINSURANCE.—Section 1866(a)(2)(A)(ii) (42 U.S.C. 1395cc(a)(2)(A)(ii)) is amended by adding at the end the following: “In the case of items and services for which payment is made under part B under the prospective payment system established under section 1833(t), clause (ii) of the first sentence shall be applied by substituting for 20 percent of the reasonable charge, the applicable copayment amount established under section 1833(t)(5).”.

(c) TREATMENT OF REDUCTION IN COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—Section 1128A(i)(6) (42 U.S.C. 1320a-7a(i)(6)) is amended—

(1) by striking “or” at the end of subparagraph (B),

(2) by striking the period at the end of subparagraph (C) and inserting “; or”, and

(1) the county or parish furnishes (or arranges for the furnishing) of ambulance services for which payment may be made under part B of title XVIII of the Social Security Act for individuals residing in the county or parish who are enrolled under such part, except that the county or parish may not enter into the contract unless the contract covers at least 80 percent of the individuals residing in the county or parish who are enrolled under such part;

CHAPTER 3—PAYMENT UNDER PARTS A AND B

SEC. 4441. PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title XVIII (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.), as amended by section 4011, is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

“PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES

“SEC. 1895. (a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding section 1861(v), the Secretary shall provide, for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1999, for payments for home health services in accordance with a prospective payment system established by the Secretary under this section.

“(b) SYSTEM OF PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish under this subsection a prospective payment system for payment for all costs of home health services. Under the system under this subsection all services covered and paid on a reasonable cost basis under the medicare home health benefit as of the date of the enactment of the this section, including medical supplies, shall be paid for on the basis of a prospective payment amount determined under this subsection and applicable to the services involved. In implementing the system, the Secretary may provide for a transition (of not longer than 4 years) during which a portion of such payment is based on agency-specific costs, but only if such transition does not result in aggregate payments under this title that exceed the aggregate payments that would be made if such a transition did not occur.

“(2) UNIT OF PAYMENT.—In defining a prospective payment amount under the system under this subsection, the Secretary shall consider an appropriate unit of service and the number, type, and duration of visits provided within that unit, potential changes in the mix of services provided within that unit and their cost, and a general system design that provides for continued access to quality services.

“(3) PAYMENT BASIS.—

“(A) INITIAL BASIS.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Under such system the Secretary shall provide for computation of a standard prospective payment amount (or amounts). Such amount (or amounts) shall initially be based on the most current audited cost report data available to the Secretary and shall be computed in a manner so that the total amounts payable under the system for fiscal year 2000 shall be equal to the total amount that would have been made if the system had not been in effect but if the reduction in limits described in clause (ii) had been in effect. Such amount shall be standardized in a manner that eliminates the effect of variations in relative case mix and wage levels among different home health agencies in a budget neutral manner consistent with the case mix and wage level adjustments provided under paragraph (4)(A). Under the system, the Secretary may recognize regional differences or differences based upon whether or not the services or agency are in an urbanized area.

“(ii) REDUCTION.—The reduction described in this clause is a reduction by 15 percent in the cost limits and per beneficiary limits described in section 1861(v)(1)(L), as those limits are in effect on September 30, 1999.

“(B) ANNUAL UPDATE.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The standard prospective payment amount (or amounts) shall be adjusted for each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 2001) in a prospective manner specified by the Secretary by the home health market basket percentage increase applicable to the fiscal year involved.

“(ii) HOME HEALTH MARKET BASKET PERCENTAGE INCREASE.—For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘home health market basket percentage increase’ means, with respect to a fiscal year, a percentage (estimated by the Secretary before the beginning of the fiscal year) determined and applied with respect to the mix of goods and services included in home health services in the same manner as the market basket percentage increase under section 1886(b)(3)(B)(iii) is determined and applied to the mix of goods and services comprising inpatient hospital services for the fiscal year.

“(C) ADJUSTMENT FOR OUTLIERS.—The Secretary shall reduce the standard prospective payment amount (or amounts) under this paragraph applicable to home health services furnished during a period by such proportion as will result in an aggregate reduction in payments for the period equal to the aggregate increase in payments resulting from the application of paragraph (5) (relating to outliers).

“(4) PAYMENT COMPUTATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The payment amount for a unit of home health services shall be the applicable standard prospective payment amount adjusted as follows:

“(i) CASE MIX ADJUSTMENT.—The amount shall be adjusted by an appropriate case mix adjustment factor (established under subparagraph (B)).

“(ii) AREA WAGE ADJUSTMENT.—The portion of such amount that the Secretary estimates to be attributable to wages and wage-related costs shall be adjusted for geographic differences in such costs by an area wage adjustment factor (established under subparagraph (C)) for the area in which the services are furnished or such other area as the Secretary may specify.

“(B) ESTABLISHMENT OF CASE MIX ADJUSTMENT FACTORS.—The Secretary shall establish appropriate case mix adjustment factors for home health services in a manner that explains a significant amount of the variation in cost among different units of services.

“(C) ESTABLISHMENT OF AREA WAGE ADJUSTMENT FACTORS.—The Secretary shall establish area wage adjustment factors that reflect the relative level of wages and wage-related costs applicable to the furnishing of home health services in a geographic area compared to the national average applicable level. Such factors may be the factors used by the Secretary for purposes of section 1886(d)(3)(E).

“(5) OUTLIERS.—The Secretary may provide for an addition or adjustment to the payment amount otherwise made in the case of outliers because of unusual variations in the type or amount of medically necessary care. The total amount of the additional payments or payment adjustments made under this paragraph with respect to a fiscal year may not exceed 5 percent of the total payments projected or estimated to be made based on the prospective payment system under this subsection in that year.

“(6) PRORATION OF PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT AMOUNTS.—If a beneficiary elects to transfer to, or receive services from, another home health agency within the period covered by the prospective payment amount, the payment shall be prorated between the home health agencies involved.

“(c) REQUIREMENTS FOR PAYMENT INFORMATION.—With respect to home health services furnished on or after October 1, 1998, no claim for such a service may be paid under this title unless—

“(1) the claim has the unique identifier (provided under section 1842(r)) for the physician who prescribed the services or made the certification described in section 1814(a)(2) or 1835(a)(2)(A); and

“(2) in the case of a service visit described in paragraph (1), (2), (3), or (4) of section 1861(m), the claim has information

(coded in an appropriate manner) on the length of time of the service visit, as measured in 15 minute increments.

“(d) LIMITATION ON REVIEW.—There shall be no administrative or judicial review under section 1869, 1878, or otherwise of—

“(1) the establishment of a transition period under subsection (b)(1);

“(2) the definition and application of payment units under subsection (b)(2);

“(3) the computation of initial standard prospective payment amounts under subsection (b)(3)(A) (including the reduction described in clause (ii) of such subsection);

“(4) the adjustment for outliers under subsection (b)(3)(C);

“(5) case mix and area wage adjustments under subsection (b)(4);

“(6) any adjustments for outliers under subsection (b)(5); and

“(7) the amounts or types of exceptions or adjustments under subsection (b)(7).”.

or, if such services are furnished by a public provider of services, or by another provider which demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that a significant portion of its patients are low-income (and requests that payment be made under this provision), free of charge or at nominal charges to the public, the amount determined in accordance with section 1814(b)(2);”.

The court shall render a separate judgment against each defendant in an amount determined pursuant to the preceding sentence.

(ii) PERCENTAGE OF RESPONSIBILITY.—For purposes of determining the amount of noneconomic damages attributable to a defendant under this section, the trier of fact shall determine the percentage of responsibility of each person responsible for the claimant's harm, whether or not such person is a party to the action.

(b) TREATMENT OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—

(1) GENERAL RULE.—Punitive damages may, to the extent permitted by applicable law, be awarded in a health care liability action against a defendant if the claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the harm suffered was result of conduct manifesting a conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of others.

(2) REQUIRED PROPORTIONALITY.—The amount of punitive damages that may be awarded in a health care liability action shall not exceed 3 times the amount of damages awarded to the claimant for economic loss, or $250,000, whichever is greater. This subsection shall be applied by the court, and application of this subsection shall not be disclosed to the jury.

(c) BIFURCATION AT REQUEST OF ANY PARTY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—At the request of any party the trier of fact in any action that is subject to this section shall consider in a separate proceeding, held subsequent to the determination of the amount of compensatory damages, whether punitive damages are to be awarded for the harm that is the subject of the action and the amount of the award.

(2) INADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE RELATIVE ONLY TO A CLAIM OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES IN A PROCEEDING CONCERNING COMPENSATORY DAMAGES.—If any party requests a separate proceeding under paragraph (1), in a proceeding to determine whether the claimant may be awarded compensatory damages, any evidence, argument, or contention that is relevant only to the claim of punitive damages, as determined by applicable law, shall be inadmissible.

(d) DRUGS AND DEVICES.—

(1)(A) Punitive damages shall not be awarded against a manufacturer or product seller of a drug or device which caused the claimant's harm where—

(i) such drug or device was subject to premarket approval by the Food and Drug Administration with respect to the safety of the formulation or performance of the aspect of such drug or device which caused the claimant's harm or the adequacy of the packaging or labeling of such drug or device, and such drug or device was approved by the Food and Drug Administration; or

(ii) the drug or device is generally recognized as safe and effective pursuant to conditions established by the Food and Drug Administration and applicable regulations, including packaging and labeling regulations.

(B) Subparagraph (A) shall not apply in any case in which the defendant, before or after premarket approval of a drug or device—

(i) intentionally and wrongfully withheld from or misrepresented to the Food and Drug Administration information concerning such drug or device required to be submitted under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 301 et seq.) or section 351 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 262) that is material and relevant to the harm suffered by the claimant, or

(ii) made an illegal payment to an official or employee of the Food and Drug Administration for the purpose of securing or maintaining approval of such drug or device.

(2) PACKAGING.—In a health care liability action which is alleged to relate to the adequacy of the packaging (or labeling relating to such packaging) of a drug which is required to have tamper-resistant packaging under regulations of the Secretary of Health and Human Services (including labeling regulations related to such packaging), the manufacturer of the drug shall not be held liable for punitive damages unless the drug is found by the court by clear and convincing evidence to be substantially out of compliance with such regulations.

(e) PERIODIC PAYMENTS FOR FUTURE LOSSES.—

(1) GENERAL RULE.—In any health care liability action in which the damages awarded for future economic and non-economic loss exceed $50,000, a person shall not be required to pay such damages in a single, lump-sum payment, but shall be permitted to make such payments periodically based on when the damages are found likely to occur, with the amount and schedule of such payments determined by the court.

(2) FINALITY OF JUDGMENT.—The judgment of the court awarding periodic payments under this subsection may not, in the absence of fraud, be reopened at any time to contest, amend, or modify the schedule or amount of the payments.

(3) LUMP-SUM SETTLEMENTS.—This subsection shall not be construed to preclude a settlement providing for a single, lump-sum payment.

(f) TREATMENT OF COLLATERAL SOURCE PAYMENTS.—

(1) INTRODUCTION INTO EVIDENCE.—In any health care liability action, any defendant may introduce evidence of collateral source payments. If a defendant elects to introduce such evidence, the claimant may introduce evidence of any amount paid or contributed or reasonably likely to be paid or contributed in the future by or on behalf of the claimant to secure the right to such collateral source payments.

(2) NO SUBROGATION.—No provider of collateral source payments shall recover any amount against the claimant or receive any lien or credit against the claimant's recovery or be equitably or legally subrogated the right of the claimant in a health care liability action. This subsection shall apply to an action that is settled as well as an action that is resolved by a fact finder.

“(II) the allotment of the State under clause (iii) of this subparagraph for the fiscal year.

“(ii) WELFARE-TO-WORK STATE.—A State shall be considered a welfare-to-work State for a fiscal year for purposes of this subparagraph if the Secretary, after consultation (and the sharing of any plan or amendment thereto submitted under this clause) with the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, determines that the State meets the following requirements:

“(I) The State has submitted to the Secretary (in the form of an addendum to the State plan submitted under section 402) a plan which—

“(aa) describes how, consistent with this subparagraph, the State will use any funds provided under this subparagraph during the fiscal year;

“(bb) specifies the formula to be used pursuant to clause (vi) to distribute funds in the State, and describes the process by which the formula was developed; and

“(cc) contains evidence that the plan was developed through a collaborative process that, at a minimum, included sub-State areas.

“(II) The State has provided the Secretary with an estimate of the amount that the State intends to expend during the fiscal year (excluding expenditures described in section 409(a)(7)(B)(iv)) for activities described in subparagraph (C)(i) of this paragraph.

“(III) The State has agreed to negotiate in good faith with the Secretary of Health and Human Services with respect to the substance of any evaluation under section 413(j), and to cooperate with the conduct of any such evaluation.

“(IV) The State is an eligible State for the fiscal year.

“(iii) ALLOTMENTS TO WELFARE-TO-WORK STATES.—The allotment of a welfare-to-work State for a fiscal year shall be the available amount for the fiscal year multiplied by the State percentage for the fiscal year.

weight of not less than 50 percent to this factor;

“(bb) may determine the amount to be distributed for the benefit of a service delivery area in proportion to the number of adults residing in the service delivery area who are recipients of assistance under the State program funded under this part (whether in effect before or after the amendments made by section 103(a) of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act first applied to the State) for at least 30 months (whether or not consecutive) relative to the number of such adults residing in the other service delivery areas in the State; and

“(II) SPECIAL RULE.—Notwithstanding subclause (I), if the formula used pursuant to subclause (I) would result in the distribution of less than $100,000 during a fiscal year for the benefit of a service delivery area, then in lieu of distributing such sum in accordance with the formula, such sum shall be available for distribution under subclause (III) during the fiscal year.

“(III) PROJECTS TO HELP LONG-TERM RECIPIENTS OF ASSISTANCE INTO THE WORK FORCE.—The Governor of a State to which a grant is made under this subparagraph may distribute not more than 15 percent of the grant funds (plus any amount required to be distributed under this subclause by reason of subclause (II)) to projects that appear likely to help long-term recipients of assistance under the State program funded under this part (whether in effect before or after the amendments made by section 103(a) of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act first applied to the State) enter the work force.

“(iv) FUNDING.—For grants under this subparagraph for each fiscal year specified in subparagraph (H), there shall be available to the Secretary an amount equal to the sum of—

Notwithstanding any other provision of this part, if the Secretary determines that a guaranty agency is not in compliance with the requirements of this subsection, such agency may not receive any other funds under this part until the Secretary determines that such agency is in compliance.

“(7) The Secretary shall not have any authority to direct a guaranty agency to return reserve funds under subsection (g)(1)(A) during the period from the date of enactment of this subsection through September 30, 2002, and any reserve funds otherwise returned under subsection (g)(1) during such period shall be treated as amounts recalled under this subsection and shall not be available under subsection (g)(4).

The Secretary may take into account, for purposes of this subsection, evidence provided by the plan or sponsor which demonstrates an assumption of liability with respect to the plan. Such evidence may be in the form of a contract of indemnification, lien, bonding, insurance, letter of credit, recourse under applicable terms of the plan in the form of assessments of participating employers, security, or other financial arrangement.

The board of trustees of such plan shall determine quarterly whether the requirements of section 806 are met. Not later than 30 days after receiving from the actuary recommendations for corrective actions, the board shall notify the Secretary (in such form and manner as the Secretary may prescribe by regulation) of such recommendations of the actuary for corrective action, together with a description of the actions (if any) that the board has taken or plans to take in response to such recommendations. the board of trustees of the plan shall, at the direction of the Secretary, terminate the plan and, in the course of the termination, take such actions as the Secretary may require, including satisfying any claims referred to in section 806(a)(2)(B)(ii) and recovering for the plan any liability under subsection (a)(2)(B)(ii) or (e) of section 806, as necessary to ensure that the affairs of the plan will be, to the maximum extent possible, wound up in a manner which will result in timely provision of all benefits for which the plan is obligated.

“(c) GUARANTEE FUND.—In any case in which claims against an association health plan terminated under subsection (b) remain outstanding after all actions required under subsection (b) have been undertaken in connection with the termination, the Secretary shall assess all ongoing association health plans which are or have been certified under this part and are described in section 806(a)(2) in an amount—

“(1) expressed as a uniform percentage of claims paid by such plans per year for coverage, other than health insurance coverage, commencing with the last plan year ending before the date of the termination, and except that any such assessment shall not exceed 2 percent per year. The Secretary shall promptly pay such outstanding claims with the amounts assessed pursuant to this subsection. The Secretary shall deposit and hold such assessments in a guarantee fund which shall be established by the Secretary for payment of such claims until such payment of such claims has been completed. The Secretary may invest amounts of the fund in such obligations as the Secretary considers appropriate.

“(A) NONCOMPETITIVE GRANTS.—

“(i) ENTITLEMENT.—A State shall be entitled to receive from the Secretary a grant for each fiscal year specified in subparagraph (H) of this paragraph for which the State is a welfare-to-work State, in an amount that does not exceed the lesser of—

“(I) 2 times the total of the expenditures by the State (excluding qualified State expenditures (as defined in section 409(a)(7)(B)(i)) and any expenditure described in subclause (I), (II), or (IV) of section 409(a)(7)(B)(iv)) during the fiscal year for activities described in subparagraph (C)(i) of this paragraph; or

“(II) the allotment of the State under clause (iii) of this subparagraph for the fiscal year.

“(ii) WELFARE-TO-WORK STATE.—A State shall be considered a welfare-to-work State for a fiscal year for purposes of this subparagraph if the Secretary, after consultation (and the sharing of any plan or amendment thereto submitted under this clause) with the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, deter-

“(bb) specifies the formula to be used pursuant to clause (vi) to distribute funds in the State, and describes the process by which the formula was developed;

“(cc) contains evidence that the plan was developed in consultation and coordination with sub-State areas; and “(dd) is approved by the agency administering the State program funded under this part.

“(II) The State has provided the Secretary with an estimate of the amount that the State intends to expend during the fiscal year (excluding expenditures described in section 409(a)(7)(B)(iv)) for activities described in subparagraph (C)(i) of this paragraph.

“(III) The State has agreed to negotiate in good faith with the Secretary of Health and Human Services with respect to the substance of any evaluation under section 413(j), and to cooperate with the conduct of any such evaluation.

“(A) such determination shall not apply to contracts under this part until the first contract year that begins after the end of such period, and

“(B) if such coverage determination provides for coverage of additional benefits or coverage under additional circumstances, section 1851(i) shall not apply to payment for such additional benefits or benefits provided under such additional circumstances until the first contract year that begins after the end of such period,

unless otherwise required by law.

“(I) provides stop-loss protection for the physician or group that is adequate and appropriate, based on standards developed by the Secretary that take into account the number of physicians placed at such substantial financial risk in the group or under the plan and the number of individuals enrolled with the organization who receive services from the physician or group, and with the organization to determine the degree of access of such individuals to services provided by the organization and satisfaction with the quality of such services.

“(5) LIMITATION ON PROVIDER INDEMNIFICATION.—A MedicarePlus organization may not provide (directly or indirectly) for a provider (or group of providers) to indemnify the organization against any liability resulting from a civil action brought for any damage caused to an enrollee with a MedicarePlus plan of the organization under this part by the organization’s denial of medically necessary care.

“(k) TREATMENT OF SERVICES FURNISHED BY CERTAIN PROVIDERS.—A physician or other entity (other than a provider of services) that does not have a contract establishing payment amounts for services furnished to an individual enrolled under this part with a MedicarePlus organization (other than under an MSA plan) shall accept as payment in full for covered services under this title that are furnished to such an individual the amounts that the physician or other entity could collect if the individual were not so enrolled. Any penalty or other provision of law that applies to such a payment with respect to an individual entitled to benefits under this title (but not enrolled with a MedicarePlus organization under this part) also applies with respect to an individual so enrolled.

“(l) DISCLOSURE OF USE OF DSH AND TEACHING HOSPITALS.—Each MedicarePlus organization shall provide the Secretary with information on—

“(1) the extent to which the organization provides inpatient and outpatient hospital benefits under this part—

“(A) through the use of hospitals that are eligible for additional payments under section 1886(d)(5)(F)(i) (relating to so-called DSH hospitals), or

“(B) through the use of teaching hospitals that receive payments under section 1886(h); and

“PAYMENTS TO MEDICAREPLUS ORGANIZATIONS

“(1) MONTHLY PAYMENTS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Under a contract under section 1857 and subject to subsections (e) and (f), the Secretary shall make monthly payments under this section in advance to each MedicarePlus organization, with respect to coverage of an individual under this part in a MedicarePlus payment area for a month, in an amount equal to $\frac{1}{12}$ of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate (as calculated under subsection (c)) with respect to that individual for that area, adjusted for such risk factors as age, disability status, gender, institutional status, and such other factors as the Secretary determines to be appropriate, so as to ensure actuarial equivalence. The Secretary may add to, modify, or substitute for such factors, if such changes will improve the determination of actuarial equivalence.

“(B) SPECIAL RULE FOR END-STAGE RENAL DISEASE.—The Secretary shall establish separate rates of payment to a MedicarePlus organization with respect to classes of individuals determined to have end-stage renal disease and enrolled in a MedicarePlus plan of the organization. Such rates of payment shall be actuarially equivalent to rates paid to other enrollees in the MedicarePlus payment area (or such other area as specified by the Secretary). In accordance with regulations, the Secretary shall provide for the application of the seventh sentence of section 1881(b)(7) to payments under this section covering the provision of renal dialysis treatment in the same manner as such sentence applies to composite rate payments described in such sentence.

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The amount of payment under this subsection may be retroactively adjusted to take into account any difference between the actual number of individuals enrolled with an organization under this part and the number of such individuals estimated to be so enrolled in determining the amount of the advance payment.

“(B) SPECIAL RULE FOR CERTAIN ENROLLEES.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), the Secretary may make retroactive adjustments under subparagraph (A) to take into account individuals enrolled during the period beginning on the date on which the individual enrolls with a MedicarePlus organization under a plan operated, sponsored, or contributed to by the individual’s employer or former employer (or the employer or former employer of the individual’s spouse) and ending on the date on which the individual is enrolled in the organization under this part, except that for purposes of making such retroactive adjustments under this subparagraph, such period may not exceed 90 days.

“(ii) EXCEPTION.—No adjustment may be made under clause (i) with respect to any individual who does not certify that the organization provided the individual with the information required to be disclosed under section 1852(c) at the time the individual enrolled with the organization.

“(A) REPORT.—The Secretary shall develop, and submit to Congress by not later than October 1, 1999, a report on a method of risk adjustment of payment rates under this section that accounts for variations in per capita costs based on health status. Such report shall include an evaluation of such method by an outside, independent actuary of the actuarial soundness of the proposal.

“(B) DATA COLLECTION.—In order to carry out this paragraph, the Secretary shall require MedicarePlus organizations (and eligible organizations with risk-sharing contracts under section 1876) to submit, for periods beginning on or after January 1, 1998, data regarding inpatient hospital services and other services and other information the Secretary deems necessary.

“(b) ANNUAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF PAYMENT RATES.—

“(1) ANNUAL ANNOUNCEMENT.—The Secretary shall annually determine, and shall announce (in a manner intended to provide notice to interested parties) not later than August 1 before the calendar year concerned—

“(A) the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for each MedicarePlus payment area for the year, and

“(2) ADVANCE NOTICE OF METHODOLOGICAL CHANGES.—At least 45 days before making the announcement under paragraph (1) for a year, the Secretary shall provide for notice to MedicarePlus organizations of proposed changes to be made in the methodology from the methodology and assumptions used in the previous announcement and shall provide such organizations an opportunity to comment on such proposed changes.

“(c) CALCULATION OF ANNUAL MEDICAREPLUS CAPITATION RATES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this part, each annual MedicarePlus capitation rate, for a MedicarePlus payment area for a contract year consisting of a calendar year, is equal to the largest of the amounts specified in the following subparagraphs (A), (B), or (C):

“(A) BLENDED CAPITATION RATE.—The sum of—

“(i) area-specific percentage for the year (as specified under paragraph (2) for the year) of the annual area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate for the year for the MedicarePlus payment area, as determined under paragraph (3), and

“(ii) national percentage (as specified under paragraph (2) for the year) of the input-price-adjusted annual national MedicarePlus capitation rate for the year, as determined under paragraph (4), multiplied by the payment adjustment factors described in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (5).

“(B) MINIMUM AMOUNT.—12 multiplied by the following amount:

“(i) For 1998, $350 (but not to exceed, in the case of an area outside the 50 States and the District of Columbia, 150 percent of the annual per capita rate of payment for 1997 determined under section 1876(a)(1)(C) for the area).

“(ii) For a succeeding year, the minimum amount specified in this clause (or clause (i)) for the preceding year increased by the national per capita MedicarePlus growth percentage, specified under paragraph (6) for that succeeding year.

“(C) MINIMUM PERCENTAGE INCREASE.—

“(i) For 1998, 102 percent of the annual per capita rate of payment for 1997 determined under section 1876(a)(1)(C) for the MedicarePlus payment area.

“(ii) For a subsequent year, 102 percent of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate under this paragraph for the area for the previous year.

“(2) AREA-SPECIFIC AND NATIONAL PERCENTAGES.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(A)—

“(A) for 1998, the ‘area-specific percentage’ is 90 percent and the ‘national percentage’ is 10 percent,

“(B) for 1999, the ‘area-specific percentage’ is 80 percent and the ‘national percentage’ is 20 percent,

“(C) for 2000, the ‘area-specific percentage’ is 70 percent and the ‘national percentage’ is 30 percent,

“(D) for 2001, the ‘area-specific percentage’ is 60 percent and the ‘national percentage’ is 40 percent, and

“(E) for a year after 2001, the ‘area-specific percentage’ is 50 percent and the ‘national percentage’ is 50 percent.

“(3) ANNUAL AREA-SPECIFIC MEDICAREPLUS CAPITATION RATE.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(A), the annual area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate for a MedicarePlus payment area—

“(A) for 1998 is the annual per capita rate of payment for 1997 determined under section 1876(a)(1)(C) for the area, increased by the national per capita MedicarePlus growth percentage for 1998 (as defined in paragraph (6)); or

“(B) for a subsequent year is the annual area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate for the previous year determined under this paragraph for the area, increased by the national per capita MedicarePlus growth percentage for such subsequent year.

“(4) INPUT-PRICE-ADJUSTED ANNUAL NATIONAL MEDICAREPLUS CAPITATION RATE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(A), the input-price-adjusted annual national MedicarePlus capitation rate for a MedicarePlus payment area for a year is equal to the sum, for all the types of medicare services (as classified by the Secretary), of the product (for each such type of service) of—

“(i) the national standardized annual MedicarePlus capitation rate (determined under subparagraph (B)) for the year,

“(ii) the proportion of such rate for the year which is attributable to such type of services, and

“(iii) an index that reflects (for that year and that type of services) the relative input price of such services in the area compared to the national average input price of such services.

In applying clause (iii), the Secretary shall, subject to subparagraph (C), apply those indices under this title that are used in applying (or updating) national payment rates for specific areas and localities.

“(B) NATIONAL STANDARDIZED ANNUAL MEDICAREPLUS CAPITATION RATE.—In subparagraph (A)(i), the ‘national standardized annual MedicarePlus capitation rate’ for a year is equal to—

“(i) the sum (for all MedicarePlus payment areas) of the product of—

“(II) the average number of medicare beneficiaries residing in that area in the year, multiplied by the average of the risk factor weights used to adjust payments under subsection (a)(1)(A) for such beneficiaries in such area; divided by

“(C) SPECIAL RULES FOR 1998.—In applying this paragraph for 1998—

“(i) medicare services shall be divided into 2 types of services: part A services and part B services;

“(ii) the proportions described in subparagraph (A)(ii)—

“(I) for part A services shall be the ratio (expressed as a percentage) of the national average annual per capita rate of payment for part A for 1997 to the total national average annual per capita rate of payment for parts A and B for 1997, and

“(II) for part B services shall be 100 percent minus the ratio described in subclause (I);

“(iii) for part A services, 70 percent of payments attributable to such services shall be adjusted by the index used under section 1886(d)(3)(E) to adjust payment rates for relative hospital wage levels for hospitals located in the payment area involved;

“(iv) for part B services—

“(I) 66 percent of payments attributable to such services shall be adjusted by the index of the geographic area factors under section 1848(e) used to adjust payment rates for physicians’ services furnished in the payment area, and

“(v) the index values shall be computed based only on the beneficiary population who are 65 years of age or older and who are not determined to have end stage renal disease.

“(5) PAYMENT ADJUSTMENT BUDGET NEUTRALITY FACTORS.—
For purposes of paragraph (1)(A)—

“(A) BLENDED RATE PAYMENT ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For each year, the Secretary shall compute a blended rate payment adjustment factor such that, not taking into account subparagraphs (B) and (C) of paragraph (1) and the application of the payment adjustment factor described in subparagraph (B), the aggregate of the payments that would be made under this part is equal to the aggregate payments that would have been made under this part (not taking into account such subparagraphs and such other adjustment factor) if the area-specific percentage under paragraph (1) for the year had been 100 percent and the national percentage had been 0 percent.

“(A) IN GENERAL.—In this part, the ‘national per capita MedicarePlus growth percentage’ for a year is the percentage determined by the Secretary, by April 30th before the beginning of the year involved, to reflect the Secretary's estimate of the projected per capita rate of growth in expenditures under this title for an individual entitled to benefits under part A and enrolled under part B, reduced by the number of percentage points specified in subparagraph (B) for the year. Separate determinations may be made for aged enrollees, disabled enrollees, and enrollees with end-stage renal disease. Such percentage shall include an adjustment for over or under projection in the growth percentage for previous years.

- “(i) for 1998, 0.5 percentage points,
- “(ii) for 1999, 0.5 percentage points,
- “(iii) for 2000, 0.5 percentage points,
- “(iv) for 2001, 0.5 percentage points,
- “(v) for 2002, 0.5 percentage points, and
- “(vi) for a year after 2002, 0 percentage points.

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In this part, except as provided in paragraph (3), the term ‘MedicarePlus payment area’ means a county, or equivalent area specified by the Secretary.

“(3) GEOGRAPHIC ADJUSTMENT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Upon written request of the chief executive officer of a State for a contract year (beginning after 1998) made at least 7 months before the beginning of the year, the Secretary shall make a geographic adjustment to a MedicarePlus payment area in the State otherwise determined under paragraph (1)—

- “(i) to a single statewide MedicarePlus payment area,
- “(ii) to the metropolitan based system described in subparagraph (C), or
- “(iii) to consolidating into a single MedicarePlus payment area noncontiguous counties (or equivalent areas described in paragraph (1)) within a State.

Such adjustment shall be effective for payments for months beginning with January of the year following the year in which the request is received.

“(i) all the portions of each metropolitan statistical area in the State or in the case of a consolidated metropolitan statistical area, all of the portions of each primary metropolitan statistical area within the consolidated area within the State, are treated as a single MedicarePlus payment area, and

“(D) AREAS.—In subparagraph (C), the terms ‘metropolitan statistical area’, ‘consolidated metropolitan statistical area’, and ‘primary metropolitan statistical area’ mean any area designated as such by the Secretary of Commerce.

“(e) SPECIAL RULES FOR INDIVIDUALS ELECTING MSA PLANS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If the amount of the monthly premium for an MSA plan for a MedicarePlus payment area for a year is less than $\frac{1}{12}$ of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate applied under this section for the area and year involved, the Secretary shall deposit an amount equal to 100 percent of such difference in a MedicarePlus MSA established (and, if applicable, designated) by the individual under paragraph (2).

“(2) ESTABLISHMENT AND DESIGNATION OF MEDICAREPLUS MEDICAL SAVINGS ACCOUNT AS REQUIREMENT FOR PAYMENT OF CONTRIBUTION.—In the case of an individual who has elected coverage under an MSA plan, no payment shall be made under paragraph (1) on behalf of an individual for a month unless the individual—

“(A) has established before the beginning of the month (or by such other deadline as the Secretary may specify) a MedicarePlus MSA (as defined in section 138(b)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986), and

“(B) if the individual has established more than one such MedicarePlus MSA, has designated one of such accounts as the individual’s MedicarePlus MSA for purposes of this part.

Under rules under this section, such an individual may change the designation of such account under subparagraph (B) for purposes of this part.

“(3) LUMP SUM DEPOSIT OF MEDICAL SAVINGS ACCOUNT CONTRIBUTION.—In the case of an individual electing an MSA plan effective beginning with a month in a year, the amount of the contribution to the MedicarePlus MSA on behalf of the individual for that month and all successive months in the year shall be deposited during that first month. In the case of a termination of such an election as of a month before the end of a year, the Secretary shall provide for a procedure for the recovery of deposits attributable to the remaining months in the year.

“(f) PAYMENTS FROM TRUST FUND.—The payment to a MedicarePlus organization under this section for individuals enrolled under this part with the organization and payments to a MedicarePlus MSA under subsection (e)(1) shall be made from the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund in such proportion as the Secretary determines reflects the relative weight that benefits under part A and under part B represents of the actuarial value of the total benefits under this title. Monthly payments otherwise payable under this section for October 2001 shall be paid on the last business day of September 2001.

“(g) SPECIAL RULE FOR CERTAIN INPATIENT HOSPITAL STAYS.—In the case of an individual who is receiving inpatient hospital services from a subsection (d) hospital (as defined in section 1886(d)(1)(B)) as of the effective date of the individual’s—

“(1) election under this part of a MedicarePlus plan offered by a MedicarePlus organization—

“(A) payment for such services until the date of the individual’s discharge shall be made under this title through the MedicarePlus plan or the medicare fee-for-service program option described in section 1851(a)(1)(A) (as the case may be) elected before the election with such organization,

“(B) the elected organization shall not be financially responsible for payment for such services until the date after the date of the individual’s discharge, and

“(C) the organization shall nonetheless be paid the full amount otherwise payable to the organization under this part; or

“(2) termination of election with respect to a MedicarePlus organization under this part—

“(A) the organization shall be financially responsible for payment for such services after such date and until the date of the individual’s discharge,

“(C) the terminated organization shall not receive any payment with respect to the individual under this part during the period the individual is not enrolled.

“PREMIUMS

“SEC. 1854. (a) SUBMISSION AND CHARGING OF PREMIUMS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (3), each MedicarePlus organization shall file with the Secretary each year, in a form and manner and at a time specified by the Secretary—

“(A) the amount of the monthly premium for coverage for services under section 1852(a) under each MedicarePlus plan it offers under this part in each MedicarePlus payment area (as defined in section 1853(d)) in which the plan is being offered; and

“(B) the enrollment capacity in relation to the plan in each such area.

“(2) TERMINOLOGY.—In this part—

“(A) the term ‘monthly premium’ means, with respect to a MedicarePlus plan offered by a MedicarePlus organization, the monthly premium filed under paragraph (1), not taking into account the amount of any payment made toward the premium under section 1853; and

“(b) MONTHLY PREMIUM CHARGED.—The monthly amount of the premium charged by a MedicarePlus organization for a MedicarePlus plan offered in a MedicarePlus payment area to an individual under this part shall be equal to the net monthly premium plus any monthly premium charged in accordance with subsection (e)(2) for supplemental benefits.

“(c) UNIFORM PREMIUM.—The monthly premium and monthly amount charged under subsection (b) of a MedicarePlus organization under this part may not vary among individuals who reside in the same MedicarePlus payment area.

“(d) TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF IMPOSING PREMIUMS.—Each MedicarePlus organization shall permit the payment of net monthly premiums on a monthly basis and may terminate election of individuals for a MedicarePlus plan for failure to make premium payments only in accordance with section 1851(g)(3)(B)(i). A MedicarePlus organization is not authorized to provide for cash or other monetary rebates as an inducement for enrollment or otherwise.

“(1) FOR BASIC AND ADDITIONAL BENEFITS.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), in no event may—

“(A) the net monthly premium (multiplied by 12) and the actuarial value of the deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments applicable on average to individuals enrolled under this part with a MedicarePlus plan of an organization with respect to required benefits described in section 1852(a)(1) and additional benefits (if any) required under subsection (f)(1) for a year, exceed

“(2) FOR SUPPLEMENTAL BENEFITS.—If the MedicarePlus organization provides to its members enrolled under this part supplemental benefits described in section 1852(a)(3), the sum of the monthly premium rate (multiplied by 12) charged for such supplemental benefits and the actuarial value of its deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments charged with respect to such benefits may not exceed the adjusted community rate for such benefits (as defined in subsection (f)(4)).

“(3) EXCEPTION FOR MSA PLANS.—Paragraphs (1) and (2) do not apply to an MSA plan.

“(4) DETERMINATION ON OTHER BASIS.—If the Secretary determines that adequate data are not available to determine the actuarial value under paragraph (1)(A) or (2), the Secretary may determine such amount with respect to all individuals in the MedicarePlus payment area, the State, or in the United States, eligible to enroll in the MedicarePlus plan involved under this part or on the basis of other appropriate data.

“(1) REQUIREMENT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Each MedicarePlus organization (in relation to a MedicarePlus plan it offers) shall provide that if there is an excess amount (as defined in subparagraph (B)) for the plan for a contract year, subject to the succeeding provisions of this subsection, the organization shall provide to individuals such additional benefits (as the organization may specify) in a value which is at least equal to the adjusted excess amount (as defined in subparagraph (C)).

“(i) the average of the capitation payments made to the organization under section 1853 for the plan at the beginning of contract year, exceeds

“(D) NO APPLICATION TO MSA PLANS.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to an MSA plan.

“(E) UNIFORM APPLICATION.—This paragraph shall be applied uniformly for all enrollees for a plan in a MedicarePlus payment area.

“(F) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as preventing a MedicarePlus organization from providing health care benefits that are in addition to the benefits otherwise required to be provided under this paragraph and from imposing a premium for such additional benefits.

“(2) STABILIZATION FUND.—A MedicarePlus organization may provide that a part of the value of an excess amount described in paragraph (1) be withheld and reserved in the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and in the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund (in such proportions as the Secretary determines to be appropriate) by the Secretary for subsequent annual contract periods, to the extent required to stabilize and prevent undue fluctuations in the additional benefits offered in those subsequent periods by the organization in accordance with such paragraph. Any of such value of the amount reserved which is not provided as additional benefits described in paragraph (1)(A) to individuals electing the MedicarePlus plan of the organization in accordance with such paragraph prior to the end of such periods, shall revert for the use of such trust funds.

“(4) ADJUSTED COMMUNITY RATE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this subsection, subject to subparagraph (B), the term ‘adjusted community rate’ for a service or services means, at the election of a MedicarePlus organization, either—

“(i) the rate of payment for that service or services which the Secretary annually determines would apply to an individual electing a MedicarePlus plan under this part if the rate of payment were determined under a ‘community rating system’ (as defined in section 1302(8) of the Public Health Service Act, other than subparagraph (C)), or

but adjusted for differences between the utilization characteristics of the individuals electing coverage under this part and the utilization characteristics of the other enrollees with the plan (or, if the Secretary finds that adequate data are not available to adjust for those differences, the differences between the utilization characteristics of individuals selecting other MedicarePlus coverage, or MedicarePlus eligible individuals in the area, in the State, or in the United States, eligible to elect MedicarePlus coverage under this part and the utilization characteristics of the rest of the population in the area, in the State, or in the United States, respectively).

“(B) SPECIAL RULE FOR PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATIONS.—In the case of a MedicarePlus organization that is a provider-sponsored organization, the adjusted community rate under subparagraph (A) for a MedicarePlus plan of the organization may be computed (in a manner specified by the Secretary) using data in the general commercial marketplace or (during a transition period) based on the costs incurred by the organization in providing such a plan.

“(g) PERIODIC AUDITING.—The Secretary shall provide for the annual auditing of the financial records (including data relating to medicare utilization, costs, and computation of the adjusted community rate) of at least one-third of the MedicarePlus organizations offering MedicarePlus plans under this part. The Comptroller General shall monitoring auditing activities conducted under this subsection.

“SEC. 1855. (a) ORGANIZED AND LICENSED UNDER STATE LAW.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), a MedicarePlus organization shall be organized and licensed under State law as a risk-bearing entity eligible to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage in each State in which it offers a MedicarePlus plan.

“(2) SPECIAL EXCEPTION FOR PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATIONS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a provider-sponsored organization that seeks to offer a MedicarePlus plan in a State, the Secretary shall waive the requirement of paragraph (1) that the organization be licensed in that State if—

“(i) the organization files an application for such waiver with the Secretary, and

“(B) FAILURE TO ACT ON LICENSURE APPLICATION ON A TIMELY BASIS.—A ground for approval of such a waiver application is that the State has failed to complete action on a licensing application of the organization within 90 days of the date of the State’s receipt of the completed application. No period before the date of the enactment of this section shall be included in determining such 90-day period.

“(C) DENIAL OF APPLICATION BASED ON DISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT.—A ground for approval of such a waiver application is that the State has denied such a licensing application and—

“(i) the State has imposed documentation or information requirements not related to solvency requirements that are not generally applicable to other entities engaged in substantially similar business, or

“(ii) the standards or review process imposed by the State as a condition of approval of the license imposes any material requirements, procedures, or standards (other than requirements and standards relating to solvency) to such organizations that are not generally applicable to other entities engaged in substantially similar business.

“(D) DENIAL OF APPLICATION BASED ON APPLICATION OF SOLVENCY REQUIREMENTS.—A ground for approval of such a waiver application is that the State has denied such a licensing application based (in whole or in part) on the organization's failure to meet applicable solvency requirements and—

“(i) such requirements are not the same as the solvency standards established under section 1856(a); or

“(ii) the State has imposed as a condition of approval of the license any documentation or information requirements relating to solvency or other material requirements, procedures, or standards relating to solvency that are different from the requirements, procedures, and standards applied by the Secretary under subsection (d)(2).

For purposes of this subparagraph, the term ‘solvency requirements’ means requirements relating to solvency and other matters covered under the standards established under section 1856(a).

“(E) TREATMENT OF WAIVER.—In the case of a waiver granted under this paragraph for a provider-sponsored organization—

“(i) the waiver shall be effective for a 36-month period, except it may be renewed based on a subsequent application filed during the last 6 months of such period, and

“(ii) any provisions of State law which relate to the licensing of the organization and which prohibit the organization from providing coverage pursuant to a contract under this part shall be superseded.

Nothing in this subparagraph shall be construed as limiting the number of times such a waiver may be renewed.

“(F) PROMPT ACTION ON APPLICATION.—The Secretary shall grant or deny such a waiver application within 60 days after the date the Secretary determines that a substantially complete application has been filed. Nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing an organization which has had such a waiver application denied from submitting a subsequent waiver application.

“(3) EXCEPTION IF REQUIRED TO OFFER MORE THAN MEDICAREPLUS PLANS.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to a MedicarePlus organization in a State if the State requires the organization, as a condition of licensure, to offer any product or plan other than a MedicarePlus plan.

“(4) LICENSURE DOES NOT SUBSTITUTE FOR OR CONSTITUTE CERTIFICATION.—The fact that an organization is licensed in accordance with paragraph (1) does not deem the organization to meet other requirements imposed under this part.

“(b) PREPAID PAYMENT.—A MedicarePlus organization shall be compensated (except for premiums, deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments) for the provision of health care services to enrolled members under the contract under this part by a payment which is paid on a periodic basis without regard to the date the health care services are provided and which is fixed without regard to the frequency, extent, or kind of health care service actually provided to a member.

“(c) ASSUMPTION OF FULL FINANCIAL RISK.—The MedicarePlus organization shall assume full financial risk on a prospective basis for the provision of the health care services (except, at the election of the organization, hospice care) for which benefits are required to be provided under section 1852(a)(1), except that the organization—

“(1) may obtain insurance or make other arrangements for the cost of providing to any enrolled member such services the aggregate value of which exceeds $5,000 in any year,

“(2) may obtain insurance or make other arrangements for the cost of such services provided to its enrolled members other than through the organization because medical necessity required their provision before they could be secured through the organization,

“(3) may obtain insurance or make other arrangements for not more than 90 percent of the amount by which its costs for any of its fiscal years exceed 115 percent of its income for such fiscal year, and

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each MedicarePlus organization that is a provider-sponsored organization, that is not licensed by a State under subsection (a), and for which a waiver application has been approved under subsection (a)(2), shall meet standards established under section 1856(a) relating to the financial solvency and capital adequacy of the organization.

“(2) CERTIFICATION PROCESS FOR SOLVENCY STANDARDS FOR PSOS.—The Secretary shall establish a process for the receipt and approval of applications of a provider-sponsored organization described in paragraph (1) for certification (and periodic recertification) of the organization as meeting such solvency standards. Under such process, the Secretary shall act upon such an application not later than 60 days after the date the application has been received.

“(e) PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATION DEFINED.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In this part, the term ‘provider-sponsored organization’ means a public or private entity—

“(A) that is established or organized by a health care provider, or group of affiliated health care providers,

“(B) that provides a substantial proportion (as defined by the Secretary in accordance with paragraph (2)) of the health care items and services under the contract under this part directly through the provider or affiliated group of providers, and

“(C) with respect to which those affiliated providers that share, directly or indirectly, substantial financial risk with respect to the provision of such items and services have at least a majority financial interest in the entity.

“(2) SUBSTANTIAL PROPORTION.—In defining what is a ‘substantial proportion’ for purposes of paragraph (1)(B), the Secretary—

“(A) shall take into account (i) the need for such an organization to assume responsibility for a substantial proportion of services in order to assure financial stability and (ii) the practical difficulties in such an organization integrating a very wide range of service providers; and

“(3) AFFILIATION.—For purposes of this subsection, a provider is ‘affiliated’ with another provider if, through contract, ownership, or otherwise—

“(A) one provider, directly or indirectly, controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with the other,

“(B) both providers are part of a controlled group of corporations under section 1563 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, or

“(C) both providers are part of an affiliated service group under section 414 of such Code.

“(4) CONTROL.—For purposes of paragraph (3), control is presumed to exist if one party, directly or indirectly, owns, controls, or holds the power to vote, or proxies for, not less than 51 percent of the voting rights or governance rights of another.

“(5) HEALTH CARE PROVIDER DEFINED.—In this subsection, the term ‘health care provider’ means—

“ESTABLISHMENT OF STANDARDS

“SEC. 1856. (a) ESTABLISHMENT OF SOLVENCY STANDARDS FOR PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATIONS.—

“(B) FACTORS TO CONSIDER FOR SOLVENCY STANDARDS.—In establishing solvency standards under subparagraph (A) for provider-sponsored organizations, the Secretary shall consult with interested parties and shall take into account—

“(i) the delivery system assets of such an organization and ability of such an organization to provide services directly to enrollees through affiliated providers, and

“(ii) alternative means of protecting against insolvency, including reinsurance, unrestricted surplus, letters of credit, guarantees, organizational insurance coverage, partnerships with other licensed entities, and valuation attributable to the ability of such an organization to meet its service obligations through direct delivery of care.

“(C) ENROLLEE PROTECTION AGAINST INSOLVENCY.—Such standards shall include provisions to prevent enrollees from being held liable to any person or entity for the MedicarePlus organization’s debts in the event of the organization’s insolvency.

“(2) PUBLICATION OF NOTICE.—In carrying out the rule-making process under this subsection, the Secretary, after consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, the American Academy of Actuaries, organizations representative of medicare beneficiaries, and other interested parties, shall publish the notice provided for under section 564(a) of title 5, United States Code, by not later than 45 days after the date of the enactment of this section.

“(6) PRELIMINARY COMMITTEE REPORT.—The negotiated rule-making committee appointed under paragraph (5) shall report to the Secretary, by not later than January 1, 1998, regarding the committee’s progress on achieving a consensus with regard to the rulemaking proceeding and whether such consensus is likely to occur before one month before the target date for publication of the rule. If the committee reports that the committee has failed to make significant progress towards such consensus or is unlikely to reach such consensus by the target date, the Secretary may terminate such process and provide for the publication of a rule under this subsection through such other methods as the Secretary may provide.

“(7) FINAL COMMITTEE REPORT.—If the committee is not terminated under paragraph (6), the rulemaking committee shall submit a report containing a proposed rule by not later than one month before the target date of publication.

“(8) INTERIM, FINAL EFFECT.—The Secretary shall publish a rule under this subsection in the Federal Register by not later than the target date of publication. Such rule shall be effective and final immediately on an interim basis, but is subject to change and revision after public notice and opportunity for a period (of not less than 60 days) for public comment. In connection with such rule, the Secretary shall specify the process for the timely review and approval of applications of entities to be certified as provider-sponsored organizations pursuant to such rules and consistent with this subsection.

“(2) USE OF CURRENT STANDARDS.—Consistent with the requirements of this part, standards established under this subsection shall be based on standards established under section 1876 to carry out analogous provisions of such section.

“(3) USE OF INTERIM STANDARDS.—For the period in which this part is in effect and standards are being developed and established under the preceding provisions of this subsection, the Secretary shall provide by not later than June 1, 1998, for the application of such interim standards (without regard to any requirements for notice and public comment) as may be appropriate to provide for the expedited implementation of this part. Such interim standards shall not apply after the date standards are established under the preceding provisions of this subsection.

“(4) APPLICATION OF NEW STANDARDS TO ENTITIES WITH A CONTRACT.—In the case of a MedicarePlus organization with a contract in effect under this part at the time standards applicable to the organization under this section are changed, the organization may elect not to have such changes apply to the organization until the end of the current contract year (or, if there is less than 6 months remaining in the contract year, until 1 year after the end of the current contract year).

“(5) RELATION TO STATE LAWS.—The standards established under this subsection shall supersede any State law or regulation with respect to MedicarePlus plans which are offered by MedicarePlus organizations under this part to the extent such law or regulation is inconsistent with such standards.

“CONTRACTS WITH MEDICAREPLUS ORGANIZATIONS

“SEC. 1857. (a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall not permit the election under section 1851 of a MedicarePlus plan offered by a MedicarePlus organization under this part, and no payment shall be made under section 1853 to an organization, unless the Secretary has entered into a contract under this section with the organization with respect to the offering of such plan. Such a contract with an organization may cover more than one MedicarePlus plan. Such contract shall provide that the organization agrees to comply with the applicable requirements and standards of this part and the terms and conditions of payment as provided for in this part.

“(b) MINIMUM ENROLLMENT REQUIREMENTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), the Secretary may not enter into a contract under this section with a MedicarePlus organization unless the organization has at least 5,000 individuals (or 1,500 individuals in the case of an organization that is a provider-sponsored organization) who are receiving health benefits through the organization, except that the standards under section 1856 may permit the organization to have a lesser number of beneficiaries (but not less than 500 in the case of an organization that is a provider-sponsored organization) if the organization primarily serves individuals residing outside of urbanized areas.

“(2) EXCEPTION FOR MSA PLAN.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply with respect to a contract that relates only to an MSA plan.

“(3) ALLOWING TRANSITION.—The Secretary may waive the requirement of paragraph (1) during the first 3 contract years with respect to an organization.

“(1) PERIOD.—Each contract under this section shall be for a term of at least one year, as determined by the Secretary, and may be made automatically renewable from term to term in the absence of notice by either party of intention to terminate at the end of the current term.

“(2) TERMINATION AUTHORITY.—In accordance with procedures established under subsection (h), the Secretary may at any time terminate any such contract if the Secretary determines that the organization—

“(4) PREVIOUS TERMINATIONS.—The Secretary may not enter into a contract with a MedicarePlus organization if a previous contract with that organization under this section was terminated at the request of the organization within the preceding five-year period, except in circumstances which warrant special consideration, as determined by the Secretary.

“(5) CONTRACTING AUTHORITY.—The authority vested in the Secretary by this part may be performed without regard to such provisions of law or regulations relating to the making, performance, amendment, or modification of contracts of the United States as the Secretary may determine to be inconsistent with the furtherance of the purpose of this title.

“(d) PROTECTIONS AGAINST FRAUD AND BENEFICIARY PROTECTIONS.—

“(1) INSPECTION AND AUDIT.—Each contract under this section shall provide that the Secretary, or any person or organization designated by the Secretary—

“(A) shall have the right to inspect or otherwise evaluate (i) the quality, appropriateness, and timeliness of services performed under the contract and (ii) the facilities of the organization when there is reasonable evidence of some need for such inspection, and

“(B) shall have the right to audit and inspect any books and records of the MedicarePlus organization that pertain (i) to the ability of the organization to bear the risk of potential financial losses, or (ii) to services performed or determinations of amounts payable under the contract.

“(2) ENROLLEE NOTICE AT TIME OF TERMINATION.—Each contract under this section shall require the organization to provide (and pay for) written notice in advance of the contract’s termination, as well as a description of alternatives for obtaining benefits under this title, to each individual enrolled with the organization under this part.

“(3) DISCLOSURE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Each MedicarePlus organization shall, in accordance with regulations of the Secretary, report to the Secretary financial information which shall include the following:

“(i) Such information as the Secretary may require demonstrating that the organization has a fiscally sound operation.

“(ii) A copy of the report, if any, filed with the Health Care Financing Administration containing the information required to be reported under section 1124 by disclosing entities.

“(iii) A description of transactions, as specified by the Secretary, between the organization and a party in interest. Such transactions shall include—

“(I) any sale or exchange, or leasing of any property between the organization and a party in interest;

“(II) any furnishing for consideration of goods, services (including management services), or facilities between the organization and a party in interest, but not including salaries paid to employees for services provided in the normal course of their employment and health services provided to members by hospitals and other providers and by staff, medical group (or groups), individual practice association (or associations), or any combination thereof; and “(III) any lending of money or other extension of credit between an organization and a party in interest.

The Secretary may require that information reported respecting an organization which controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with, another entity be in the form of a consolidated financial statement for the organization and such entity.

“(B) PARTY IN INTEREST DEFINED.—For the purposes of this paragraph, the term ‘party in interest’ means—

“(i) any director, officer, partner, or employee responsible for management or administration of a MedicarePlus organization, any person who is directly or indirectly the beneficial owner of more than 5 percent of the equity of the organization, any person who is the beneficial owner of a mortgage, deed of trust, note, or other interest secured by, and valuing more than 5 percent of the organization, and, in the case of a MedicarePlus organization organized as a nonprofit corporation, an incorporator or member of such corporation under applicable State corporation law;

“(C) ACCESS TO INFORMATION.—Each MedicarePlus organization shall make the information reported pursuant to subparagraph (A) available to its enrollees upon reasonable request.

“(4) LOAN INFORMATION.—The contract shall require the organization to notify the Secretary of loans and other special financial arrangements which are made between the organization and subcontractors, affiliates, and related parties.

“(e) ADDITIONAL CONTRACT TERMS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The contract shall contain such other terms and conditions not inconsistent with this part (including requiring the organization to provide the Secretary with such information) as the Secretary may find necessary and appropriate.

“(2) COST-SHARING IN ENROLLMENT-RELATED COSTS.—The contract with a MedicarePlus organization shall require the payment to the Secretary for the organization’s pro rata share (as determined by the Secretary) of the estimated costs to be incurred by the Secretary in carrying out section 1851 (relating to enrollment and dissemination of information). Such payments are appropriated to defray the costs described in the preceding sentence, to remain available until expended.

“(f) PROMPT PAYMENT BY MEDICAREPLUS ORGANIZATION.—

“(1) REQUIREMENT.—A contract under this part shall require a MedicarePlus organization to provide prompt payment (consistent with the provisions of sections 1816(c)(2) and 1842(c)(2)) of claims submitted for services and supplies furnished to individuals pursuant to the contract, if the services or supplies are not furnished under a contract between the organization and the provider or supplier.

“(2) SECRETARY’S OPTION TO BYPASS NONCOMPLYING ORGANIZATION.—In the case of a MedicarePlus eligible organization which the Secretary determines, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, has failed to make payments of amounts in compliance with paragraph (1), the Secretary may provide for direct payment of the amounts owed to providers and suppliers for covered services and supplies furnished to individuals enrolled under this part under the contract. If the Secretary provides for the direct payments, the Secretary shall provide for an appropriate reduction in the amount of payments otherwise made to the organization under this part to reflect the amount of the Secretary’s payments (and the Secretary’s costs in making the payments).

“(g) INTERMEDIATE SANCTIONS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If the Secretary determines that a MedicarePlus organization with a contract under this section—

“(A) fails substantially to provide medically necessary items and services that are required (under law or under the contract) to be provided to an individual covered under the contract, if the failure has adversely affected (or has substantial likelihood of adversely affecting) the individual;

“(B) imposes net monthly premiums on individuals enrolled under this part in excess of the net monthly premiums permitted;

“(C) acts to expel or to refuse to re-enroll an individual in violation of the provisions of this part;

“(D) engages in any practice that would reasonably be expected to have the effect of denying or discouraging enrollment (except as permitted by this part) by eligible individuals with the organization whose medical condition or history indicates a need for substantial future medical services;

“(E) misrepresents or falsifies information that is furnished—

“(i) to the Secretary under this part, or

“(ii) to an individual or to any other entity under this part;

“(F) fails to comply with the requirements of section 1852(j)(3); or “(G) employs or contracts with any individual or entity that is excluded from participation under this title under section 1128 or 1128A for the provision of health care, utilization review, medical social work, or administrative services or employs or contracts with any entity for the provision (directly or indirectly) through such an excluded individual or entity of such services;

“(B) suspension of enrollment of individuals under this part after the date the Secretary notifies the organization of a determination under paragraph (1) and until the Secretary is satisfied that the basis for such determination has been corrected and is not likely to recur, or

“(3) OTHER INTERMEDIATE SANCTIONS.—In the case of a MedicarePlus organization for which the Secretary makes a determination under subsection (c)(2) the basis of which is not described in paragraph (1), the Secretary may apply the following intermediate sanctions:

“(A) Civil money penalties of not more than $25,000 for each determination under subsection (c)(2) if the deficiency that is the basis of the determination has directly adversely affected (or has the substantial likelihood of adversely affecting) an individual covered under the organization’s contract

“(B) Civil money penalties of not more than $10,000 for each week beginning after the initiation of procedures by the Secretary under subsection (g) during which the deficiency that is the basis of a determination under subsection (c)(2) exists.

“(h) PROCEDURES FOR TERMINATION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may terminate a contract with a MedicarePlus organization under this section in accordance with formal investigation and compliance procedures established by the Secretary under which—

“(A) the Secretary provides the organization with the reasonable opportunity to develop and implement a corrective action plan to correct the deficiencies that were the basis of the Secretary’s determination under subsection (c)(2);

“(B) the Secretary provides the organization with reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing (including the right to appeal an initial decision) before terminating the contract.

“(2) CIVIL MONEY PENALTIES.—The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) shall apply to a civil money penalty under subsection (f) or under paragraph (2) or (3) of subsection (g) in the same manner as they apply to a civil money penalty or proceeding under section 1128A(a).

“(3) EXCEPTION FOR IMMINENT AND SERIOUS RISK TO HEALTH.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply if the Secretary determines that a delay in termination, resulting from compliance with the procedures specified in such paragraph prior to termination, would pose an imminent and serious risk to the health of individuals enrolled under this part with the organization.

“(II) the provider has failed to comply substantially with conditions for a program or provider under this section or section 1932; and “(i) Condition the continuation of the PACE program agreement upon timely execution of a corrective action plan.

“(ii) Withhold some or all further payments under the PACE program agreement under this section or section 1932 with respect to PACE program services furnished by such provider until the deficiencies have been corrected.

“(8) TIMELY CONSIDERATION OF APPLICATIONS FOR PACE PROGRAM PROVIDER STATUS.—In considering an application for PACE provider program status, the application shall be deemed approved unless the Secretary, within 90 days after the date of the submission of the application to the Secretary, either denies such request in writing or informs the applicant in writing with respect to any additional information that is needed in order to make a final determination with respect to the application. After the date the Secretary receives such additional information, the application shall be deemed approved unless the Secretary, within 90 days of such date, denies such request.

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall issue interim final or final regulations to carry out this section and section 1932.

“(B) FLEXIBILITY.—The Secretary (in close consultation with State administering agencies) may modify or waive such provisions of the PACE protocol in order to provide for reasonable flexibility in adapting the PACE service delivery model to the needs of particular organizations (such as those in rural areas or those that may determine it appropriate to use non-staff physicians accordingly to State licensing law requirements) under this section and section 1932 where such flexibility is not inconsistent with and would not impair the essential elements, objectives, and requirements of the this section, including—

“(i) the focus on frail elderly qualifying individuals who require the level of care provided in a nursing facility;

“(ii) the delivery of comprehensive, integrated acute and long-term care services;

“(g) WAIVERS OF REQUIREMENTS.—With respect to carrying out a PACE program under this section, the following requirements of this title (and regulations relating to such requirements) are waived and shall not apply:

“(5) Sections 1862(a)(1) and 1862(a)(9), insofar as they may prevent payment for PACE program services to individuals enrolled under PACE programs.

“(B) after the transition period is equal to the adjusted Federal per diem rate applicable to the facility.

“(2) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection:

“(A) COVERED SKILLED NURSING FACILITY SERVICES.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘covered skilled nursing facility services’—

“(I) means post-hospital extended care services as defined in section 1861(i) for which benefits are provided under part A; and “(II) includes all items and services (other than services described in clause (ii)) for which payment may be made under part B and which are furnished to an individual who is a resident of a skilled nursing facility during the period in which the individual is provided covered post-hospital extended care services.

“(i) the first cost reporting period (as defined in subparagraph (D)) of a facility, the ‘non-Federal percentage’ is 75 percent and the ‘Federal percentage’ is 25 percent;

“(ii) the next cost reporting period of such facility, the ‘non-Federal percentage’ is 50 percent and the ‘Federal percentage’ is 50 percent; and “(iii) the subsequent cost reporting period of such facility, the ‘non-Federal percentage’ is 25 percent and the ‘Federal percentage’ is 75 percent.

“(D) FIRST COST REPORTING PERIOD.—The term ‘first cost reporting period’ means, with respect to a skilled nursing facility, the first cost reporting period of the facility beginning on or after July 1, 1998.

“(ii) TREATMENT OF NEW SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES.—In the case of a skilled nursing facility that does not have a settled cost report for a cost reporting period before July 1, 1998, payment for such services shall be made under this subsection as if all services were furnished after the transition period.

“(3) DETERMINATION OF FACILITY SPECIFIC PER DIEM RATES.—The Secretary shall determine a facility-specific per diem rate for each skilled nursing facility for a cost reporting period as follows:

“(A) DETERMINING BASE PAYMENTS.—The Secretary shall determine, on a per diem basis, the total of—

“(i) the allowable costs of extended care services for the facility for cost reporting periods beginning in 1995 with appropriate adjustments (as determined by the Secretary) to non-settled cost reports, and

“(ii) an estimate of the amounts that would be payable under part B (disregarding any applicable deductibles, coinsurance and copayments) for covered skilled nursing facility services described in paragraph (2)(A)(i)(II) furnished during such period to an individual who is a resident of the facility, regardless of whether or not the payment was made to the facility or to another entity.

“(B) UPDATE TO COST REPORTING PERIOD BEFORE FIRST COST REPORTING PERIOD.—The Secretary shall update the amount determined under subparagraph (A), for each cost reporting period after the cost reporting period described in subparagraph (A)(i) and up to the cost reporting period immediately preceding the first cost reporting period, by the skilled nursing facility historical trend factor.

“(C) UPDATING TO APPLICABLE COST REPORTING PERIOD.—The Secretary shall further update such amount for each cost reporting period beginning with the first cost reporting period and up to and including the cost reporting period involved by a factor equal to the skilled nursing facility market basket percentage increase.

“(4) FEDERAL PER DIEM RATE.—

“(A) DETERMINATION OF HISTORICAL PER DIEM FOR FREESTANDING FACILITIES.—For each freestanding skilled nursing facility that received payments for post-hospital extended care services during a cost reporting period beginning in fiscal year 1995 and that was subject to (and not exempted from) the per diem limits referred to in paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a) (and facilities described in subsection (d), if appropriate), the Secretary shall estimate, on a per diem basis for such cost reporting period, the total of—

“(i) the allowable costs of extended care services for the facility for cost reporting periods beginning in 1995 with appropriate adjustments (as determined by the Secretary) to non-settled cost reports, and

“(ii) an estimate of the amounts that would be payable under part B (disregarding any applicable deductibles, coinsurance and copayments) for covered skilled nursing facility services described in paragraph (2)(A)(i)(II) furnished during such period to an individual who is a resident of the facility, regardless of whether or not the payment was made to the facility or to another entity.

“(B) UPDATE TO FISCAL YEAR 1998.—The Secretary shall update the amount determined under subparagraph (A), for each cost reporting period after the cost reporting period described in subparagraph (A)(i) and up to the cost reporting period immediately preceding the first cost reporting period, by the skilled nursing facility historical trend factor for such period.

“(C) COMPUTATION OF STANDARDIZED PER DIEM RATE.—The Secretary shall standardize the amount updated under subparagraph (B) for each facility by—

“(i) adjusting for variations among facility by area in the average facility wage level per diem, and

“(ii) adjusting for variations in case mix per diem among facilities.

“(D) COMPUTATION OF WEIGHTED AVERAGE PER DIEM RATE.—The Secretary shall compute a weighted average per diem rate by computing an average of the standardized amounts computed under subparagraph (C), weighted for each facility by number of days of extended care services furnished during the cost reporting period referred to in subparagraph (A). The Secretary may compute and apply such average separately for facilities located in urban and rural areas (as defined in section 1886(d)(2)(D)).

“(E) UPDATING.—

“(i) FISCAL YEAR 1998.—For fiscal year 1998, the Secretary shall compute for each skilled nursing facility an unadjusted Federal per diem rate equal to the weighted average per diem rate computed under subparagraph (D) and applicable to the facility increased by skilled nursing facility market basket percentage change for the fiscal year involved.

“(ii) SUBSEQUENT FISCAL YEARS.—For each subsequent fiscal year the Secretary shall compute for each skilled nursing facility an unadjusted Federal per diem rate equal to the Federal per diem rate computed under this subparagraph for the previous fiscal year and applicable to the facility increased by the skilled nursing facility market basket percentage change for the fiscal year involved.

“(F) ADJUSTMENT FOR CASE MIX CREEP.—Insofar as the Secretary determines that such adjustments under subparagraph (G)(i) for a previous fiscal year (or estimates that such adjustments for a future fiscal year did (or are likely to) result in a change in aggregate payments under this subsection during the fiscal year that are a result of changes in the coding or classification of residents that do not reflect real changes in case mix, the Secretary may adjust unadjusted Federal per diem rates for subsequent years so as to discount the effect of such coding or classification changes.

“(G) APPLICATION TO SPECIFIC FACILITIES.—The Secretary shall compute for each skilled nursing facility for each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 1998) an adjusted Federal per diem rate equal to the unadjusted Federal per diem rate determined under subparagraph (E), as adjusted under subparagraph (F), and as further adjusted as follows:

“(i) ADJUSTMENT FOR CASE MIX.—The Secretary shall provide for an appropriate adjustment to account for case mix. Such adjustment shall be based on a resident classification system, established by the Secretary, that accounts for the relative resource utilization of different patient types. The case mix adjustment shall be based on resident assessment data and other data that the Secretary considers appropriate.

“(ii) ADJUSTMENT FOR GEOGRAPHIC VARIATIONS IN LABOR COSTS.—The Secretary shall adjust the portion of such per diem rate attributable to wages and wage-related costs for the area in which the facility is located compared to the national average of such costs using an appropriate wage index as determined by the Secretary. Such adjustment shall be done in a manner that does not result in aggregate payments under this subsection that are greater or less than those that would otherwise be made if such adjustment had not been made.

“(H) PUBLICATION OF INFORMATION ON PER DIEM RATES.—The Secretary shall provide for publication in the Federal Register, before the July 1 preceding each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 1999), of—

“(i) the unadjusted Federal per diem rates to be applied to days of covered skilled nursing facility services furnished during the fiscal year, “(ii) the case mix classification system to be applied under subparagraph (G)(i) with respect to such services during the fiscal year, and “(iii) the factors to be applied in making the area wage adjustment under subparagraph (G)(ii) with respect to such services.

“(5) SKILLED NURSING FACILITY MARKET BASKET INDEX, PERCENTAGE, AND HISTORICAL TREND FACTOR.—For purposes of this subsection:

“(A) SKILLED NURSING FACILITY MARKET BASKET INDEX.—The Secretary shall establish a skilled nursing facility market basket index that reflects changes over time in the prices of an appropriate mix of goods and services included in covered skilled nursing facility services.

“(B) SKILLED NURSING FACILITY MARKET BASKET PERCENTAGE.—The term ‘skilled nursing facility market basket percentage’ means, for a fiscal year or other annual period and as calculated by the Secretary, the percentage change in the skilled nursing facility market basket index (established under subparagraph (A)) from the midpoint of the prior fiscal year (or period) to the midpoint of the fiscal year (or other period) involved.

“(C) SKILLED NURSING FACILITY HISTORICAL TREND FACTOR.—The term ‘skilled nursing facility historical trend factor’ means, for a fiscal year or other annual period and as calculated by the Secretary, the percentage change in the skilled nursing facility routine cost index (used in applying per diem routine cost limits under subsection (a)) from the midpoint of the prior fiscal year (or period) to the midpoint of the fiscal year (or other period) involved, reduced (on an annualized basis) by 1 percentage point.

“(6) SUBMISSION OF RESIDENT ASSESSMENT DATA.—A skilled nursing facility shall provide the Secretary, in a manner and within the timeframes prescribed by the Secretary, the resident assessment data necessary to develop and implement the rates under this subsection. For purposes of meeting such requirement, a skilled nursing facility may submit the resident assessment data required under section 1819(b)(3), using the standard instrument designated by the State under section 1819(e)(5).

“(7) TRANSITION FOR MEDICARE LOW VOLUME SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES AND SWING BED HOSPITALS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall determine an appropriate manner in which to apply this subsection to the facilities described in subparagraph (B), taking into account the purposes of this subsection, and shall provide that at the end of the transition period (as defined in paragraph (2)(E)) such facilities shall be paid only under this subsection. Payment shall not be made under this subsection to such facilities for cost reporting periods beginning before such date (not earlier than July 1, 1999) as the Secretary specifies.

“(B) FACILITIES DESCRIBED.—The facilities described in this subparagraph are—

“(i) skilled nursing facilities for which payment is made for routine service costs during a cost reporting period, ending prior to the date of the implementation of this paragraph, on the basis of prospective payments under section 1888(d), or

(i) in the opening paragraph, by striking “paragraphs (3) and (6)” and inserting “paragraphs (3), (6), and (7)”, and

(ii) in paragraph (7), after “skilled nursing facilities”, by inserting “, or by others under arrangements with them made by the facility”.

(E) Section 1866(a)(1)(H) (42 U.S.C. 1395cc(a)(1)(H)) is amended—

(i) by redesignating clauses (i) and (ii) as subclauses (I) and (II) respectively,

(ii) by inserting “(i)” after “(H)”, and

(iii) by adding after clause (i), as so redesignated, the following new clause:

“(ii) in the case of skilled nursing facilities which provide covered skilled nursing facility services—

“(I) that are furnished to an individual who is a resident of the skilled nursing facility, and to have items and services (other than services described in section 1888(e)(2)(A)(ii)) furnished by the skilled nursing facility or otherwise under arrangements (as defined in section 1861(w)(1)) made by the skilled nursing facility.”.

(c) MEDICAL REVIEW PROCESS.—In order to ensure that medicare beneficiaries are furnished appropriate services in skilled nursing facilities, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall establish and implement a thorough medical review process to examine the effects of the amendments made by this section on the quality of covered skilled nursing facility services furnished to medicare beneficiaries. In developing such a medical review process, the Secretary shall place a particular emphasis on the quality of non-routine covered services and physicians’ services for which payment is made under title XVIII of the Social Security Act for which payment is made under section 1848 of such Act.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section are effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after July 1, 1998; except that the amendments made by subsection (b) shall apply to items and services furnished on or after July 1, 1998.

SEC. 10402. PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR INPATIENT REHABILITATION HOSPITAL SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1886 (42 U.S.C. 1395ww) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(1) PAYMENT DURING TRANSITION PERIOD.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding section 1814(b), but subject to the provisions of section 1813, the amount of the payment with respect to the operating and capital costs of inpatient hospital services of a rehabilitation hospital or a rehabilitation unit (in this subsection referred to as a ‘rehabilitation facility’), in a cost reporting period beginning on or after October 1, 2000, and before October 1, 2003, is equal to the sum of—

“(i) the TEFRA percentage (as defined in subparagraph (C)) of the amount that would have been paid under part A with respect to such costs if this subsection did not apply, and

“(ii) the prospective payment percentage (as defined in subparagraph (C)) of the product of (I) the per unit payment rate established under this subsection for the fiscal year in which the payment unit of service occurs, and (II) the number of such payment units occurring in the cost reporting period.

“(B) FULLY IMPLEMENTED SYSTEM.—Notwithstanding section 1814(b), but subject to the provisions of section 1813, the amount of the payment with respect to the operating and capital costs of inpatient hospital services of a rehabilitation facility for a payment unit in a cost reporting period beginning on or after October 1, 2003, is equal to the per unit payment rate established under this subsection for the fiscal year in which the payment unit of service occurs.

“(C) TEFRA AND PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT PERCENTAGES SPECIFIED.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), for a cost reporting period beginning—

“(i) on or after October 1, 2000, and before October 1, 2001, the ‘TEFRA percentage’ is 75 percent and the ‘prospective payment percentage’ is 25 percent;

“(ii) on or after October 1, 2001, and before October 1, 2002, the ‘TEFRA percentage’ is 50 percent and the ‘prospective payment percentage’ is 50 percent; and “(iii) on or after October 1, 2002, and before October 1, 2003, the ‘TEFRA percentage’ is 25 percent and the ‘prospective payment percentage’ is 75 percent.

“(D) PAYMENT UNIT.—For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘payment unit’ means a discharge, day of inpatient hospital services, or other unit of payment defined by the Secretary.

“(2) PATIENT CASE MIX GROUPS.—

“(A) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary shall establish—

“(i) classes of patients of rehabilitation facilities (each in this subsection referred to as a ‘case mix group’), based on such factors as the Secretary deems appropriate, which may include impairment, age, related prior hospitalization, comorbidities, and functional capability of the patient; and “(ii) a method of classifying specific patients in rehabilitation facilities within these groups.

“(B) WEIGHTING FACTORS.—For each case mix group the Secretary shall assign an appropriate weighting which reflects the relative facility resources used with respect to patients classified within that group compared to patients classified within other groups.

“(C) ADJUSTMENTS FOR CASE MIX.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall from time to time adjust the classifications and weighting factors established under this paragraph as appropriate to reflect changes in treatment patterns, technology, case mix, number of payment units for which payment is made under this title, and other factors which may affect the relative use of resources. Such adjustments shall be made in a manner so that changes in aggregate payments under the classification system are a result of real changes and are not a result of changes in coding that are unrelated to real changes in case mix.

“(ii) ADJUSTMENT.—Insofar as the Secretary determines that such adjustments for a previous fiscal year (or estimates that such adjustments for a future fiscal year) did (or are likely to) result in a change in aggregate payments under the classification system during the fiscal year that are a result of changes in the coding or classification of patients that do not reflect real changes in case mix, the Secretary shall adjust the per payment unit payment rate for subsequent years so as to discount the effect of such coding or classification changes.

“(D) DATA COLLECTION.—The Secretary is authorized to require rehabilitation facilities that provide inpatient hospital services to submit such data as the Secretary deems necessary to establish and administer the prospective payment system under this subsection.

“(3) PAYMENT RATE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall determine a prospective payment rate for each payment unit for which such rehabilitation facility is entitled to receive payment under this title. Subject to subparagraph (B), such rate for payment units occurring during a fiscal year shall be based on the average payment per payment unit under this title for inpatient operating and capital costs of rehabilitation facilities using the most recent data available (as estimated by the Secretary as of the date of establishment of the system) adjusted—

“(i) by updating such per-payment-unit amount to the fiscal year involved by the weighted average of the applicable percentage increases provided under subsection (b)(3)(B)(ii) (for cost reporting periods beginning during the fiscal year) covering the period from the midpoint of the period for such data through the midpoint of fiscal year 2000 and by an increase factor (described in subparagraph (C)) specified by the Secretary for subsequent fiscal years up to the fiscal year involved;

“(ii) by reducing such rates by a factor equal to the proportion of payments under this subsection (as estimated by the Secretary) based on prospective payment amounts which are additional payments described in paragraph (4) (relating to outlier and related payments) or paragraph (7);

“(iii) for variations among rehabilitation facilities by area under paragraph (6);

“(iv) by the weighting factors established under paragraph (2)(B); and “(v) by such other factors as the Secretary determines are necessary to properly reflect variations in necessary costs of treatment among rehabilitation facilities.

“(B) BUDGET NEUTRAL RATES.—The Secretary shall establish the prospective payment amounts under this subsection for payment units during fiscal years 2001 through 2004 at levels such that, in the Secretary’s estimation, the amount of total payments under this subsection for such fiscal years (including any payment adjustments pursuant to paragraphs (4), (6), and (7)) shall be equal to 99 percent of the amount of payments that would have been made under this title during the fiscal years for operating and capital costs of rehabilitation facilities had this subsection not been enacted. In establishing such payment amounts, the Secretary shall consider the effects of the prospective payment system established under this subsection on the total number of payment units from rehabilitation facilities and other factors described in subparagraph (A).

“(C) INCREASE FACTOR.—For purposes of this subsection for payment units in each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 2001), the Secretary shall establish an increase factor. Such factor shall be based on an appropriate percentage increase in a market basket of goods and services comprising services for which payment is made under this subsection, which may be the market basket percentage increase described in subsection (b)(3)(B)(iii).

“(A) OUTLIERS.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may provide for an additional payment to a rehabilitation facility for patients in a case mix group, based upon the patient being classified as an outlier based on an unusual length of stay, costs, or other factors specified by the Secretary.

“(ii) PAYMENT BASED ON MARGINAL COST OF CARE.—The amount of such additional payment under clause (i) shall be determined by the Secretary and shall approximate the marginal cost of care beyond the cutoff point applicable under clause (i).

“(iii) TOTAL PAYMENTS.—The total amount of the additional payments made under this subparagraph for payment units in a fiscal year may not exceed 5 percent of the total payments projected or estimated to be made based on prospective payment rates for payment units in that year.

“(B) ADJUSTMENT.—The Secretary may provide for such adjustments to the payment amounts under this subsection as the Secretary deems appropriate to take into account the unique circumstances of rehabilitation facilities located in Alaska and Hawaii.

“(5) PUBLICATION.—The Secretary shall provide for publication in the Federal Register, on or before September 1 before each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 2001, of the classification and weighting factors for case mix groups under paragraph (2) for such fiscal year and a description of the methodology and data used in computing the prospective payment rates under this subsection for that fiscal year.

“(6) AREA WAGE ADJUSTMENT.—The Secretary shall adjust the proportion, (as estimated by the Secretary from time to time) of rehabilitation facilities’ costs which are attributable to wages and wage-related costs, of the prospective payment rates computed under paragraph (3) for area differences in wage levels by a factor (established by the Secretary) reflecting the relative hospital wage level in the geographic area of the rehabilitation facility compared to the national average wage level for such facilities. Not later than October 1, 2001 (and at least every 36 months thereafter), the Secretary shall update the factor under the preceding sentence on the basis of a survey conducted by the Secretary (and updated as appropriate) of the wages and wage-related costs incurred in furnishing rehabilitation services. Any adjustments or updates made under this paragraph for a fiscal year shall be made in a manner that assures that the aggregated payments under this subsection in the fiscal year are not greater or less than those that would have been made in the year without such adjustment.

“(7) ADDITIONAL ADJUSTMENTS.—The Secretary may provide by regulation for—

“(A) an additional payment to take into account indirect costs of medical education and the special circumstances of hospitals that serve a significantly disproportionate number of low-income patients in a manner similar to that provided under subparagraphs (B) and (F), respectively, of subsection (d)(5); and

“(B) such other exceptions and adjustments to payment amounts under this subsection in a manner similar to that provided under subsection (d)(5)(I) in relation to payments under subsection (d).

“(A) the establishment of case mix groups, of the methodology for the classification of patients within such groups, and of the appropriate weighting factors thereof under paragraph (2), “(B) the establishment of the prospective payment rates under paragraph (3), “(C) the establishment of outlier and special payments under paragraph (4), “(D) the establishment of area wage adjustments under paragraph (6), and

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 1886(b) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395ww(b)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1), by inserting “and other than a rehabilitation facility described in subsection (j)(1)” after “subsection (d)(1)(B)”, and

(2) in paragraph (3)(B)(i), by inserting “and subsection (j)” after “For purposes of subsection (d)”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 2000, except that the Secretary of Health and Human Services may require the submission of data under section 1886(j)(2)(D) of the Social Security Act (as added by subsection (a)) on and after the date of the enactment of this section.

(b) REDUCTION IN PAYMENTS FOR OTHER COSTS.—Section 1861(v)(1)(S)(ii)(II) (42 U.S.C. 1395x(v)(1)(S)(ii)(II)) is amended by striking “through 1998” and inserting “through 1999 and during fiscal year 2000 before January 1, 2000”.

SEC. 10413. PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT SYSTEM FOR HOSPITAL OUTPATIENT DEPARTMENT SERVICES.

“(1) IN GENERAL.—With respect to hospital outpatient services designated by the Secretary (in this section referred to as ‘covered OPD services’) and furnished during a year beginning with 1999, the amount of payment under this part shall be determined under a prospective payment system established by the Secretary in accordance with this subsection.

“(2) SYSTEM REQUIREMENTS.—Under the payment system—

“(A) the Secretary shall develop a classification system for covered OPD services;

“(B) the Secretary may establish groups of covered OPD services, within the classification system described in subparagraph (A), so that services classified within each group are comparable clinically and with respect to the use of resources;

“(C) the Secretary shall, using data on claims from 1996 and using data from the most recent available cost reports, establish relative payment weights for covered OPD services (and any groups of such services described in subparagraph (B)) based on median hospital costs and shall determine projections of the frequency of utilization of each such service (or group of services) in 1999;

“(D) the Secretary shall determine a wage adjustment factor to adjust the portion of payment and coinsurance attributable to labor-related costs for relative differences in labor and labor-related costs across geographic regions in a budget neutral manner;

“(E) the Secretary shall establish other adjustments, in a budget neutral manner, as determined to be necessary to ensure equitable payments, such as outlier adjustments, adjustments to account for variations in coinsurance payments for procedures with similar resource costs, or adjustments for certain classes of hospitals; and

estimate the total amounts that would be payable from the Trust Fund under this part for covered OPD services in 1999, determined without regard to this subsection, as though the deductible under section 1833(b) did not apply, and as though the coinsurance described in section 1866(a)(2)(A)(ii) (as in effect before the date of the enactment of this subsection) continued to apply.

“(B) UNADJUSTED COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this subsection, subject to clause (ii), the ‘unadjusted copayment amount’ applicable to a covered OPD service (or group of such services) is 20 percent of national median of the charges for the service (or services within the group) furnished during 1996, updated to 1999 using the Secretary’s estimate of charge growth during the period.

“(ii) ADJUSTED TO BE 20 PERCENT WHEN FULLY PHASED IN.—If the pre-deductible payment percentage for a covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in a year would be equal to or exceed 80 percent, then the unadjusted copayment amount shall be 25 percent of amount determined under subparagraph (D)(i).

“(i) FOR 1999.—

“(I) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish a 1999 conversion factor for determining the medicare pre-deductible OPD fee payment amounts for each covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in 1999. Such conversion factor shall be established on the basis of the weights and frequencies described in paragraph (2)(C) and in a manner such that the sum for all services and groups of the products (described in subclause (II) for each such service or group) equals the total projected amount described in subparagraph (A).

“(II) PRODUCT DESCRIBED.—The product described in this subclause, for a service or group, is the product of the medicare pre-deductible OPD fee payment amounts (taking into account appropriate adjustments described in paragraphs (2)(D) and (2)(E)) and the frequencies for such service or group.

“(ii) SUBSEQUENT YEARS.—Subject to paragraph (8)(B), the Secretary shall establish a conversion factor for covered OPD services furnished in subsequent years in an amount equal to the conversion factor established under this subparagraph and applicable to such services furnished in the previous year increased by the OPD payment increase factor specified under clause (iii) for the year involved.

“(I) market basket percentage increase (applicable under section 1886(b)(3)(B)(iii) to hospital discharges occurring during the fiscal year ending in such year, and

“(II) in the case of a covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in a year in which the pre-deductible payment percentage would not exceed 80 percent, 3.5 percentage points, but in no case greater than such number of percentage points as will result in the pre-deductible payment percentage exceeding 80 percent.

In applying the previous sentence for years beginning with 2000, the Secretary may substitute for the market basket percentage increase under subclause (I) an annual percentage increase that is computed and applied with respect to covered OPD services furnished in a year in the same manner as the market basket percentage increase is determined and applied to inpatient hospital services for discharges occurring in a fiscal year.

“(D) PRE-DEDUCTIBLE PAYMENT PERCENTAGE.—The pre-deductible payment percentage for a covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in a year is equal to the ratio of—

“(i) the conversion factor established under subparagraph (C) for the year, multiplied by the weighting factor established under paragraph (2)(C) for the service (or group), to

“(i) the conversion factor computed under subparagraph (C) for the year, and

“(ii) the relative payment weight (determined under paragraph (2)(C)) for the service or group.

“(4) MEDICARE PAYMENT AMOUNT.—The amount of payment made from the Trust Fund under this part for a covered OPD service (and such services classified within a group) furnished in a year is determined as follows:

“(A) FEE SCHEDULE AND COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—Add (i) the medicare OPD fee schedule amount (computed under paragraph (3)(E)) for the service or group and year, and (ii) the unadjusted copayment amount (determined under paragraph (3)(B)) for the service or group.

“(B) SUBTRACT APPLICABLE DEDUCTIBLE.—Reduce the sum determined under subparagraph (A) by the amount of the deductible under section 1833(b), to the extent applicable.

“(C) APPLY PAYMENT PROPORTION TO REMAINDER.—Multiply the amount so determined under subparagraph (B) by the pre-deductible payment percentage (as determined under paragraph (3)(D)) for the service or group and year involved.

“(D) LABOR-RELATED ADJUSTMENT.—The amount of payment is the product determined under subparagraph (C) with the labor-related portion of such product adjusted for relative differences in the cost of labor and other factors determined by the Secretary, as computed under paragraph (2)(D).

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the copayment amount under this subsection is determined as follows:

“(i) UNADJUSTED COPAYMENT.—Compute the amount by which the amount described in paragraph (4)(B) exceeds the amount of payment determined under paragraph (4)(C).

“(ii) LABOR ADJUSTMENT.—The copayment amount is the difference determined under clause (i) with the labor-related portion of such difference adjusted for relative differences in the cost of labor and other factors determined by the Secretary, as computed under paragraphs (2)(D). The adjustment under this clause shall be made in a manner that does not result in any change in the aggregate copayments made in any year if the adjustment had not been made.

“(B) ELECTION TO OFFER REDUCED COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—The Secretary shall establish a procedure under which a hospital, before the beginning of a year (beginning with 1999), may elect to reduce the copayment amount otherwise established under subparagraph (A) for some or all covered OPD services to an amount that is not less than 25 percent of the medicare OPD fee schedule amount (computed under paragraph (3)(E)) for the service involved, adjusted for relative differences in the cost of labor and other factors determined by the Secretary, as computed under subparagraphs (D) and (E) of paragraph (2). Under such procedures, such reduced copayment amount may not be further reduced or increased during the year involved and the hospital may disseminate information on the reduction of copayment amount effected under this subparagraph.

“(A) PERIODIC REVIEW.—The Secretary may periodically review and revise the groups, the relative payment weights, and the wage and other adjustments described in paragraph (2) to take into account changes in medical practice, changes in technology, the addition of new services, new cost data, and other relevant information and factors.

“(B) BUDGET NEUTRALITY ADJUSTMENT.—If the Secretary makes adjustments under subparagraph (A), then the adjustments for a year may not cause the estimated amount of expenditures under this part for the year to increase or decrease from the estimated amount of expenditures under this part that would have been made if the adjustments had not been made.

“(C) UPDATE FACTOR.—If the Secretary determines under methodologies described in subparagraph (2)(F) that the volume of services paid for under this subsection increased beyond amounts established through those methodologies, the Secretary may appropriately adjust the update to the conversion factor otherwise applicable in a subsequent year.

“(7) SPECIAL RULE FOR AMBULANCE SERVICES.—The Secretary shall pay for hospital outpatient services that are ambulance services on the basis described in the matter in subsection (a)(1) preceding subparagraph (A).

“(8) SPECIAL RULES FOR CERTAIN HOSPITALS.—In the case of hospitals described in section 1886(d)(1)(B)(v)—

“(A) the system under this subsection shall not apply to covered OPD services furnished before January 1, 2000; and

“(B) the Secretary may establish a separate conversion factor for such services in a manner that specifically takes into account the unique costs incurred by such hospitals by virtue of their patient population and service intensity.

“(B) the calculation of base amounts under paragraph (3);

“(C) periodic adjustments made under paragraph (6); and

“(D) the establishment of a separate conversion factor under paragraph (8)(B).”.

(b) COINSURANCE.—Section 1866(a)(2)(A)(ii) (42 U.S.C. 1395cc(a)(2)(A)(ii)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“In the case of items and services for which payment is made under part B under the prospective payment system established under section 1833(t), clause (ii) of the first sentence shall be applied by substituting for 20 percent of the reasonable charge, the applicable copayment amount established under section 1833(t)(5).”

(c) TREATMENT OF REDUCTION IN COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—Section 1128A(i)(6) (42 U.S.C. 1320a-7a(i)(6)) is amended—

- (1) by striking “or” at the end of subparagraph (B),
- (2) by striking the period at the end of subparagraph (C) and inserting “; or”, and
- (3) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:
 “(D) a reduction in the copayment amount for covered OPD services under section 1833(t)(5)(B).”

(d) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) APPROVED ASC PROCEDURES PERFORMED IN HOSPITAL OUTPATIENT DEPARTMENTS.—

(A)(i) Section 1833(i)(3)(A) (42 U.S.C. 13951(i)(3)(A)) is amended—

(I) by inserting “before January 1, 1999,” after “furnished”, and

(II) by striking “in a cost reporting period”.

(ii) The amendment made by clause (i) shall apply to services furnished on or after January 1, 1999.

(B) Section 1833(a)(4) (42 U.S.C. 13951(a)(4)) is amended by inserting “or subsection (t)” before the semicolon.

(2) RADIOLOGY AND OTHER DIAGNOSTIC PROCEDURES.—

(A) Section 1833(n)(1)(A) (42 U.S.C. 13951(n)(1)(A)) is amended by inserting “and before January 1, 1999,” after “October 1, 1988,” and after “October 1, 1989.”

(B) Section 1833(a)(2)(E) (42 U.S.C. 13951(a)(2)(E)) is amended by inserting “or, for services or procedures performed on or after January 1, 1999, (t)” before the semicolon.

(3) OTHER HOSPITAL OUTPATIENT SERVICES.—Section 1833(a)(2)(B) (42 U.S.C. 13951(a)(2)(B)) is amended—

(A) in clause (i), by inserting “furnished before January 1, 1999,” after “(i)”,

(B) in clause (ii), by inserting “before January 1, 1999,” after “furnished”,

(C) by redesignating clause (iii) as clause (iv), and

(D) by inserting after clause (ii), the following new clause:

(a) PAYMENT BASED ON FEE SCHEDULE.—

(1) SPECIAL PAYMENT RULES.—Section 1833(a) (42 U.S.C. 13951(a)) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (2) in the matter before subparagraph (A), by inserting “(C),” before “(D)”;

(B) in paragraph (6), by striking “and” at the end;

(2) PAYMENT RATES.—Section 1834 (42 U.S.C. 1395m) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(k) PAYMENT FOR OUTPATIENT THERAPY SERVICES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—With respect to outpatient physical therapy services (which includes outpatient speech-language pathology services) and outpatient occupational therapy services for which payment is determined under this subsection, the payment basis shall be—

“(A) for services furnished during 1998, the amount determined under paragraph (2); or

“(i) the actual charge for the services, or

“(ii) the applicable fee schedule amount (as defined in paragraph (3)) for the services.

“(2) PAYMENT IN 1998 BASED UPON ADJUSTED REASONABLE COSTS.—The amount under this paragraph for services is the lesser of—

“(A) the charges imposed for the services, or

“(B) the adjusted reasonable costs (as defined in paragraph (4)) for the services, less 20 percent of the amount of the charges imposed for such services.

“(3) APPLICABLE FEE SCHEDULE AMOUNT.—In this paragraph, the term ‘applicable fee schedule amount’ means, with respect to services furnished in a year, the fee schedule amount established under section 1848 for such services furnished during the year or, if there is no such fee schedule amount established for such services, for such comparable services as the Secretary specifies.

“(4) ADJUSTED REASONABLE COSTS.—In paragraph (2), the term ‘adjusted reasonable costs’ means reasonable costs determined reduced by—

“(A) 5.8 percent of the reasonable costs for operating costs, and “(B) 10 percent of the reasonable costs for capital costs.

“(5) UNIFORM CODING.—For claims for services submitted on or after April 1, 1998, for which the amount of payment is determined under this subsection, the claim shall include a code (or codes) under a uniform coding system specified by the Secretary that identifies the services furnished.

CHAPTER 3—PAYMENT UNDER PARTS A AND BSEC. 10441. PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title XVIII (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.), as amended by section 10011, is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

“PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES

“SEC. 1895. (a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding section 1861(v), the Secretary shall provide, for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1999, for payments for home health services in accordance with a prospective payment system established by the Secretary under this section.

“(b) SYSTEM OF PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish under this subsection a prospective payment system for payment for all costs of home health services. Under the system under this subsection all services covered and paid on a reasonable cost basis under the medicare home health benefit as of the date of the enactment of this section, including medical supplies, shall be paid for on the basis of a prospective payment amount determined under this subsection and applicable to the services involved. In implementing the system, the Secretary may provide for a transition (of not longer than 4 years) during which a portion of such payment is based on agency-specific costs, but only if such transition does not result in aggregate payments under this title that exceed the aggregate payments that would be made if such a transition did not occur.

“(2) UNIT OF PAYMENT.—In defining a prospective payment amount under the system under this subsection, the Secretary shall consider an appropriate unit of service and the number, type, and duration of visits provided within that unit, potential changes in the mix of services provided within that unit and their cost, and a general system design that provides for continued access to quality services.

“(3) PAYMENT BASIS.—

“(A) INITIAL BASIS.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Under such system the Secretary shall provide for computation of a standard prospective payment amount (or amounts). Such amount (or amounts) shall initially be based on the most current audited cost report data available to the Secretary and shall be computed in a manner so that the total amounts payable under the system for fiscal year 2000 shall be equal to the total amount that would have been made if the system had not been in effect but if the reduction in limits described in clause (ii) had been in effect. Such amount shall be standardized in a manner that eliminates the effect of variations in relative case mix and wage levels among different home health agencies in a budget neutral manner consistent with the case mix and wage level adjustments provided under paragraph (4)(A). Under the system, the Secretary may recognize regional differences or differences based upon whether or not the services or agency are in an urbanized area.

“(ii) REDUCTION.—The reduction described in this clause is a reduction by 15 percent in the cost limits and per beneficiary limits described in section 1861(v)(1)(L), as those limits are in effect on September 30, 1999.

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The standard prospective payment amount (or amounts) shall be adjusted for each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 2001) in a prospective manner specified by the Secretary by the home health market basket percentage increase applicable to the fiscal year involved.

“(ii) HOME HEALTH MARKET BASKET PERCENTAGE INCREASE.—For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘home health market basket percentage increase’ means, with respect to a fiscal year, a percentage (estimated by the Secretary before the beginning of the fiscal year) determined and applied with respect to the mix of goods and services included in home health services in the same manner as the market basket percentage increase under section 1886(b)(3)(B)(iii) is determined and applied to the mix of goods and services comprising inpatient hospital services for the fiscal year.

“(4) PAYMENT COMPUTATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The payment amount for a unit of home health services shall be the applicable standard prospective payment amount adjusted as follows:

“(i) CASE MIX ADJUSTMENT.—The amount shall be adjusted by an appropriate case mix adjustment factor (established under subparagraph (B)).

“(ii) AREA WAGE ADJUSTMENT.—The portion of such amount that the Secretary estimates to be attributable to wages and wage-related costs shall be adjusted for geographic differences in such costs by an area wage adjustment factor (established under subparagraph (C)) for the area in which the services are furnished or such other area as the Secretary may specify.

“(B) ESTABLISHMENT OF CASE MIX ADJUSTMENT FACTORS.—The Secretary shall establish appropriate case mix adjustment factors for home health services in a manner that explains a significant amount of the variation in cost among different units of services.

“(C) ESTABLISHMENT OF AREA WAGE ADJUSTMENT FACTORS.—The Secretary shall establish area wage adjustment factors that reflect the relative level of wages and wage-related costs applicable to the furnishing of home health services in a geographic area compared to the national average applicable level. Such factors may be the factors used by the Secretary for purposes of section 1886(d)(3)(E).

“(5) OUTLIERS.—The Secretary may provide for an addition or adjustment to the payment amount otherwise made in the case of outliers because of unusual variations in the type or amount of medically necessary care. The total amount of the additional payments or payment adjustments made under this paragraph with respect to a fiscal year may not exceed 5 percent of the total payments projected or estimated to be made based on the prospective payment system under this subsection in that year.

“(6) PRORATION OF PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT AMOUNTS.—If a beneficiary elects to transfer to, or receive services from, another home health agency within the period covered by the prospective payment amount, the payment shall be prorated between the home health agencies involved.

“(1) the claim has the unique identifier (provided under section 1842(r)) for the physician who prescribed the services or made the certification described in section 1814(a)(2) or 1835(a)(2)(A); and

“(2) in the case of a service visit described in paragraph (1), (2), (3), or (4) of section 1861(m), the claim has information (coded in an appropriate manner) on the length of time of the service visit, as measured in 15 minute increments.

“(d) LIMITATION ON REVIEW.—There shall be no administrative or judicial review under section 1869, 1878, or otherwise of—

“(2) the definition and application of payment units under subsection (b)(2);

“(4) the establishment of the adjustment for outliers under subsection (b)(3)(C);

“(5) the establishment of case mix and area wage adjustments under subsection (b)(4);

“(6) the establishment of any adjustments for outliers under subsection (b)(5); and “(7) the amounts or types of adjustments under subsection (b)(7).”.

“(i) the reasonable cost of such services, as determined under section 1861(v), or

“(ii) the customary charges with respect to such services, or, if such services are furnished by a public provider of services, or by another provider which demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that a significant portion of its patients are low-income (and requests that payment be made under this provision), free of charge or at nominal charges to the public, the amount determined in accordance with section 1814(b)(2);”.

(B) REQUIRING PAYMENT FOR ALL ITEMS AND SERVICES TO BE MADE TO AGENCY.—

The Secretary may establish rules, consistent with the policies in the previous sentence and paragraph (6), with respect to the application of the previous sentence in the case of medical residency training programs established on or after January 1, 1997.

“(ii) SUBSEQUENT YEARS.—For each subsequent cost reporting period, subject to the limit described in subparagraph (F), the total number of full-time equivalent residents, for determining the hospital’s graduate medical education payment, shall equal the average of the actual full-time equivalent resident counts for the cost reporting period and preceding two cost reporting periods.

“(iii) ADJUSTMENT FOR SHORT PERIODS.—If a hospital’s cost reporting period beginning on or after October 1, 1997, is not equal to twelve months, the Secretary shall make appropriate modifications to ensure that the average full-time equivalent resident counts pursuant to clause (ii) are based on the equivalent of full 12-month cost reporting periods.”

“(II) BASE DIFFERENCE.—The base difference described in this subclause for a hospital is the amount by which the hospital's overhead GME amount in the base period exceeded the 75th percentile of such amounts (as described in clause (i)).

“(iv) MAXIMUM REDUCTION TO 75TH PERCENTILE.—In no case shall the reduction under this subparagraph effected for a hospital for a period (below the amount that would otherwise apply for the period if this subparagraph did not apply for any period) exceed the reference reduction amount for the hospital for the period.

“(v) BASE PERIOD.—For purposes of this subparagraph, the term ‘base period’ means the cost reporting period beginning in fiscal year 1984 or the period used to establish the hospital's approved FTE resident amount for hospitals that did not have approved residency training programs in fiscal year 1984.

CHAPTER 2—UNIFORM STANDARDS FOR HEALTH CARE LIABILITY ACTIONS

SEC. 10811. STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

A health care liability action may not be brought after the expiration of the 2-year period that begins on the date on which the alleged injury that is the subject of the action was discovered or should reasonably have been discovered, but in no case after the expiration of the 5-year period that begins on the date the alleged injury occurred.

SEC. 10812. CALCULATION AND PAYMENT OF DAMAGES.

(a) TREATMENT OF NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—

(1) LIMITATION ON NONECONOMIC DAMAGES.—The total amount of noneconomic damages that may be awarded to a claimant for losses resulting from the injury which is the subject of a health care liability action may not exceed $250,000, regardless of the number of parties against whom the action is brought or the number of actions brought with respect to the injury.

(2) JOINT AND SEVERAL LIABILITY.—In any health care liability action brought in State or Federal court, a defendant shall be liable only for the amount of noneconomic damages attributable to such defendant in direct proportion to such defendant's share of fault or responsibility for the claimant's actual damages, as determined by the trier of fact. In all such cases, the liability of a defendant for noneconomic damages shall be several and not joint.

(b) TREATMENT OF PUNITIVE DAMAGES.—

(1) GENERAL RULE.—Punitive damages may, to the extent permitted by applicable State law, be awarded in any health care liability action for harm in any Federal or State court against a defendant if the claimant establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the harm suffered was the result of conduct—

(A) specifically intended to cause harm, or

(B) conduct manifesting a conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of others.

(2) PROPORTIONAL AWARDS.—The amount of punitive damages that may be awarded in any health care liability action subject to this subtitle shall not exceed 3 times the amount of damages awarded to the claimant for economic loss, or $250,000, whichever is greater. This paragraph shall be applied by the court and shall not be disclosed to the jury.

(3) APPLICABILITY.—This subsection shall apply to any health care liability action brought in any Federal or State court on any theory where punitive damages are sought. This subsection does not create a cause of action for punitive damages. This subsection does not preempt or supersede any State or Federal law to the extent that such law would further limit the award of punitive damages.

(4) BIFURCATION.—At the request of any party, the trier of fact shall consider in a separate proceeding whether punitive damages are to be awarded and the amount of such award. If a separate proceeding is requested, evidence relevant only to the claim of punitive damages, as determined by applicable State law, shall be inadmissible in any proceeding to determine whether actual damages are to be awarded.

(5) DRUGS AND DEVICES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—(i) Punitive damages shall not be awarded against a manufacturer or product seller of a drug or medical device which caused the claimant's harm where—

(I) such drug or device was subject to premarket approval by the Food and Drug Administration with respect to the safety of the formulation or performance of the aspect of such drug or device which caused the claimant's harm, or the adequacy of the packaging or labeling of such drug or device which caused the harm, and such drug, device, packaging, or labeling was approved by the Food and Drug Administration; or

(II) the drug is generally recognized as safe and effective pursuant to conditions established by the Food and Drug Administration and applicable regulations, including packaging and labeling regulations.

(ii) Clause (i) shall not apply in any case in which the defendant, before or after premarket approval of a drug or device—

(I) intentionally and wrongfully withheld from or misrepresented to the Food and Drug Administration information concerning such drug or device required to be submitted under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 301 et seq.) or section 351 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 262) that is material and relevant to the harm suffered by the claimant, or

(II) made an illegal payment to an official or employee of the Food and Drug Administration for the purpose of securing or maintaining approval of such drug or device.

(B) PACKAGING.—In a health care liability action for harm which is alleged to relate to the adequacy of the packaging or labeling of a drug which is required to have tamper-resistant packaging under regulations of the Secretary of Health and Human Services (including labeling regulations related to such packaging), the manufacturer or product seller of the drug shall not be held liable for punitive damages unless such packaging or labeling is found by the court by clear and convincing evidence to be substantially out of compliance with such regulations.

(c) PERIODIC PAYMENTS FOR FUTURE LOSSES.—

(1) GENERAL RULE.—In any health care liability action in which the damages awarded for future economic and non-economic loss exceeds $50,000, a person shall not be required to pay such damages in a single, lump-sum payment, but shall be permitted to make such payments periodically based on when the damages are found likely to occur, as such payments are determined by the court.

(2) FINALITY OF JUDGMENT.—The judgment of the court awarding periodic payments under this subsection may not, in the absence of fraud, be reopened at any time to contest, amend, or modify the schedule or amount of the payments.

(3) LUMP-SUM SETTLEMENTS.—This subsection shall not be construed to preclude a settlement providing for a single, lump-sum payment.

(d) TREATMENT OF COLLATERAL SOURCE PAYMENTS.—

(1) INTRODUCTION INTO EVIDENCE.—In any health care liability action, any defendant may introduce evidence of collateral source payments. If any defendant elects to introduce such evidence, the claimant may introduce evidence of any amount paid or contributed or reasonably likely to be paid or contributed in the future by or on behalf of the claimant to secure the right to such collateral source payments.

(2) NO SUBROGATION.—No provider of collateral source payments shall recover any amount against the claimant or receive any lien or credit against the claimant's recovery or be equitably or legally subrogated the right of the claimant in a health care liability action.

(3) APPLICATION TO SETTLEMENTS.—This subsection shall apply to an action that is settled as well as an action that is resolved by a fact finder.

SEC. 10813. ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION.

Any ADR used to resolve a health care liability action or claim shall contain provisions relating to statute of limitations, non-economic damages, joint and several liability, punitive damages, collateral source rule, and periodic payments which are identical to the provisions relating to such matters in this subtitle.

STATEMENT OF THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON THE BUDGET
ON THE BALANCED BUDGET ACT OF 1997

The Bipartisan Budget Agreement reached earlier this year represents an historic achievement. It demonstrated that Congress and the administration could commit themselves to major reforms of government programs so that the Federal budget can be balanced in 2002. It also called for a substantial reduction in the tax burden for middle-income Americans.

This legislation—the Balanced Budget Act of 1997—reflects the good faith efforts of House authorizing committees to fulfill the first part of that agreement through systemic, fundamental reforms of government entitlements. A second measure, called the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1997, provides approximately $85 billion in net tax relief over 5 years. Together, these twin bills respond to the reconciliation directives of the House Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for Fiscal Year 1998, (H. Con. Res. 84), which embraced the Bipartisan Budget Agreement.

The underlying accomplishments of the budget agreement warrant repeating. They include the following:

- It balances the Federal budget in 2002 and is projected to run surpluses each year thereafter through 2002.
- It provides a total of $85 billion in net tax relief over the next 5 years and $250 billion through 2007—the vast majority of it going to middle-income working families.
- It delays Medicare bankruptcy for 10 years.
- It reduces total Federal spending to 18.9 percent of gross domestic product [GDP] by 2002—the first time since 1974 that Federal spending has been below 20 percent of GDP.
- It slows the growth of total Federal spending to 3 percent a year for the next 5 years.
- It achieves roughly $182 billion in entitlement savings over the next 5 years, and approximately $700 billion over the next 10 years.
- It slows the growth of nondefense discretionary outlays to less than one-half of 1 percent a year over the next 5 years, compared with an average of 6 percent a year for the past 10 years.
- It saves taxpayers approximately $13 billion over the next 5 years, and $142 billion over the next 10 years, through lower interest payments.

- It proves Congress and the administration can achieve common goals without compromising fundamental principles.

Yet as sweeping as these achievements are, they represent only the first step in what must be a long-term commitment to keep Congress' fiscal house in order. The forthcoming retirement of the baby boom generation will bring a massive new wave of challenges for Federal policymakers—challenges that, if left unaddressed, could overwhelm not only the Federal budget, but the entire economy as well.

Still, this budget agreement is an indispensable first step. Congress should swiftly pass this implementing legislation, and the President should sign it, so that we can move on together to face the challenges ahead.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE,
Washington, DC, June 16, 1997.

Hon. JOHN KASICH,
Chairman, Committee on the Budget,
Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN KASICH: I am transmitting herewith the results of the Committee on Agriculture's consideration of recommendations with respect to the reconciliation bill for fiscal year 1998, provided for under H. Con. Res. 84, the Concurrent Resolution on the Budget—Fiscal Year 1998.

The instructions to this Committee contained in the conference report to H. Con. Res. 84 filed by the Budget Committee (H. Rept. 105-116) on June 4, 1997 related to changes in laws within the Committee on Agriculture's jurisdiction that provide direct spending under provisions of the Food Stamp Act of 1977. The enclosed recommendations adopted by this Committee in a business meeting on June 12, 1997, in the presence of a majority quorum, comply with those instructions.

During the markup of the recommendations several amendments were offered, one of which was adopted, one withdrawn, and one failed adoption. The Ranking Minority Member offered an amendment that it was claimed would reduce a State's food stamp funds only to the extent that States took advantage of an opportunity to attribute costs to the Food Stamp program which were really incurred as part of their administration of their temporary assistance to needy families (TANF) block grant under Title I of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996. Claimed savings from such policy changes that effect shifts in administrative costs from TANF to food stamps were preliminarily estimated to exceed $1.5 billion in budget authority and outlays in fiscal year 1998 through 2002. The amendment further provided that such savings realized from the amendment were to be used for, among other things, spending for agricultural programs such as nutrition, crop insurance, etc. While the alternative use of the funds for producer-related Department of Agriculture programs was enticing to several Members, it was admitted by the sponsor of the amendment that the Congressional Budget Office had determined that such a shift of funds would constitute an intergovernmental unfunded mandate on States under section 421 of the Congressional Budget Act. The sponsor claimed the CBO determination was technical, but would be subject to a point of order on the House Floor. After considerable debate, the amendment was rejected on a recorded vote of 30 nays to 13 ayes.

I am enclosing a hard copy of the Committee's recommendations on Title I—Agriculture that achieve the spending increases as contained in the instructions contained in H. Con. Res. 84 and as requested in your letter of May 30, 1997. There is also enclosed a hard copy of the Section-by-Section Analysis and a Congressional Budget Office cost estimate of the recommendations, as well as a Microsoft Word 7.0 disk of the recommendations. There are also enclosed a hard copy of the Ramseyer; and the remainder of the contents of the report filed pursuant to Rule XI of the Rules of the House, including the Brief Explanation, Committee Consideration, the Purpose and Need, etc. for the Committee's recommendations, as well as a set of Minority Views.

The Committee staff was advised Friday afternoon that the Committee's recommendations for the reconciliation bill could be forwarded to you Monday morning without affecting your Committee's schedule. Accordingly, this letter with enclosures was held over until this morning for delivery to your office in Room 309 CHOB.

Sincerely,

ROBERT F. (BOB) SMITH,
Chairman.

Enclosures.

BRIEF EXPLANATION

States are permitted to exempt 15% of the number of able bodied, 18 to 50 year old persons subject to the food stamp work requirement, after all other waivers have been approved.

Funding for additional work activity is added to the food stamp employment and training program. The Secretary is directed to allocate funding among states based on the number of able bodied 18 to 50 year old persons in each state, after the Secretary approves waivers requested by states due to high unemployment or insufficient jobs.

States are provided the authority to contract for the delivery of food stamp benefits through the use of any entity (governmental or non-governmental) for the purpose of making food stamp eligibility determinations for individuals and households.

PURPOSE AND NEED

The Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for Fiscal Year 1998 directs the Committee on Agriculture to increase spending for the food stamp program by $1.5 billion over five years. The Committee on Agriculture is to redirect existing food stamp employment and training funds and to add funding to create additional work activity for able bodied persons between 18 and 50 years, who have no dependents.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

Section 1001. Exemption

A state agency may provide an exemption for a portion of those individuals subject to the work requirement time limits established under section 6(0).

The average monthly number of exemptions a state agency may grant is limited to 15% of the estimated number of individuals to whom the requirement time limits apply. These "covered individuals" are those: not excepted (because of age, disability, etc.); not living in an area for which a waiver has been granted for high unemployment or insufficient jobs; not complying with the work requirement; and not in their first (or second) 3 months of eligibility under the work requirement time limits. If a state chooses to provide exemptions under this new rule, it can do so in any way, including defining categories of applicants and recipients who will be exempted, so long as it adheres to the 15% limit.

For FY 1998, the Secretary will determine the estimated number of covered individuals from which a state can exempt 15%, using the FY 1996 recipient survey conducted under the Integrated Quality Control System and other information deemed necessary by the Secretary due to the timing of the survey and its limitations. The estimate will reflect adjustments for those covered by current-law exceptions (e.g., age, disability), those covered by waivers, and those in their first and second 3-month periods of eligibility under the work requirement. In later fiscal years, the number of covered individuals from which a state can exempt 15% will be estimated by adjusting the FY 1998 number to reflect changes in the state's food stamp caseload in the prior year and the Secretary's estimate of changes in the proportion of recipients living in areas covered by waivers.

If a state's food stamp participation, during a fiscal year, varies significantly from the prior year's caseload, the Secretary will adjust, upward or downward, the estimated number of covered individuals from which the state may exempt 15% to reflect the increase or decrease.

If a state exempts more or less than 15% of covered individuals in a fiscal year, the Secretary must decrease or increase the number of allowable exemptions, in the next fiscal year, to correspond to the number of exemptions by which the state was over or under 15% in the previous year.

The Secretary can require documentation from states to ensure compliance with the rules governing the new 15% exemption.

Section 1002. Additional funding for employment and training

New money is added to the existing mandatory unmatched federal grants to states for the employment and training program for food stamp recipients. Current grant levels, totaling $81 million for FY 1998, $84 million for FY 1999, $86 million for FY 2000, $88 million for FY 2001, and $90 million for FY 2002, are increased to $221 million for FY 1998, $224 million for FY 1999, $226 million for FY 2000, $228 million for FY 2001, and $210 million for FY 2002. The amounts provided are to remain available until expended, so as to facilitate reallocation of any unused funds.

The total grant amounts noted above (including "old" and "new" money) will be allocated to state agencies using a reasonable formula, determined by the Secretary. The formula will reflect each state's proportion of able-bodied adults without dependents subject to the work requirement time limits who are not excepted (e.g. because of age, disability) but not including those residing in areas for which a waiver has been granted for high unemployment or insufficient jobs, unless the state is providing them employment and training services. The current law requiring a minimum unmatched federal grant of $50,000 per state agency is retained.

State agencies are required to use 75% of their unmatched federal grant allocations (including “old” and “new” money) to serve food stamp recipients subject to work requirement time limits who are not excepted (e.g., by reason of age, disability). They may not use any of their unmatched federal grant allocations for food stamp participants who also receive benefits under the state’s Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) block grant.

State agencies not expending all of the unmatched federal money allocated them for a fiscal year will notify the Secretary, and, on notification, the Secretary must reallocate these funds as the Secretary considers appropriate and equitable, which may include reallocation in the following fiscal year.

In order to receive the additional unmatched federal grant funding provided in this law (i.e., the amount by which their allocation under the new law exceeds the allocation under prior law), state agencies must maintain their federally matched expenditure for employment and training and workfare program administrative/operating costs at not less than the FY 1996 level.

The Secretary may require documentation from states to ensure compliance with the new rules governing allocation and use of employment and training funds.

Beginning one year after enactment, the Secretary must report to the House and Senate Agriculture Committees on whether the additional unmatched federal grant funding provided in this law has been utilized by state agencies to increase the number of employment and training program work slots (for recipients subject to the work requirement time limits) in the most efficient and effective manner.

Section 1003. Authorizing use of nongovernmental personnel in making determinations of eligibility for benefits under the Food Stamp Program.

States are allowed to contract for the delivery of food stamp benefits with any entity (governmental or non-governmental) for the purpose of making food stamp eligibility determinations for individuals and households. The utilization of any non-Federal entity to make food stamp eligibility determinations will not affect the conditions for eligibility of benefits, the right to challenge determinations regarding eligibility or rights to benefits, or determinations regarding quality control or error rates.

COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION

The Committee on Agriculture met, pursuant to notice, with a majority quorum present, on June 12, 1997, to consider its recommendations to the Budget Committee as provided in the Budget Resolution Instructions contained in the conference report to H. Con. Res. 84 (H. Rept. 105–116) with respect to recommendations for Title I—Agriculture in the Reconciliation Bill for Fiscal Year 1998.

The Chairman called the meeting to order and recognized Ranking Minority Member Stenholm for a brief opening statement and gave all other Members permission to submit statements for the record.

The Chairman recognized professional staff for a brief explanation and then laid before the Committee Members for their consideration his recommendations for Title I—Agriculture of a proposed Budget Reconciliation Bill to be introduced by the Budget Committee.

A brief discussion occurred on the Committee recommendations, and Mr. Smith of Michigan questioned U.S. Department of Agriculture representatives concerning the status of the implementation of the electronic benefit program being implemented by the States.

Without objection, the Committee recommendations for Title I—Agriculture were considered as original text and open for amendment at any point.

Thereafter, Mrs. Clayton was recognized to offer and explain an amendment concerning establishing minimum performance standards for the employment and training programs carried out by the States under the food stamp program. Mrs. Clayton further noted that the amendment was not the Administration's proposal and that it was comparable to a provision adopted the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry.

Discussion occurred on the amendment with Mr. Goodlatte indicating his opposition to the amendment because he wanted to give the States as much flexibility as possible in running the program. Mr. Goodlatte also indicated that he would like to work this matter out in the conference with the Senate and would prefer to leave some room for negotiations on the part of the House conferees.

Further discussion occurred on the bill, with Ranking Minority Member Stenholm noting that concessions had been made in producing the Committee recommendations in that the Committee was requiring the States to maintain 100 percent of effort regarding jobs, which was significantly better than the Senate provisions adopted in the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Chairman Smith requested that Mrs. Clayton withdraw her amendment and stated that the Committee would work with her on the provision. Given that offer, without objection, Mrs. Clayton withdrew her amendment.

Mr. Stenholm was then recognized to offer and explain an amendment which would make certain changes to the food stamp program that would affect savings in direct spending with the resulting savings therefrom to provide funding for nutrition and other agriculture programs, including the federal crop insurance program. Mr. Stenholm acknowledged that there likely would be a point of order made against the amendment because the Congressional Budget Office had determined the amendment would be considered an unfunded mandate to the States. He urged the Committee to support his amendment and to let the Rules Committee and/or the full House of Representatives determine the unfunded mandate issue, rather than the Committee.

Chairman Smith stated that he had been working continuously with Mr. Stenholm in an effort to make the amendment work. As a Member representing an agricultural Congressional District, he supported the funding of many of the items included in the amendment that helped farmers. The Chairman also noted that in spite of his wish to support the amendment, the decision of the Congressional Budget Office that the amendment constituted an unfunded mandate for States put a different character on it inasmuch as it would be subject to a point of order.

Lengthy discussion occurred on the amendment with Messrs. Condit, Peterson, and others speaking on the matter of the unfunded mandate and what would happen on the House Floor if a point of order were made. Other discussion occurred on how the Appropriations Committee would interpret whatever action the Committee on Agriculture took with respect to the amendment. Chairman Smith called for a vote and by a voice vote the amendment was ruled as not agreed to. Mr. Stenholm requested a roll call vote and Chairman Smith directed that a roll call vote be taken. By a recorded vote of 30 nays and 13 yeas, the Stenholm amendment was not adopted. See Roll Call Vote No. 1.

Mr. Combest was recognized to offer and explain an amendment which would authorize the use of nongovernmental personnel in making determinations of eligibility for benefits under the food stamp program. Mr. Combest further noted that his amendment, as it related to the food stamp program, was nearly identical to H.R. 1709, which had been introduced by the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and was cosponsored by over 40 Members, including the Chairman and Ranking Minority Member of the Agriculture Committee, and the Chairman of the Commerce Committee. Mr. Combest stated that there was no cost associated with the amendment.

Mr. Combest further stated that the State of Texas had been working with the Administration to receive a waiver which would allow this welfare delivery program, and that after negotiating for ten months that the waiver had been denied.

Discussion occurred on the amendment with Messrs. Holden and Peterson expressing concern that it was premature to consider the amendment and that more study and hearings should be held. Mr. Stenholm indicated that he had tried to bring parties together to forge a compromise on this issue, and that since this had not happened that he would support the Combest amendment.

Chairman Smith called for a vote on the Combest amendment, and by voice vote the Chair ruled that the amendment was adopted. Mr. Holden requested a roll call vote and the Chair directed that a recorded vote be taken. By a recorded vote of 24 yeas to 19 nays, the Combest amendment was adopted. See Roll Call Vote #2.

Mr. Combest moved that the Committee's recommendations, as amended, be adopted and that the Chairman be authorized to forward such recommendations, and other materials as directed to be included by the Speaker, to the Budget Committee. By voice vote, and in the presence of a majority quorum, the Combest motion was adopted.

Chairman Smith noted that Members would have two working days to file Minority, Supplemental, or other Views, but he requested that the Chief Counsel be advised if views would not be available until Saturday, so that the Counsel would be available to receive the views and to file them with the Budget Committee on Saturday, June 14, 1997.

Without objection, staff was given instructions to make such technical, clarifying, or conforming changes as appropriate without changing the substance of the legislation.

The meeting adjourned, subject to the call of the Chair.

Washington, DC, June 16, 1997.

Hon. ROBERT F. SMITH,
*Chairman, Committee on Agriculture,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.*

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for the reconciliation recommendations of the House Committee on Agriculture, as approved on June 12, 1997.

The estimate shows the budgetary effects of the committee's proposals over the 1998–2007 period. CBO understands that the Committee on the Budget will be responsible for interpreting how these proposals compare with the reconciliation instructions in the budget resolution. The estimate assumes that the reconciliation bill will be enacted by August 15; the estimate could change if the bill is enacted later.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contact is Dorothy Rosenbaum.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATE

Reconciliation Recommendations of the House Committee on Agriculture (Title I)

Summary: The House Agriculture Committee reconciliation recommendations would increase federal Food Stamp spending by $1.5 billion over the 1998–2002 period.

The Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act (PRWORA) of 1996 limited Food Stamp receipt to a period of three months in any 36-month period for able-bodied adults who do not have dependent children and who are not working or participating in an appropriate training or work activity. The title would allow states to exempt some individuals from this limitation and would provide additional federal Food Stamp Employment and Training funds to states.

The title does not contain any intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995 (UMRA) and would impose no costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

Spending Under Title I	23,794	24,720	26,814	27,536	28,965	29,717

Basis of estimate: The Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996 limited Food Stamp receipt to a period of three months in any 36-month period for able-bodied adults who do not have dependent children and who are not working or participating in an appropriate training or work activity. An individual can reestablish eligibility for another three-month period after a month of working or participating in an allowable employment or training program. The Secretary of Agriculture can provide a waiver from the provision for areas that have an unemployment rate greater than ten percent or insufficient jobs. The Department of Agriculture estimates that currently about 35 percent of the people who otherwise would be affected by this provision live in areas that are covered by a waiver.

Title I contains two provisions that address this component of current law. The first would allow states to exempt a certain number of individuals from the requirements. The second would provide additional federal money for Food Stamp Employment and Training. A third provision would allow states to use nongovernmental personnel to make eligibility determinations in the Food Stamp Program.

Under this provision, each state would be allowed to continue food stamp benefits past the three month limit for 15 percent of the state's covered individuals, as estimated annually by the Secretary of Agriculture based on Food Stamp Program administrative data. Covered individuals would be defined as individuals who are covered by the time-limit provision by virtue of their age, work status, and household circumstances, do not live in an area that is covered by a waiver, and are not receiving benefits under a three-month period of eligibility.

Based on CBO's analysis of the Food Stamp administrative data and projections of Food Stamp participation, CBO assumes that approximately 1.1 million Food Stamp recipients would, in fiscal year 1998, be able-bodied, between the ages of 18 and 50 with no children in the home, and not working or complying with an appropriate work activity. Of these individuals, CBO assumes that 75 percent would not be in a three-month period of eligibility and, of the remainder, 65 percent would not reside in a waiver area.

Under these assumptions, the Secretary would identify approximately 550,000 individuals nationwide as covered individuals, and would distribute the number among the states. States could, therefore, allow a total of about 82,000 people (15 percent) to receive food stamps each month who would otherwise be ineligible. CBO assumes that only about 74,000 people would actually continue to receive benefits because a few states would choose not to implement the exemption. Continuing food stamps for these newly exempt individuals (at an average cost of about $120 a month) would increase Food Stamp outlays by $110 million in 1998, $130 million in 2002, and $580 million over the 1998–2002 period.

Section 1002. Additional funding for employment and training

Under current law, the Food Stamp Employment and Training component of the Food Stamp Program has two federal funding sources. The federal government provides a stated amount annually in funds that do not require a state match. States may also draw down an unlimited amount of additional funds at a 50 percent match rate. In 1996, the federal government provided about $75 million dollars in federal-only funds and about the same amount as a match to state funds.

Section 1002 would increase the federal-only Food Stamp Employment and Training funds by $140 million in each of fiscal years 1998 to 2001 and by $120 million in fiscal year 2002. The bill would require that states spend at least 75 percent of the federal-only money on employment and training services for people who are potentially subject to the three-month time limit based on their age and other characteristics, regardless of whether they live in a waiver area or a non-waiver area. Furthermore, in order to receive the additional amounts of federal funds a state must continue to spend state funds at its fiscal year 1996 level. In addition to the increase in federal-only employment and training funds, CBO estimates that this section would increase Food Stamp benefits and slightly reduce federal matching funds for employment and training. In total, CBO estimates that Section 1002 would increase federal outlays by $920 million over the 1998–2002 period.

CBO expects that states will spend some of the new money on the types of employment and training services that the Food Stamp Act outlines as appropriate for meeting the work requirement. CBO estimates that it costs states an average of about $100 a month in 1997 to serve someone in an appropriate employment or training activity. If an individual resides in an area that is not covered by a waiver and receives an appropriate service, that person would remain eligible for Food Stamps past the three-month limit. CBO assumes that states will spend 75 percent of the new money in areas that are not covered by a waiver. Of this amount, CBO further assumes that in fiscal year 1998 states would spend 25 percent of the money that they spend in non-waiver areas on appropriate services, resulting in 20,000 individuals remaining eligible for Food Stamps at a cost of $28 million in that year. By 2001, CBO expects that states would spend 65 percent of the money that they spend in non-waiver area on appropriate services, resulting in 45,000 individuals remaining eligible at a cost of about $70 million. In 2002 the amount of new federal funds is somewhat lower, so slightly fewer people would remain eligible (40,000) at a lower cost ($60 million).

CBO also assumes that under current law states would have increased their own spending modestly over the years to account for inflation. Because the bill would require states to maintain their effort on their own funds at a flat amount and provides such a large amount of new federal funds, CBO expects that in the aggregate states would withdraw a small amount of their own spending on employment and training services. Because these funds would have received a federal match, CBO estimates that federal outlays would be lower by $4 million in 1998 and $9 million in 2002.

Section 1003: Authorizing use of nongovernmental personnel in making determinations of eligibility for benefits

Section 1003 would allow states to employ nongovernmental personnel to make eligibility determinations in the Food Stamp Program. Although the provision could either increase or decrease spending for the Food Stamp Program, CBO estimates that it would have no net effect on federal spending compared with current law.

Intergovernmental and private-sector impact: This title contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in UMRA. This title would provide states with additional funds for Food Stamp employment and training programs totaling $140 million in fiscal year 1998 and $680 million over the 1998–2002 period if they meet certain maintenance-of-effort requirements. This title would also allow states the option to use nongovernmental personnel in making eligibility determinations under the Food Stamp Program.

Estimate prepared by: Federal Cost: Dorothy Rosenbaum (226–2820). Impact on State, Local, and Tribal Governments: Marc Nicole (225–3220). Impact on the Private Sector: Ralph Smith (226–2659).

Estimate approved by: Paul N. Van de Water, Assistant Director for Budget Analysis.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
COMMITTEE ON BANKING AND FINANCIAL SERVICES,
Washington, DC, June 13, 1997.

Hon. JOHN KASICH,
Chairman, House Budget Committee,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Banking Committee reported out on June 11, 1997 three authorizing provisions that achieve specific spending and revenue amounts outlined in the Concurrent Budget Resolution for FY1998. Specifically, the Committee is charged with recommending legislation under its jurisdiction to effect $136 million in budget savings in FY1998 and $1.59 billion in savings over the five-year period from FY 1998 through FY2002.

Enclosed is the legislative language for Title II, report language, and other information you requested in your May 30, 1997 letter. CBO cost estimates are attached.

Sincerely,

JAMES A. LEACH, Chairman.

PURPOSES AND SUMMARY OF MAJOR POLICY DECISIONS IN LEGISLATION

The Committee under the Concurrent Budget Resolution for FY1998 is required to effect $0.136 billion in budget savings in FY1998 and $1.59 billion in savings over the five-year period from FY1998 to FY2002. The three provisions reported-out of Committee reflect reforms to existing FHA and Section 8 (U.S. Housing Act of 1937) project-based multifamily housing programs that will ensure savings for the federal government and ultimately the U.S. taxpayer.

The FHA Single Family Assignment Program was originally terminated and replaced by Section 407 of The Balanced Budget Downpayment Act, I for mortgages executed on and after April 26, 1996 through September 30, 1996. The Appropriations Committee subsequently made mortgages executed in FY 1996 and later added mortgages executed in FY 1997 eligible for the replacement program, to achieve offsets for discretionary spending. Permanent changes made by the Banking Committee will achieve real savings for the taxpayers and is a valid policy goal.

A review of the former FHA single family assignment program, by the General Accounting Office, indicated only limited success. In most cases, defaulted borrowers ultimately faced foreclosure and thus additional costs to FHA and the taxpayer. Some indicators estimated approximately up to 70% in defaulted loans from the assignment program. Rather than eliminate the assignment program, the Committee recommended in 1995 a replacement program that provided FHA with flexible tools, similar to the private-sector mortgage markets, to address defaulted borrowers who had a realistic opportunity to retain their homes after a short-term calamity. Therefore, this replacement program provides HUD with discretionary authority, rather than a mandatory requirement, to accept applicants to the assignment program.

The Section 8 Rental Assistance Program provides project-based rental/multi-family assistance for families under 80% of area medium income. As a counter-part to public housing, this form of housing is operated by the private sector and is subsidized by the federal government in return for housing low- and very-low income families. The Annual Adjustment Factors (AAF) increases the per-unit subsidy annually in order to keep pace with any increases in area rents. Rather than automatically increase rents for every project-based rent, the annual increases are limited for Section 8 New Construction, Moderate Rehabilitation and Substantial Rehabilitation projects where unit rents exceed the HUD established Fair Market Rents for the relevant housing area. This reform will continue the process of realigning subsidized units with the rents of similar unassisted units in the area. Additionally, Section 8 annual rent increases would be limited for those Section 8 units in which there has been no tenant turnover since the preceding annual rent adjustment, by reducing the AAF by one percentage point. For example, if the published AAF is 1.03, which would provide a 3% rent increase, the AAF would be reduced to 1.02, and provide a 2% rent increase instead.

CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY

In compliance with clause 2(1)(4) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the constitutional authority for Congress to enact this legislation is derived from the general welfare clause (Article I, Sec. 8).

COMMITTEE VOTES

There were no roll call votes. The Committee passed by voice vote to adopt and favorably report the authorization provisions, pursuant to Subsection (c)(2) of Section 105 of the Concurrent Budget Resolution for FY 1998.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE COST ESTIMATES

The Cost estimate pursuant to Clause 2(1)(3)(C) of rule XI, of the Rules of the House of Representatives and Section 403 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, is attached.

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, June 13, 1997.

Hon. JAMES A. LEACH,
*Chairman, Committee on Banking and Financial Services,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.*

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for the reconciliation recommendations of the House Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

The estimate shows the budgetary effects of the committee's proposals over the 1998–2002 period, and an attached table shows the effects through 2007. CBO understands that the Committee on the Budget will be responsible for interpreting how these proposals compare with the reconciliation instructions in the budget resolution. This estimate assumes the reconciliation bill will be enacted by August 15, 1997; the estimate could change if the bill is enacted later.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contacts are Susanne S. Mehlman (for the FHA provision), and Carla Pedone (for rental assistance provisions).

Sincerely,

PAUL VAN DE WATER
(For June E. O'Neill, Director).

Enclosure.

Reconciliation recommendations of the House Committee on Banking and Financial Services (Title II)

Summary: This bill would permanently prohibit the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) from providing foreclosure avoidance relief to mortgagors who have defaulted in making payments on FHA-insured single-family mortgages. This bill also would make two changes affecting rent adjustments for section 8 housing. First, it would generally prohibit rent increases for projects assisted under the section 8 new construction and substantial or moderate rehabilitation programs, if their assisted rents exceeded the fair market rent (FMR) established by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for that housing area. Another provision in the bill would limit rent increases for units without tenant turnover.

Estimated cost to the Federal Government: CBO estimates that the committee's proposals would reduce direct spending by about $1.8 billion over the 1998–2002 period. This title also would provide for potential discretionary savings of $824 million in outlays over the next five years, subject to appropriations action. The estimated budgetary effects of these proposals over the 1998–2002 period are shown in the following table.

The effects of this legislation fall within budget functions 600 (income security) and 370 (commerce and housing credit)

Basis of estimate

Elimination of FHA's single-family assignment program

Under current law, FHA's assignment program has been suspended through fiscal year 1997. Section 2002 would permanently eliminate the assignment program, enabling FHA to foreclose quickly on properties that would otherwise enter the assignment program. CBO estimates that more rapid foreclosure would reduce FHA's costs by decreasing the amount of taxes and other expenses that FHA would pay while holding these properties. Early foreclosures also would expedite the receipt of sales revenues that FHA would collect on the affected properties. CBO estimates that 16 percent of all claims from new loan guarantees will eventually enter the assignment program if it continues in place. Based on information provided by FHA. We estimate that eliminating the program would increase FHA's recoveries on such defaults by an average of 30 to 40 percent.

CBO estimates that the decrease in FHA's costs from defaults would reduce direct spending by $846 million over the next five years. These estimated savings represent the net decrease in subsidy costs of new loan guarantees expected to be made by FHA over the 1998–2002 period. Under current law, FHA guarantees of new single-family mortgage result in offsetting receipts on the budget because the credit subsidies are estimated to be negative. (That is, guarantee fees for new mortgages more than offset the costs of expected defaults.) Eliminating the assignment program would make such subsidies more negative and the estimated change in those subsidy receipts would be recorded in the years in which new loans are guaranteed. For example, estimated savings for 1998 represent the present value (subsidy) savings of a avoided costs in all future years associated with the new guarantees made in 1998.

Rent adjustment for section 8 housing

Section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 provides for annual adjustments in the maximum rents that owners receive on behalf of assisted tenants. The bill would make permanent, starting in fiscal year 1999, two provisions enacted in the appropriations act for 1997 that eliminate or reduce those adjustment factors for certain units. Because the federal government pays part of the rental costs, CBO estimates that those two provisions combined would save the government $924 million over the 1998–2002 period on subsidies for existing rental contracts.

Section 2003 would bar rent increases in projects assisted under the section 8 new construction and substantial or moderate rehabilitation programs, if their assisted rents exceed the higher of the local market rents for similar unassisted units or the FMR, which is set by HUD at the 40th percentile of local rents. CBO estimates that this provision would reduce spending for existing contracts by $773 million over the five-year period. We estimate that this provision would initially affect about three-quarters of all units assisted under these programs. Over time, however, that proportion would decrease by about 4 percent per year, as some of the assisted rents would begin to fall below the market rents or the FMR. In addition, the number of units affected would decline sharply each year as contracts expire. In all, CBO estimates the average number of affected units to decline from about 787,000 in 1999 to 418,000 in 2002.

Section 2004 would reduce by 1 percentage point rent increases for units occupied by the same families at the time of the last annual rent adjustment. (Such families are often referred to as stayers.) This provision would reduce outlays for existing contracts by an estimated $151 million over the five-year period. CBO estimates that, in a given year, this provision would affect between 80 and 85 percent of assisted units that receive an annual rent adjustment. (The provision would generate no savings from units that would be affected by section 2003.) Because of expiring contracts, the number of affected units is estimated to decline from about 430,000 in 1999 to about 230,000 in 2002.

Savings that would result from the application of these two provisions to future contract renewals would depend on annual appropriation levels and thus would not be considered direct spending. Assuming that all expiring contracts would be renewed, CBO estimates that these two provisions combined would produce savings from future appropriations of $824 million over the 1998–2002 period.

Intergovernmental and private-sector impact

This bill contains no intergovernmental or private-sector mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995, and would not impose any costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

Section 2002. Extension of foreclosure avoidance and borrower assistance provisions for FHA single family housing mortgage insurance program

This section extends permanently the FHA Assignment Reforms from Section 407 of the Balanced Budget Downpayment Act, I. Section 407 amended Sections 204(a) and 230 of the National Housing Act to authorize HUD to pay mortgagees for undertaking loss mitigation measures, to greatly restrict HUD's ability to accept assignments of mortgages, and to make clear that no law compels HUD either to provide an alternative to foreclosure or to take assignment of mortgages. It reformed the assignment process to achieve cost savings comparable to those achieved in the private sector by working out delinquent loans to avoid foreclosure and minimizing losses to the mortgage insurer.

Section 2003. Adjustment of maximum monthly rents for certain dwelling units in new construction and substantial or moderate rehabilitation projects assisted under section 8 rental assistance program

For FY 1999 and subsequent years, this provision limits the application of the annual adjustment factor (AAF)¹ for Section 8 New Construction, Substantial Rehabilitation, or Moderate Rehabilitation projects where the rents are adjusted using the AAF and the rents are in excess of the fair market rents ("FMRs") for that housing area. For such projects, the Secretary may adjust rents, but only to the extent that the owner demonstrates that the adjusted rent would not exceed the rent for a similar unassisted unit. For FY 1998, it is expected that the HUD appropriations Act will continue this same policy, which has been in effect during FY 1996, FY 1996 prior to April 26, 1996, and FY 1997.

Section 2004. Adjustment of maximum monthly rents for non-turn-over dwelling units assisted under section 8 rental assistance program

For FY 1999 and subsequent fiscal years, this provision reduces the AAF by one percentage point for those Section 8 units in which there has been no turnover since the preceding annual rental adjustment, except that the AAF shall not be reduced to less than 1.0 (so rents will not be reduced because of the one percentage point reduction). For FY 1998, it is expected that the HUD appropriations Act will continue this same policy, which has been in effect during FY 1996, FY 1996 prior to April 26, 1996, and FY 1997.

(2)(A) The assistance contract shall provide for adjustment annually or more frequently in the maximum monthly rents for units covered by the contract to reflect changes in the fair market rentals established in the housing area for similar types and sizes of dwelling units or, if the Secretary determines, on the basis of a reasonable formula. In the case of assistance under the certificate program, 0.01 shall be subtracted from the amount of the annual adjustment factor (except that the factor shall not be reduced to less than 1.0), and the adjusted rent shall not exceed the rent for a comparable unassisted unit of similar quality, type, and age in the market area. The immediately foregoing two sentences shall be effective only during fiscal year 1995, fiscal year 1996 prior to April 26, 1996, and fiscal year 1997, and during fiscal year 1999 and thereafter.

TITLE III—COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE—NONMEDICARE

SUBTITLE A—NUCLEAR REGULATORY COMMISSION ANNUAL CHARGES

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

Subtitle A extends the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's (NRC's) authority to collect up to 100 percent of its budget from user fees through Fiscal Year 2002.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

Millions of Americans, on a daily basis, benefit from use of radioactive materials, from the electricity produced by nuclear reactors to the widespread use of nuclear materials in medical and industrial applications. The NRC is responsible for ensuring the safety of civilian uses of nuclear materials, and the independence and integrity of this agency is essential to maintaining public confidence in the use of such materials. Thus, a reliable stream of long-term funding is vital to assuring the uninterrupted operation of this important organization.

The NRC budget is paid for entirely through user fees and annual charges on its licensees, except for work on the high-level nuclear waste repository which is paid for through the Nuclear Waste Fund. User fees are an equitable way of paying for the cost of Federal regulation. By collecting user fees, those who use an agency's resources pay the costs of funding that agency. Those who use the greatest amount of the agency's resources are required to pay the greatest annual fees. In the case of the NRC, nuclear licensees pay for the cost of Federal regulation and then pass that cost on to their customers. The result is an equitable one: those who do not buy electricity or products utilizing nuclear materials do not bear the costs associated with regulating them.

Section 6101 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 (P.L. 101-508) requires the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to collect annual charges from its licensees to provide offsetting collections to pay for its programs. Specifically, section 6101 allows the NRC to collect amounts which, when added to other amounts collected by the NRC (such as fees collected under the Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1952, 31 U.S.C. 9701), equals 100 percent. However, current law only provides authority to collect fees and annual charges equal to 100 percent of the budget through Fiscal Year 1998. After that time, absent an extension, NRC's permanent authority to collect 33 percent of its budget through fees and annual charges, as provided by Section 7601 of the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (P.L. 99-272), would take effect.

Currently, the NRC budget is made up of money collected through three different methodologies. First, the NRC receives appropriations from the Nuclear Waste Fund established under section 302(c) of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 (42 U.S.C. 10222(c)) for licensing the Department of Energy's nuclear waste management program. Charges for these activities are not recovered through annual charges because nuclear utilities pay for the cost of these activities through their payments to the Nuclear Waste Fund. Thus, recovery of Nuclear Waste Fund appropriations through the annual charge would constitute double payment by utilities. Second, the NRC recovers a portion of its budget through fees assessed on licensees under the Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1952 (31 U.S.C. 9701). This Act provides that anyone receiving a service or a thing of value from the NRC shall pay the NRC's cost of providing that service or thing of value. The purpose of this provision is to recover the costs of providing individually identifiable services to applicants and holders of NRC licenses from the recipients of those services. The third collection methodology involves the recovery of annual charges for generic NRC activities that benefit all licensees.

Subtitle A extends NRC's authority to collect up to 100 percent of its budget through user fees and annual charges through Fiscal Year 2002. This extension will generate revenues in amounts sufficient to offset expenditures by the NRC. The NRC is charged by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 to assess these charges under the principle that licensees who require the greatest expenditures of the NRC's resources should pay the greatest annual charge. Section 3001 of Subtitle A does not alter, in any way, the fee structure as currently administered by the NRC.

CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW MADE BY SUBTITLE A

The changes in existing law made by Subtitle A are included at the conclusion of the report on this Title of the bill.

CAPACITY

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

Subtitle B gives the Department of Energy the authority to lease to foreign countries space in the Strategic Petroleum Reserve that is not currently being used by the United States.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

The Energy Policy and Conservation Act (EPCA), as amended, authorized the Department of Energy (DOE) to build and maintain a one billion barrel Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR or Reserve) to protect the U.S. in an energy emergency and to comply with U.S. obligations under the International Energy Agreement (IEA). Today, the SPR is capable of storing up to 680 million barrels of oil at four sites in Louisiana and Texas. (The closure of the Weeks Island, Louisiana site reduced Reserve capacity by approximately 70 million barrels; from a maximum capacity of 750 million barrels to today's 680 million barrels.) In addition, after three oil sales of a total of 28 million barrels in FY 96 and FY 97 to raise revenues, approximately only 563 million barrels of oil are stored in the Reserve today.

In light of current budgetary constraints, it is unlikely that any new oil will be purchased for storage in the Reserve for the foreseeable future. Thus, Subtitle B would allow DOE to lease the excess storage capacity of the Reserve (approximately 110 million barrels) to foreign governments or their agents. U.S. allies, like South Korea and Japan, have expressed an interest in leasing such space in order to meet their obligations under the IEA. (The IEA requires its member nations to maintain oil reserves equal to a 90 days supply of that country's net imports.) This leasing option may prove very attractive to some of these countries because the United States has some of the lowest costs of building and maintaining strategic oil reserves. For example, it costs Japan approximately $50 per barrel to create oil storage space and five dollars a barrel annually to store oil in that space. In contrast, it is estimated that creating new SPR capacity in the U.S. would cost about $9 per barrel. In addition, it costs the U.S. about 30 cents per barrel to operate and maintain the oil currently stored in the Reserve. It has been estimated that the U.S. could receive as much as $1.20 per barrel annually if such leasing is authorized.

Importantly, Subtitle B requires that the fee for allowing such leasing must fully compensate the U.S. for the costs of storage and removal of such oil and the cost of any replacement facilities necessitated by the removal of such oil. Subtitle B also requires that such storage not affect the ability of the U.S. to withdraw its own oil in an energy emergency or to meet its IEA obligations. Finally, Subtitle B provides that funds collected pursuant to this section after September 30, 2002, shall be used to purchase oil for, or operate and maintain the Reserve.

HEARINGS

COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION

On June 5, 1997, the Subcommittee on Energy and Power met in open session and approved for Full Committee consideration a Committee Print entitled "Title III, Subtitle B—Lease of Excess Strategic Petroleum Reserve Capacity," without amendment, by a voice vote. The Committee adopts as its own the estimate of Federal mandates prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office pursuant to section 423 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE STATEMENT

No advisory committees within the meaning of section 5(b) of the Federal Advisory Committee Act were created by this legislation.

CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY STATEMENT

Pursuant to clause 2(1)(4) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee finds that the Constitutional authority for this legislation is provided in Article I, section 8, clause 3, which grants Congress the power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, among the several States, and with the Indian tribes.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE LEGISLATION

Subtitle B adds a new section 168 to Part B of Title I of the Energy Policy and Conservation Act.

Subsection (a) of Subtitle B makes the following amendments to Part B of Title I of EPCA:

Section 168(a) provides DOE with the authority to lease underutilized SPR facilities to foreign governments or their representatives. This section also provides that petroleum products stored under this part are not part of the SPR and may be exported from the U.S. without a license.

Section 168(b) requires that the price received for the leasing of these underutilized facilities must fully compensate the U.S. for petroleum removal and storage costs, as well as the cost of building replacement facilities necessitated as a result of withdrawals of any such oil.

Section 168(c) provides that any agreements entered into pursuant to this provision may not impair the ability of the U.S. to withdraw, distribute, or sell its own petroleum from the SPR in response to an energy emergency or to comply with obligations of the U.S. under the IEA.

Section 168(d) provides that after September 30, 2002, any funds collected from the leasing of underutilized SPR facilities shall be used by the Secretary of Energy for the purchase of oil for, and operation and maintenance costs, of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

Subsection (b) of Subtitle B provides for conforming changes to be made to the table of contents of EPCA.

CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW MADE BY SUBTITLE B

The changes in existing law made by Subtitle B are included at the conclusion of the report on this Title of the bill.

SUBTITLE C—SALE OF DOE ASSETS

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

Subtitle C directs the Department of Energy (DOE) to sell 3.2 million pounds of surplus natural and low-enriched uranium per year during the period Fiscal Year 1999 through Fiscal Year 2002 at not less than fair market value, subject to a determination that such sale or sales would not have an adverse material impact on the domestic uranium mining, conversion, or enrichment industry.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

The Department of Energy owns substantial amounts of natural and low-enriched uranium that have substantial commercial value. The Department has declared about 21.5 million pounds of natural uranium equivalent to be surplus. This surplus uranium is stored at the Department's gaseous diffusion plants in Paducah, Kentucky, and Portsmouth, Ohio.

Selling this material in an orderly manner would allow the beneficial use of an asset that is no longer needed by the Federal government. In addition, sale of these surplus assets would relieve the Department of the storage costs and other liabilities associated with long-term storage of this material. Further, revenue from the sale of surplus uranium assets would benefit the taxpayers by producing savings that help balance the Federal budget.

Congress authorized the Department to sell surplus uranium from its inventory in the USEC Privatization Act of 1996 (Public Law 104-134) as long as certain conditions are met. Section 3112(d) of the Act provides that "no sale or transfer of natural or low-enriched uranium shall be made unless—(A) the President determines that the material is not necessary for national security needs, (B) the Secretary determines that the sale of the material will not have an adverse material impact on the domestic uranium mining, conversion, or enrichment industry, taking into account the sales of uranium under the Russian HEU Agreement and the Suspension Agreement, and (C) the price paid to the Secretary will not be less than the fair market value of the material."

The conditions contained in the USEC Privatization Act are intended to protect various interests; first, the national security interest, since the President must determine that the material is not necessary for national security needs before a sale can take place; second, assuring that sales do not have an adverse material impact on the domestic uranium industry, since a precondition for any sale is a determination by the Secretary that sale of the material would not have an adverse material impact on the domestic mining, conversion, and enrichment industry; and third, the taxpayer interest, by requiring that the price paid to the Secretary will not be less than the fair market value of the material.

Proposals to sell surplus uranium are not new. The USEC Privatization Act of 1996 permitted DOE to sell surplus uranium subject to certain conditions, and the Department has taken steps to sell 3.2 million pounds of uranium in Fiscal Year 1997. In January 1997, the Secretary issued a finding that sales at that level would not have an adverse material impact on the domestic uranium industry, and DOE is proceeding with that sale. In addition, the Fiscal Year 1997 Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act of 1996 (Public Law 104-206) provided that "revenues received from the Department for uranium programs [including sales of uranium] and estimated to total $42,200,000 in fiscal year 1997, shall be retained and used for the specific purpose of offsetting costs incurred by the Department for such activities, notwithstanding the provisions of 31 U.S.C. 3302(b) and 42 U.S.C. 2296(b)(2)." Further, the President has proposed selling larger amounts of surplus uranium through 2002.

Subtitle C directs the Department of Energy (DOE) to sell 3.2 million pounds of surplus natural and low-enriched uranium per year during the period Fiscal Year 1999 through Fiscal Year 2002 at not less than fair market value, subject to a determination that such sale or sales would not have an adverse material impact on the domestic uranium mining, conversion, or enrichment industry.

Subtitle C is consistent with the USEC Privatization Act. First, only those materials already determined by the President to be surplus can be sold by the Department under Subtitle C. This determination was made through a process involving the President's Nuclear Weapons Council and the Department of Energy, resulting in a finding that the Department has 21.5 million pounds of surplus natural and low-enriched uranium. Second, the Secretary must make the same determination as required by section 3112(d)(2)(B) of the USEC Privatization Act before any sales can take place. Third, Subtitle C requires that sales be "made at a price not less than the fair market value of the uranium and in a manner that maximizes proceeds to the Treasury." Uranium is a commodity whose market price is well-established.

Subtitle C directs the Secretary to make a single determination under section 3112(d)(2)(B) of the USEC Privatization Act of 1996 for the period Fiscal Year 1999 through Fiscal Year 2002. This permits the Department to engage in spot sales, short-term sales, long-term sales, or any combination of the above, as long as sales are "made at a price not less than the fair market value of the uranium and in a manner that maximizes proceeds to the Treasury." A determination that covers the period Fiscal Year 1999 through Fiscal Year 2002 permits the Department to engage in advance sales for delivery in future years. It is believed that advance sales will provide greater stability for uranium prices, while spot sales may exacerbate the volatility of spot market prices.

The Committee expects the Department will exercise this discretion in a manner that maximizes proceeds to the Treasury. For example, if the Department can maximize proceeds by engaging in long-term sales compared to other alternatives, the Committee expects the agency will favor long-term sales over spot market and short-term sales. Moreover, sales of surplus uranium under Subtitle C are not required until Fiscal Year 1999, which enables the Department to time future sales to obtain the best price over the period Fiscal Year 1999 through Fiscal Year 2002.

Importantly, sales of surplus uranium under Subtitle C are much less than the levels proposed by the Administration. The President proposed selling up to $100 million in surplus uranium per year during Fiscal Years 1998 through 2001, and $200 million in Fiscal Year 2002. By contrast, sales under Subtitle C are expected to generate about $45 million per year in revenue. Sales at the level proposed by the President and considered by the Department may not only have an adverse material impact on the uranium mining, conversion, and enrichment industry, but also significantly lower uranium prices and fail to maximize proceeds to the Treasury from sales.

In addition, Subtitle C provides for sale of only a portion of DOE's surplus uranium. The President has declared 21.5 million pounds of natural uranium equivalent to be surplus, but Subtitle C provides for sales of roughly half of this existing surplus. The Department retains its authority to sell additional amounts of surplus uranium under the USEC Privatization Act, as long as such sales are consistent with section 3112(d) of that Act.

Analysis by the Department of Energy indicated sales of 3.2 million pounds in 1997 will have an immaterial impact on domestic uranium prices, reducing projected prices by less than one percent. In addition, the Department estimated a 3.2 million pound sale would reduce production by about 1.2 percent. Significantly, both these fluctuations are well within the yearly fluctuations in price and production experienced by the domestic uranium mining industry and are not expected to adversely affect domestic uranium products. Sales at higher levels—such as proposed by the President and under consideration by the Department—may have a significant adverse impact on uranium prices. The Department has indicated it will mitigate the impact of sales on the uranium conversion industry through selling the uranium conversion component separate from the natural uranium component. The Department projects there will be no adverse material impact on the domestic uranium enrichment industry from sales of surplus natural uranium.

Sales under Subtitle C are limited to 12.8 million pounds of the 21.5 million pounds determined by the President to be no longer needed for national security needs. Subtitle C does not direct the Department to sell any material derived from Russian highly-enriched uranium under the Russian HEU Agreement, the Suspension Agreement, and the terms of the USEC Privatization Act of 1996. Disposition of highly-enriched uranium received from Russia will continue to be governed by the Russian HEU Agreement, the Suspension Agreement, and the USEC Privatization Act.

The Committee observes that the sale of surplus uranium assets is a very different situation than that presented by the sale of Conrail or the Naval Petroleum Reserves. These instances involved sales of enterprises operated by the Federal government, not the sale of surplus assets no longer needed to discharge the missions of the Department. The Department has only two options with respect to surplus uranium: (1) continue to store and maintain surplus uranium at the expense of taxpayers; or (2) sell these surplus assets at a fair market price and in a manner that maximizes the proceeds to the Treasury. Subtitle C directs the Department to pursue the latter course of action.

The valuation of surplus uranium is not a difficult matter, since it is a commodity with well-established prices. By contrast, there were great difficulties determining the value of Conrail and the Naval Petroleum Reserves. For that reason, the taxpayer protections are different. Subtitle C bars sales of surplus uranium at less than fair market value. This protects the taxpayer interest, because the fair market value of uranium can be easily determined. The taxpayer protections for the sale of the Naval Petroleum Reserves were different because the value of the Naval Petroleum Reserves was much more difficult to determine.

HEARINGS

The Committee's Subcommittee on Energy and Power did not hold hearings on Subtitle C. The Subcommittee held hearings on Privatization of the United States Enrichment Corporation on February 24, 1995.

COMMITTEE COST ESTIMATE

In compliance with clause 7(a) of rule XIII of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee believes that enactment of Subtitle C would result in no additional costs to the Federal government.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE ESTIMATE

Pursuant to clause 2(1)(3)(C) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, a letter from the Congressional Budget Office providing a cost estimate for all six subtitles of Title III is attached.

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, June 16, 1997.

Hon. TOM BLILEY,
*Chairman, Committee on Commerce,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.*

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for the non-Medicare reconciliation recommendations of the House Committee on Commerce (Title III). The estimate for the committee’s recommendations for Medicare (Title IV) is being provided under separate cover.

The estimate includes a summary table that shows the budgetary effects of the committee’s proposals over the 1998–2002 period, and additional, more detailed tables of estimated effects through 2007. CBO understands that the Committee on the Budget will be responsible for interpreting how these proposals compare with the reconciliation instructions in the budget resolution. This estimate assumes the reconciliation bill will be enacted by August 15, 1997; the estimate could change if the bill is enacted later.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contacts are listed at the end of the estimate.

Sincerely,

Enclosure.

Non-Medicare Reconciliation Recommendations of the House Committee on Commerce (Title III)

Summary: Title III contains five subtitles aimed at providing budgetary savings from federal energy programs, auctions of licenses for use of portions of the electromagnetic spectrum, and Medicaid. A sixth subtitle would provide for increased direct spending by funding a child health care initiative. CBO estimates that enacting the provisions of Title III would produce net budgetary savings totaling $6.9 billion over the 1998–2002 period.

By extending the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's (NRC's) authority to collect fees from utilities. Subtitle A would impose an intergovernmental and private-sector mandate as defined by the unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995 (UMRA). This provision would not impose costs above the threshold established in that law for intergovernmental mandates ($50 million in 1996, adjusted for inflation). CBO cannot determine whether the direct costs of this provision would exceed the annual threshold for private-sector mandates ($100 million in 1996, adjusted for inflation), because UMRA is unclear as to how to define the direct cost associated with extending an existing mandate that has not yet expired. Depending on how they are measured, the direct costs to the private sector could exceed the threshold. Other subtitles of Title III contain provisions that, while not mandates as defined in UMRA, would have significant impacts on the budgets of state, local, and tribal governments.

Description of major provisions: Subtitle A would extend through 2002 the NRC's authority to charge fees to offset 100 percent of its general fund appropriation.

Subtitle B would revise the terms under which the Department of Energy (DOE) could lease excess capacity of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) to foreign governments and would direct the department to spend any income derived from leasing after fiscal year 2002 on SPR-related activities without further appropriation. The fees charged for storage would have to fully compensate the United States for all of the costs associated with storing and removing the oil, including the cost of replacement facilities, if necessitated by the leasing activity.

Subtitle C would direct DOE to sell specified amounts of natural and low enriched uranium that have been declared surplus to national security needs. DOE would be required to sell 3.2 million pounds during each of the fiscal years 1999 through 2002, subject to certain conditions. In particular, before selling the uranium, DOE would have to determine that selling the specified amounts over the 1999–2002 period would satisfy existing statutory criteria regarding the sale of such materials from DOE's stockpiles, and proceeds from the sales would have to be collected and deposited in the general fund of the Treasury between 1999 and 2002.

Subtitle D contains several provisions relating to assignment of licenses for using the electromagnetic spectrum. It would instruct the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to use competitive bidding to assign licenses for most mutually exclusive applications of the electromagnetic spectrum and it would extend the FCC's authority to conduct such auctions through fiscal year 2002. Under current law, that authority expires at the end of fiscal year 1998. The subtitle also would amend current law by broadening the commission's authority to use competitive bidding to assign licenses. Current law restricts the use of competitive bidding to those mutually exclusive applications in which the licensee would receive compensation from subscribers to a communications service.

In addition, Subtitle D would require the FCC and the Department of Commerce, through the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA), to make available blocks of spectrum for allocation for commercial use and to assign the rights to use those blocks by competitive bidding, if the FCC determines that various specified conditions are met for each of the blocks of spectrum identified in the subtitle. The additional licenses that could be assigned by competitive bidding would grant the right to use 100 megahertz (MHz) of spectrum located below 3 gigahertz (GHz) currently under the FCC's jurisdiction and an additional 20 MHz also below 3 GHz to be identified by the NTIA and transferred to the FCC's jurisdiction.

Under current law, a part of the spectrum currently reserved for television broadcasting will become available for reallocation as broadcasters comply (over the next several years) with the FCC's direction to adopt digital television broadcasting technology to replace the current analog technology. This subtitle would make available for licensing and assignment by competitive bidding certain frequencies that are currently allocated for analog television broadcasting, including a part of the spectrum between 746 MHz and 806 MHz (frequencies currently allocated for primary use by ultra high frequency television broadcasting on channels 60 through 69).

The requirement that the commission use competitive bidding to assign the rights to use the frequencies noted in Subtitle D would be conditional. In all cases, the FCC would be directed to refrain from using competitive bidding unless it determines that license sales granting the use of various frequencies will meet specified dollar targets for aggregate winning bids. In addition, the commission would be authorized to void the results of any auctions that take place but fail to meet targets for aggregate winning bids. Moreover, the commission could choose to delay assignment of licenses by competitive bidding if it determines that conducting auctions at a later date "will better attain the objectives of recovering for the public a fair portion of the value of the public spectrum resource and avoiding unjust enrichment." Finally, for the frequencies between 746 MHz and 806 MHz, the FCC would not be permitted to make allocations and assign licenses by auction unless each qualifying low-power television station (as defined in the title) is assigned a frequency below 746 MHz to continue its operation.

Subtitle E would reduce federal payments for disproportionate share hospitals (DSH). Except for states whose DSH spending in 1995 was under 1 percent of medical assistance spending, state allotments would depend on whether a state was designated as a high- or low-DSH state in 1997. For high-DSH states, allotments would equal each state's 1995 DSH spending reduced by 2 percent in 1998, with larger reductions in later years, reaching 40 percent in 2002. For low-DSH states, the state allotment would equal the state's 1995 spending reduced by half of the percentage reduction applied to high-DSH states.

This subtitle also includes provisions giving states greater flexibility in how they administer their Medicaid programs. The Boren amendment, which requires states to reimburse hospitals and nursing homes at "reasonable and adequate" rates, would be repealed. States would also have greater leeway to implement managed care programs, expand eligibility, change benefits, and meet federal requirements for administrative activities.

Subtitle F establishes a Child Health Assistance Program that would provide matching grants to states for the provision of child health care assistance to uninsured, low-income children. The money would be allocated on the basis of participating states' shares of the total number of uninsured children, adjusted for the average cost of health care. The state matching requirement would be 20 percent. States would have substantial discretion in how to spend these funds, and could use them to purchase health insurance coverage from group plans, arrange for health care services directly through providers, expand their Medicaid programs, or use other approved methods.

Estimated cost to the Federal Government: CBO estimates that the provisions of Title III would reduce direct spending by $6.7 billion over the next five years. That estimated impact would come from enacting Subtitles B, D, E, and F. In addition, we estimate that enacting Subtitle C would yield $184 million in asset sale proceeds over the same period. Gross budgetary savings would total $24.5 billion over the 1998–2002 period, but that amount would be partially offset by new direct spending, primarily under Subtitle F, totaling $17.6 billion over the same period. Enacting Subtitle A would, by itself, have no budgetary impact relative to the budget resolution baseline.

The budgetary effects of this legislation fall within budget functions 270 (energy), 370 (commerce and housing credit), 550 (health), and 950 (undistributed offsetting receipts).

Basis of estimate:

NUCLEAR REGULATORY COMMISSION ANNUAL CHARGES (SUBTITLE A)

This provision would extend through 2002 the NRC's authority to charge fees to offset 100 percent of its general fund appropriation. Under current law, after 1998 the NRC would be authorized to set fees on the industries it regulates sufficient to cover only 33 percent of its budget. Because the amount of fees collected under this provision would be determined by the size of the NRC's general fund appropriation, this provision would not affect direct spending.

Assuming future appropriations for the NRC continue at the 1997 level adjusted for inflation, enactment of this provision would increase offsetting collections by an average of about $340 million annually over the 1999–2002 period. Under rules for projecting discretionary spending established in the Budget Enforcement Act of 1990, however, the baseline projection of NRC spending for the 1998–2002 period is based on the agency's net spending level in 1997. Because the 1997 level reflects fee collections sufficient to offset 100 percent of the NRC's general fund appropriations, the provision to extend full-cost recovery does not produce any discretionary savings relative to the budget resolution baseline.

LEASE OF EXCESS SPR CAPACITY (SUBTITLE B)

This subtitle would remove some of the statutory impediments to leasing the excess capacity of the SPR to foreign governments. For example, products stored on behalf of foreign governments would not be considered part of the U.S. reserve and could be exported.

Estimates of how much of the excess capacity (currently about 110 million barrels) would be leased are speculative, because the decision to lease resides with foreign governments, not DOE. At this time, most nations needing capacity either have plans for domestic storage or face regulatory barriers to using U.S. facilities. CBO expects, however, that one or more nations would choose to store small quantities of oil in the SPR to accommodate growth in their storage requirements or to satisfy other strategic objectives. We estimate that such leasing activity would generate receipts totaling about $13 million over the 1999–2002 period, assuming a storage fee of about $1.20 per barrel (in 1997 dollars). Beginning in 2003, this provision would no longer generate net receipts because DOE would be authorized to spend the proceeds from leasing to purchase oil for the reserve without further appropriation.

SALE OF DOE ASSETS (SUBTITLE C)

CBO estimates that enacting Subtitle C would generate asset sale proceeds totaling $184 million over the 1992–2002 period. Under current law, DOE is required to sell uranium from its stockpile to raise a total of $77 million to offset appropriations provided for fiscal years 1996 and 1997. CBO projects that DOE will sell about three million pounds of uranium in 1998 and about 1.5 million pounds in 1999 to meet the $77 million target in current law. Based on recent departmental findings supporting that effort, CBO expects that, under the conditions specified in this subtitle, the Secretary could justify selling a total of 3.2 million pounds per year through 2002. Because we expect DOE to be marketing about 1.5 million pounds in 1999 under current law, we assume that DOE would sell slightly less than 2 million pounds under this new authority that year. Hence, the estimate of $184 million in proceeds attributable to Subtitle C is based on an assumed sales total of about 11 million pounds of uranium over the 1999–2002 period. Based on information provided by the department and committee staff, we assume that the uranium being sold as a result of this provision would be in addition to the Russian-derived uranium that must be sold over the same period. Finally, the spending required to conduct the sale would have no net effect on outlays, because this bill would require DOE to finance such costs using unobligated balances that otherwise would have been spent on other activities.

RECEIPTS FROM SPECTRUM AUCTIONS (SUBTITLE D)

CBO estimates that the federal government would collect $9.7 billion in offsetting receipts over the 1998–2002 period from enacting the provisions contained in Subtitle D. This estimate reflects the likelihood that some of the auctions authorized by the subtitle would either not occur in the next five years or would yield relatively low aggregate winning bids. CBO believes that significantly higher aggregate auction receipts could be obtained under auction authority without the restrictions included in Subtitle D. Estimates for the major components of Subtitle D are discussed below and displayed in Table 3.

CBO expects that extending and broadening the FCC's authority to auction licenses through 2002 (under section 3301) would increase receipts by $5.8 billion over the 1998–2002 period. Most of the estimated receipts would be generated by the auction of licenses permitting the use of frequencies above 3 GHz that have not been specifically designated for reallocation or auction under existing law. CBO anticipates that, in complying with its mandate to assign licenses for most mutually exclusive applications of the spectrum by competitive bidding, the commission will make available such frequencies under the general authority provided by this section.

In addition, CBO estimates that the provisions of section 3301 that require the FCC to use competitive bidding to assign the rights to use 120 MHz of frequencies below 3 GHz (100 MHz to be reallocated by the FCC and 20 MHz to be identified by the NTIA) would generate receipts of $3.2 billion over the 1998–2002 period. This estimate reflects the significant probability that some auctions would not be held in the next five years and that some would be voided under the conditions set forth in the legislation. CBO's estimate of receipts for future FCC auctions is based on the expectation that prices for FCC licenses will fall from the levels of recent years as more spectrum is brought to the market. CBO has further reduced its estimate for the 102 MHz of spectrum identified for auction in this subtitle because the legislation does not specify the location on the electromagnetic spectrum for 55 MHz of the 100 MHz that it would require the commission to reallocate and auction. There is some doubt as to whether sufficient spectrum can be identified and auctioned to meet the 120 MHz target. Moreover, the subtitle directs the commission to refrain from holding auctions under certain circumstances, and authorizes it to void the results of auctions if the targeted level of two-thirds of $7.5 billion in aggregate winning bids is not achieved. These provisions create the prospect that the commission will decide not to conduct some auctions and will void the results of others. Our estimate reflects these uncertainties.

CBO estimates that enacting section 3302, which pertains to the recovery and auction of frequencies now allocated for analog television broadcasting, would yield $700 million in auction receipts. This section requires the FCC to delay the recovery of the frequencies used by analog TV broadcasters in a market beyond December 31, 2006, if more than 5 percent of households in that market continue to rely exclusively on over-the-air terrestrial analog television signals. It would therefore have significant uncertainty as to when bidders would be able to use the frequencies and could reduce auction receipts by 50 percent or more. Accordingly, the $700 million figure reflects (1) the possibility that the FCC might refrain from conducting the auction, (2) a lower estimate of the likely receipts if the commission holds the auction, and (3) the possibility that the commission would void the auction results because receipts would fall below the target of two-thirds of $4 billion.

CBO estimates that no receipts would result from enacting section 3303, which pertains to the current television frequencies between 746 MHz and 806 MHz. Subsection (f) would require the FCC to assign each qualifying low-power television station a frequency below 746 MHz to permit continued operation before it allocates and assigns by auction any new licenses in the 746 MHz to 806 MHz range. Based on information from the FCC, CBO believes that there is not enough free spectrum below 746 MHz to allow the commission to carry out that requirements.

MEDICAID (SUBTITLE E)

Subtitle E includes provisions to give states greater leeway in how they administer their Medicaid programs, maintain quality assurance, and reduce federal payments for disproportionate share hospitals (DSH). Some of these provisions would not significantly affect spending and others would increase spending. On balance, however, the subtitle would reduce federal outlays by $11.4 billion over the 1998–2002 period (see Table 4). The assumptions underlying the estimates of costs or savings for provisions that would affect federal spending are described below.

CHAPTER 1—STATE FLEXIBILITY REFORMS

The provisions in this chapter would give states increased flexibility to implement managed care programs, set payment rates, expand eligibility, implement programs of all-inclusive care for the elderly (PACE), change benefit requirements; and meet federal requirements for administrative activities.

Determination of Hospital Stay.—CBO estimates that requiring Medicaid health plans to allow physicians or other attending health care providers and patients to determine the appropriate length of inpatient hospital stays would increase costs by $0.8 billion over five years. This provision would lead to an increase in the number of inpatient days, with the result that states would have to pay health plans higher capitation rates to cover enrollees.

Payment for Federally Qualified Health Care Services (FQHCs).—This provision would phase out over five years the requirement that states reimburse rural health clinics (RHCs) and most federally qualified health centers on a cost basis. The provision would eliminate cost-based reimbursement for organizations designated by the Health Resources and Services Administration as look-alike FQHCs. Without the requirement that payments reflect costs, CBO assumes that states would lower reimbursement rates to FQHCs and RHCs to be more consistent with overall Medicaid payment rates at the end of the phase-out period. CBO estimates that this provision would reduce Medicaid costs by $0.3 billion over the next five years.

Repeal the Boren Amendment.—The Boren Amendment requires states to reimburse hospitals and nursing homes at rates that are “reasonable and adequate to meet the costs which must be incurred by efficiently and economically operated facilities in order to provide care and services in conformity with applicable state and federal laws, regulations, and quality and safety standards.” Many states have argued that suits or threats of suits under the Boren Amendment have been an important cause of rapid increases in provider reimbursement rates.

CBO estimates that the repeal of the Boren Amendment would reduce spending by about $1.2 billion over the 1998–2002 period. This estimate assumes that reimbursement rates for institutional providers would increase more slowly than if providers could continue to use the threat of Boren suits as leverage against the states. About 40 percent of the savings would come from payments to hospitals and 60 percent would come from payments to nursing homes.

Although payments to these providers are generally increasing overall, CBO's projections of Medicaid spending under current law assume that some states reduce provider reimbursement rates in any given year. Accordingly, the floor would increase costs slightly in 1998 because it would prevent these states from reducing rates.

12-Month Continuous Coverage.—This provision would allow states to enroll children for the entire year without regard to changes in the incomes of their families. Under current law, CBO estimates that children stay enrolled in the Medicaid program for an average of 9 months in any year. If all states opted to extend coverage for an entire year, Medicaid costs would increase by almost $14 billion. However, because this option would be so costly—and because few states take advantage of the option to provide 6-month continuous coverage under Section 1115 or Section 1915(b) waivers—CBO estimates that states accounting for only 5 percent of total costs would choose the option. Thus, this provision would cost $0.7 billion over the 1998–2002 period.

This provision would increase the average number of children enrolled on the Medicaid program in any month by 130,000. But because some of these children would otherwise have been insured, the number of children would decline by about 80,000.

Payment of Home Health Related Medicare Part B Premium.—This provision would expand the Specified Low-Income Medicare Beneficiary (SLMB) program, which pays the Medicare Part B premium for Medicaid enrollees with family incomes between 100 percent and 120 percent of the poverty level. Under the provision, the federal government would reimburse states for 100 percent of costs for the portion of the Medicare Part B premium attributable to home health spending for enrollees with family incomes between 120 and 175 percent of the federal poverty level. CBO estimates that federal outlays would increase by $0.5 billion over the 1998–2002 period.

Physician Assistants.—Expanding Medicaid benefits for services of physician assistants would increase costs by $0.1 billion during the 1998–2002 period. Although most state Medicaid programs already pay for these services, there are several states for which this policy would represent a change from current law. CBO's estimate accounts for costs due to increased demand for physician assistant services that would accompany this policy change in these states and, to a lesser degree, for induced demand in the other states that would occur with the inclusion of this provision. Half of the costs attributable to new demand for services would be offset by lower spending for physician services that are covered under current law.

CHAPTER 2—QUALITY ASSURANCE

CBO estimates that the application of the prudent layperson standard for emergency medical conditions to contracts with Medicaid HMOs would increase costs by $0.1 billion over five years. This provision would increase managed care plans' liability for emergency room use and, therefore, increase premiums for Medicaid managed care plans and thus federal spending.

CHAPTER 3—FEDERAL PAYMENTS

This chapter specifies allotments that would limit the amount of federal reimbursement available for state disproportionate share hospital (DSH) programs over the 1998–2002 period. The bill classifies states into three categories according to how their DSH spending compared with total medical assistance payments. The allotment for a state whose DSH spending in 1995 was under 1 percent of medical assistance spending that year would equal the state's 1995 amount. The allotment for a state designated as a high-DSH state in 1997—one whose DSH payments were greater than 12 percent of medical assistance payments—would equal the state's 1995 spending reduced by 2 percent in 1998, 5 percent in 1999, 20 percent in 2000, 30 percent in 2001 and 40 percent in 2002 and subsequent years. The allotment for any other state would equal the state's 1995 spending reduced by half of the percentage reduction applied to high-DSH states. The bill also specifies that DSH payments would be made directly to hospitals and not included in the capitation payments for managed care plans. This chapter also includes provisions that would guarantee that DSH payments to certain children's and teaching hospitals be no less than DSH payments made to such hospitals in 1995 for fiscal year 1999. This amount would be increased by overall Medicaid growth for subsequent years.

CBO estimates that these provisions would reduce federal outlays by $13.1 billion over the 1998–2002 period. This estimate takes into account state responses to the reduced availability of DSH money and interactions with the Child Health Assistance Program (CHAP) in Subtitle F of the bill. It is based on the preliminary designations of high- and low-DSH states published in the Federal Register on January 31, 1997.

By itself, a policy to limit DSH spending would not be fully effective because states could restore some of the lost federal revenues by increasing their use of intergovernmental transfers or Medicaid maximization techniques. (Intergovernmental transfers are a process by which public hospitals or other public facilities transfer money to the state, which then uses these funds to make DSH payments—mainly to those same facilities—and receives federal matching dollars for those payments. Medicaid maximization refers to states shifting to the Medicaid program activities that were previously financed without federal assistance.) CBO estimates that these strategies would reduce the savings from limits on DSH spending by 25 percent. In this case, however, states would not feel the full effects of the limits because some of their CHAP funds could be used for existing state activities, such as health insurance programs or direct provision of health care services to uninsured children. Because of this flexibility, the reduction in payments to states to which CBO applies the 25 percent factor is smaller, and net federal savings from limiting DSH spending are larger than would be the case for a stand-alone policy.

Finally, this subtitle would provide $20 million a year to be allocated among the 12 states with the highest number of undocumented aliens for emergency health services provided to them.

CHILD HEALTH ASSISTANCE PROGRAM (CHAP)—(SUBTITLE F)

The Child Health Assistance Program would provide funds enabling states to initiate and expand the provision of child health care assistance to uninsured, low-income children. The bill would provide $2.9 billion per year ($14.4 billion over the 1998–2002 period) to finance these activities. Of this amount, 0.5 percent would be allocated to the territories. The remaining money would be distributed according to each state's share of the total number of uninsured children in all states, adjusted for the average cost of health care. The state matching requirement would be 20 percent.

The bill would provide states with a great deal of flexibility in how to spend these funds. State could purchase health insurance coverage from group plans, arrange for health care services directly through providers, expand their Medicaid programs, or use other methods approved by the Secretary. CBO makes no specific assumption about which approach states would choose. However, CBO assumes it unlikely that states would opt to use their state allocations to expand the Medicaid program.

Given the range of options from which a state could choose, the number of children who would be covered under the programs cannot be estimated with precision. Whereas some states would choose to purchase insurance coverage, others might choose to provide health care services directly. Access to health care for uninsured children would increase under both approaches, but only the former approach would be counted as an increase in health insurance coverage. Further, not all of this spending would represent a net increase in health care services. CBO assumes that states would use some of the money to substitute for funds that are currently being spent on these services, including payments to disproportionate share hospitals, state health programs, and administrative activities.

After accounting for spending on the provision of direct services and other activities, CBO assumes that states could cover about 500,000 children through new health insurance programs. In addition, CBO estimates that in the process of enrolling children in these programs, states would identify some children who were eligible for Medicaid and would enroll them in that program. As a result, federal Medicaid outlays would increase by $0.7 billion over the 1998–2002 period; on a full-year equivalent basis, Medicaid enrollment would increase by about 125,000 children annually. Not all of the children newly enrolled in State programs or Medicaid would otherwise have been uninsured, however, so that the net effect of this provision would be to reduce the number of uninsured children by about 380,000.

Subtitle F would also allow states the option to provide Medicaid coverage to children during a period of presumptive eligibility. CBO estimates that this provision would increase federal costs of $0.5 billion over five years. Of this amount, $0.1 billion would be deducted from states' CHAP allotments for spending during a period of presumptive eligibility. The remaining $0.4 billion would be attributable to an overall increase in Medicaid enrollment. (These costs are shown under Subtitle E in Table 4.) CBO assumes that states would limit the entities authorized to determine eligibility to those who currently so do for pregnant women.

Estimated impact on State, local, and tribal governments: By extending the NRC's authority to collect fees from publicly owned utilities, Subtitle A would impose an intergovernmental mandate as defined by UMRA, but this mandate would not impose costs above the threshold established in that law ($50 million in 1996, adjusted for inflation). Other subtitles of Title III contain provisions that would have significant impacts on the budgets of state, local, and tribal governments.

MANDATES

Subtitle A would extend, through fiscal year 2002, the NRC's authority to charge fees to offset 100 percent of its general fund appropriation. The existing authority to charge these fees expires after fiscal year 1998. After that year, NRC would be authorized to set fees equal to only 33 percent of its budget. CBO cannot determine whether this mandate would impose any direct costs because UMRA is unclear as to how to define costs associated with extending an existing mandate that has not yet expired.

In any case, this mandate would impose costs on state, local and tribal governments significantly below the threshold established by UMRA. The amount of fees collected under this provision would depend on the level of future appropriations. Assuming appropriations remain at the 1997 level, adjusted for inflation, CBO estimates that this provision would result in additional collections of about $340 million annually over the 1999–2002 period. CBO estimates that a small percentage of these fees—less than five percent—would be paid by publicly owned utilities, so this provision would result in additional costs to state, local, and tribal governments totaling no more than $20 million per year.

OTHER SIGNIFICANT IMPACTS

Communications (Subtitle D).—This subtitle would instruct the FCC to allocate a portion of the spectrum to state and local governments for public safety services. It would also allow state and local governments to use unassigned radio frequencies for public safety purposes under certain circumstances.

Medicaid (Subtitle E).—By expanding benefits and eligibility, CBO estimates that this subtitle would increase net state Medicaid spending excluding DSH. The subtitle would also decrease the federal government's share of DSH payments by $13.1 billion over the next five years but contains a provision that would require states to maintain their DSH payments to certain teaching and children's hospitals at 1995 levels (increased annually by the rate of growth of their Medicaid programs). This reduction in DSH payments would not constitute a mandate under UMRA because reductions in federal funding to states for large entitlement programs are not mandates if states have the flexibility to reduce their own programmatic or financial responsibilities under the program. States have significant programmatic flexibility under Medicaid. Finally, this title would provide states with $100 million over the next five years to provide emergency health services to undocumented aliens.

Child Health Coverage (Subtitle F).—This subtitle would create a new program—Child Health Assistance Program (CHAP)—that would provide states with $14.4 billion over the next five years to provide assistance to low income children who are uninsured in obtaining health coverage. States would provide 20 percent of this program’s funding.

Estimated impact on the private sector: CBO has identified one private-sector mandate in Title III. Subtitle A would impose a mandate on the private sector by extending the Nuclear Regulatory Commission’s authority to collect annual charges from nuclear utilities, resulting in additional collections averaging $340 million a year from 1999 through 2002. CBO estimates that most of the fees would be paid by investor-owned nuclear utilities.

CBO cannot determine whether the direct costs of this mandate would exceed the annual threshold defined in UMRA, because UMRA is unclear as to how to define the direct costs associated with extending an existing mandate that has not yet expired. Measured against the private-sector costs that would be incurred if current law remains in place and the annual fee declines, the total direct cost of extending this mandate would be about $300 million annually, beginning in fiscal year 1999. In this case the cost of the mandate would exceed the annual threshold for the private sector as defined in UMRA. By contrast, measured against current private-sector costs, the direct cost of the mandate would be zero.

¹ Not Applicable: extension of NRC fees at their current full-cost recovery rate has no effect on direct spending because such fees are recorded in the budget as offsetting collections credited to appropriations. FEDERAL MANDATES STATEMENT

The Committee adopts as its own the estimate of Federal mandates prepared by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office pursuant to section 423 of the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE STATEMENT

No advisory committees within the meaning of section 5(b) of the Federal Advisory Committee Act were created by this legislation.

CONSTITUTIONAL AUTHORITY STATEMENT

Pursuant to clause 2(1)(4) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee finds that the Constitutional authority for this legislation is provided in Article I, section 8, clause 3, which grants Congress the power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, among the several States, and with the Indian tribes.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE LEGISLATION

Section 3201. Sale of DOE surplus uranium assets

Subsection (a) directs the Secretary of Energy to sell 3.2 million pounds per year of natural and low-enriched uranium that the President has determined is not necessary for national security needs during the period Fiscal Year 1999 through Fiscal Year 2002.

Paragraph (1) provides that such sales shall be for delivery after January 1, 1999.

Paragraph (2) conditions any sale of surplus uranium on a determination, for the period Fiscal Year 1999 through Fiscal Year 2002, by the Secretary under section 3112(d)(2)(B) of the USEC Privatization Act of 1996 (42 U.S.C.2297h-10(d)(2)(B)).

Paragraph (3) requires that any sale or sales be made at a price not less than fair market value of the uranium and in a manner that maximizes proceeds to the Treasury.

The Secretary is directed to receive the proceeds from such sale in the period Fiscal Year 1999 through Fiscal Year 2002 and deposit such proceeds in the General Fund of the Treasury.

Subsection (b) provides that the cost of making the sales required by subsection (a) shall be covered by unobligated balances of appropriations of the Department of Energy.

CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW MADE BY SUBTITLE C

Subtitle C makes no changes in existing law.

MINORITY, ADDITIONAL OR DISSENTING VIEWS

Minority Views on Subtitle C are provided at the conclusion of the report on this Title of the bill.

SUBTITLE D—COMMUNICATIONS

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The purposes of Subtitle D are: (1) to broaden and to extend the Federal Communications Commission's (FCC's) authority to assign licenses for radio-based services by means of competitive bidding, or specifically “auctions;” (2) to direct the FCC and the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) to make certain spectrum reallocations; and (3) to instruct the FCC to assign most of the licenses for the use of the reallocated spectrum by means of auctions.

Subtitle D consists of four sections. Section 3301 extends the FCC’s auction authority through the end of Fiscal Year 2002. It also broadens the FCC’s auction authority by requiring all radio-based licenses for which mutually exclusive applications are filed with the FCC to be assigned by means of competitive bidding, unless the license is intended for a service which is exempted from the FCC’s auction authority. Section 3301 also directs the FCC and the NTIA collectively to reallocate 120 megahertz (MHz) of spectrum located below 3 gigahertz (GHz) for commercial use, and to assign through competitive bidding the licenses to use the newly allocated spectrum. The FCC is further charged with ensuring that the public recovers a minimum level of receipts.

Section 3302 establishes a statutory framework for both auctioning and recapturing the 78 MHz of spectrum that current television broadcast licensees use to transmit in analog format. It precludes the FCC from renewing any analog license beyond December 31, 2006, unless a certain number of households in a given market continue to rely exclusively on over-the-air analog signals. The licenses to use the recaptured 78 MHz of spectrum will be assigned through competitive bidding beginning in 2001. The FCC must ensure that the public recovers a minimum level of receipts.

Section 3303 allocates and assigns the 60 MHz of spectrum located between television broadcast channels 60 through 69 to public safety services and for general commercial use. The FCC is directed to set aside up to 24 MHz of the 60 MHz total for public safety, and the remaining 36 MHz for general commercial use to be assigned by means of competitive bidding. With regard to the 36 MHz slated for auction, the FCC must ensure that the public recovers a minimum level of receipts.

Finally, section 3304 directs the FCC to initiate its statutorily mandated evaluation of its competitive bidding systems no later than July 1, 1997.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

Spectrum management

The radio “spectrum” is not a physical object, but instead is a conceptual tool used to organize and map a set of physical phenomena. Electric and magnetic fields produce waves that move through space at different speeds, or “frequencies.” The set of all possible frequencies is called the electromagnetic spectrum. The most widely used portion of the electromagnetic spectrum for radio communications is the portion of the spectrum ranging from 10 kilohertz (KHz) to 300 GHz. Spectrum may be shared by two or more users, but in many cases, the use of a frequency at a given location typically excludes the use of that frequency, and maybe even adjacent frequencies, from being used by others. Spectrum, in other words, is a finite (though non-depletable) resource.

The right to use the electromagnetic spectrum is essential to the provision of such services as mobile telephone service and television broadcasting. It also is essential for such public goods as local law enforcement and national defense communications. The FCC allocates use of the radio spectrum for private parties and for State and local governments. NTIA, an agency within the Department of Commerce, is responsible for the same management activities for Federal government use of the radio spectrum. NTIA utilizes the Interdepartmental Radio Advisory Committee (IRAC) to establish priorities and encourage efficient spectrum use by Federal government users.

Spectrum auctions

Prior to 1993, licenses for use of the radio spectrum were assigned in one of three possible ways: (1) on a first-come, first-served basis; (2) through comparative hearings; or (3) by lottery. Each of these methods had shortcomings and proved to be an inefficient way to assign licenses. Therefore, as part of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 (OBRA 93), Congress gave the FCC authority to use competitive bidding to assign licenses when more than one applicant seeks an exclusive license to provide telecommunications service on a subscription or fee-for-service basis. For example, the FCC traditionally could not use auctions for non-subscription services (such as the traditional broadcast services of radio and television), even though mutual exclusivity typically exists. Likewise, the FCC may not use auctions where two parties are capable of sharing spectrum, notwithstanding the fact that both parties intend to use the spectrum for subscription-based services. The FCC's auction authority is scheduled to expire on September 30, 1998.

Auctions, for the most part, have proven to be consistent with the Committee's long-term goals for telecommunications policy. The FCC has used auctions to assign licenses for competing applicants far more expeditiously than under comparative hearings or lotteries. A wide array of innovative radio-based services, including personal communications services (PCS), narrowband and broadband paging services, and direct broadcast satellite services (DBS), have expeditiously reached consumers as a result of auctions. Auctions also ensure that licenses are assigned to the entity that most values the frequencies. Consequently, consumers now enjoy the benefits of new and improved services that are offered in a more price-competitive marketplace.

Auctions are also administratively efficient. They expedite licensing, and thus ensure that new or additional services are rapidly deployed. In addition, since the advent of auctions in 1993, the FCC has recorded winning bids of approximately $23 billion and has collected receipts of more than $10 billion. Auctions thus have made a contribution to reducing the Federal deficit, something comparative hearings and lotteries never did.

Still, the Committee is concerned that some policymakers have come to view auctions exclusively as a tool for balancing the Federal budget, and that this view poses a threat to long-term telecommunications policy. The Committee believes that auctions must be designed to serve spectrum management goals, and not short-term budgetary needs. Otherwise, auctions will be held for the sake of raising money, rather than on the basis of technological availability and clearly identified consumer demand. Indeed, the inevitable (not to mention absurd) result of an auction policy driven solely by budgetary considerations would be a dictate to the FCC that it reallocate every single megahertz for competitive bidding—without regard for incumbent licensees—and that the FCC hold those auctions as soon as possible.

The Committee also notes that policymakers must be careful in advocating auctions on the basis of expected revenues. The process of predicting the outcome of spectrum auctions is an imprecise one. Thus, American taxpayers should not be misled to believe that a critical resource of theirs will be sold at a premium, only to find out that in the end, the scarce resource was given away at “fire sale” prices. For example, Congress, in response to budgetary pressures, passed legislation in 1996 directing the FCC to auction licenses for flexible-use wireless communications services (WCS) located in the 2.3 GHz band. The Congressional Budget Office initially predicted the WCS auction would raise $2.9 billion. In the end, the WCS auction raised only $13.6 million, less than 0.5 percent of the expected outcome.

Thus, while the Committee concludes that the FCC’s auction authority should be broadened and extended, it also seeks to ensure that the FCC designs its future auctions to reflect more than just budgetary considerations. Auctions were originally intended to speed the deployment of new services, as well as to guarantee that the American public is fairly compensated for the use of one of its most precious resources. The Committee is confident that Subtitle D serves these overarching goals. The Committee, however, intends to remain vigilant in overseeing the FCC’s administration of its auction authority. Indeed, the Committee will not hesitate to let the FCC’s auction authority expire on September 30, 2002, if, and when, auctions no longer serve the Committee’s stated objectives.

On Wednesday, February 12, 1997, the Committee’s Subcommittee on Telecommunications, Trade, and Consumer Protection held an oversight hearing on Spectrum Management Policy. Mr. Robert Wright, President and Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of NBC, began the hearing with a brief demonstration on digital television. The demonstration was followed by testimony from: The Honorable Larry Irving, Administrator for the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA); The Honorable Reed Hundt, Chairman of the FCC; Mr. Michael Amarosa, Deputy Commissioner for the New York City Police Department; Mr. James Keelor, President of Cosmos Broadcasting; and Mr. Benjamin Scott, President and CEO of PrimeCo PCS.

COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION

On June 5, and June 10, 1997, the Subcommittee on Telecommunications, Trade, and Consumer Protection met in open session and considered a Committee Print entitled “Title III, Subtitle D—Communications.” On June 10, 1997, the Subcommittee approved for Full Committee consideration the Committee Print entitled "Title III, Subtitle D—Communications," amended, by a roll call vote of 13 yeas to 12 nays, with 1 voting "Pass". On June 11, 1997, the Committee met in open session and ordered a Committee Print entitled "Title III, Subtitle D—Communications" transmitted to the House Committee on the Budget, amended, for inclusion in the 1997 Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act by a roll call vote of 27 yeas to 22 nays.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE LEGISLATION

Section 3301. Spectrum auctions(a) Extension and expansion of auction authority

Subsection 3301(a) amends section 309(j) of the Communications Act, which grants to the FCC authority to use auctions as a means of granting licenses for radio-based services. The subsection requires the FCC to employ a system of competitive bidding if presented with mutually exclusive applications for the use of spectrum. The Committee makes clear, however, that the FCC must continue to seek solutions to avoid a finding of mutual exclusivity. Notwithstanding the FCC's broadened auction authority, this subsection explicitly exempts certain services from such authority. The exemption, for example, applies to licenses for public safety radio services, including private, internal radio services offered by both State and local government entities, as well as non-government entities. The exemption also applies to initial licenses for digital television service that the FCC chooses to assign to existing analog television licensees.

Subsection 3301(a) also directs the FCC, in designing future auctions, to conduct a pilot test of a system known as "contingent combinatorial bidding" by operating an FCC auction using such a system. Contingent combinatorial bidding (also known as contingent package bidding) is an auction system that allows prospective bidders to bid on various combinations, or packages, of licenses in a single bid, and allows bidders to enter multiple alternative bids within a single auction round. The Committee believes that using a contingent combinatorial bidding system may allow the FCC to conduct auctions more efficiently and effectively. Potential licensees may be able to better tailor their bidding to obtain the best possible license configuration for their needs, creating the most efficient use of the spectrum. This system may also potentially enhance auction revenues for the U.S. Treasury. The FCC is encouraged to test this system as soon as practicable, and may perform the test on its own or by contract.

Subsection 3301(a) further requires the FCC to ensure that interested bidders have sufficient time: (1) before the issuance of bidding rules, to comment on any proposed rules; and (2) after the issuance of bidding rules, to develop business plans, assess market conditions, and evaluate the availability of service equipment. By adopting this language, the Committee intends for the FCC to protect against future auctions that attract only a few participants because of insufficient time to gather the information that is necessary for a robust auction.

Subsection 3301(a) also extends the FCC's auction authority to September 30, 2002, and repeals the FCC's authority to select licensees randomly from among competing applications. It also repeals the FCC's authority to retain auction receipts for the purpose of offsetting the cost of conducting auctions. In repealing the FCC's fee retention authority, subsection 3301(a) ensures that Congress will have a proper accounting of all of the FCC's expenditures.

The FCC's broadened auction authority under subsection 3301(a) does not cover any licenses for which the FCC has accepted mutually exclusive applications prior to the date of enactment of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997. The Committee is aware that numerous applications for new stations on vacant NTSC channels were filed on or before the September 20, 1996, deadline established by the FCC for the filing of applications. And according to established procedures, the FCC will announce that competing applications to these applications may be filed when cut-off notices are issued. The Committee expects the FCC to process these applications promptly, and to also establish cut-off dates for competing applications. This process will ensure that all such applications are filed and accepted by the FCC prior to the enactment of this legislation.

(b) Commission obligation to make additional spectrum available by auction

Subsection 3301(b) directs the FCC to reallocate, in the aggregate, 100 MHz of spectrum. This spectrum must be located below 3 GHz, and be comprised of individual bands spanning not less than 25 MHz (unless smaller bands can be expected to produce greater receipts). The spectrum must also not have been previously identified by the FCC or NTIA for reallocation, or been allocated by the FCC for unlicensed use pursuant to FCC rules. The FCC shall include the 45 MHz located between 1710 MHz through 1755 MHz as part of the total 100 MHz it must reallocate pursuant to section 3301(b), notwithstanding the fact that the 45 MHz is currently allocated for Federal government exclusive use.

The FCC must assign the radio frequencies at issue here by means of competitive bidding by September 30, 2002, and in so doing, must take into account the cost of relocating incumbent licensees, give consideration to internationally-established spectrum allocations, and ensure that future licensees do not interfere with space research and earth-exploration services. In the event the FCC cannot effectively relocate incumbent users on bands of frequencies available to the FCC, then the FCC must notify the NTIA about the need for additional bands.

(c) Identification and reallocation of frequencies

In the event the FCC makes a notification to the NTIA that it cannot relocate incumbent users, pursuant to subsection 3301(b), then subsection 3301(c) directs the NTIA to issue a report to Congress and the President recommending bands of frequencies that could be reallocated to the FCC to accommodate those users that have been displaced by the FCC. The FCC would have one year from the receipt of NTIA's report to implement a plan that reallocates and assigns these bands to displaced incumbent users.

(d) Identification and reallocation of auctionable frequencies

Subsection 3301(d) requires the NTIA to submit a reallocation report to Congress, identifying and recommending for reallocation a single frequency band of at least 20 MHz, and which is located below 3 GHz. The Committee has determined that the best way to promote efficiency by Federal government users and to free up this vital resource for use by the general public is to mandate that the Secretary of Commerce find spectrum that can be relinquished. The Committee is confident that 20 MHz can be located below 3 GHz that can be reallocated to use by non-Government users without impairing the mission of any government agency. The FCC would have a year to implement a plan to allocate and assign the full 20 MHz in accordance with the Communications Act's competitive bidding provisions.

(e) Minimum recovery for public required

In recognition of the scarcity (and hence, the value) of spectrum below 3 GHz, subsection 3301(e) directs the FCC to establish auction procedures to ensure that the American taxpayer recovers at least two-thirds of the $7.5 billion in currently projected receipts. The Committee recognizes that the FCC will hold a series of auctions to assign licenses using the 120 MHz at issue in section 3301. The Committee does not, however, expect the FCC to wait until the last auction is completed to determine whether the total winning bids for all auctions exceeds two-thirds of $7.5 billion. Rather, subsection 3301(e) permits the FCC to partition the total minimum recovery among separate auctions, or even among separate bands, regions, or markets. Moreover, to the extent an auction fails to obtain its total (or subtotal) minimum recovery, the FCC is authorized under subsection 3301(e)(2) to void the auction. The FCC may also use minimum bid requirements to obtain the total (or subtotal) minimum recovery.

Subsection 3301(e) thus gives the FCC fairly wide latitude in fashioning a methodology to secure a total minimum recovery of two-thirds of $7.5 billion. Accordingly, the FCC is precluded under subsection 3301(e)(3) from conducting any auctions unless the FCC determines that its methodology will secure two-thirds of $7.5 billion. If the FCC refrains from conducting any competitive bidding proceedings pursuant to the requirement under subsection 3301(e)(3), or pursuant to its permissive authority under subsection 3301(e)(2), then subsection 3301(e)(4) gives the FCC the discretion to hold those auctions at a future date.

Section 3302. Auction of recaptured broadcast television spectrum

Section 3302 adds a new subsection 309(j)(14) to the Communications Act to require the FCC to reclaim the 6 MHz broadcasters now use for analog transmission by no later than December 31, 2006. The FCC, however, must grant extensions to broadcasters in those markets where more than five percent of the households continue to rely exclusively on an over-the-air, analog broadcast signal.

The Committee adopted the five percent threshold to ensure that a substantial number of American households are able to make a smooth transition to digital television. While the Committee seeks to clear the 78 MHz of broadcast spectrum as soon as practicable, the Committee is concerned that an inflexible date will cause serious disruption to consumers. The Committee believes that the provision of free, over-the-air television is an important governmental interest, and that analog television service should not be terminated if a significant number of Americans rely on such over-the-air service. The Committee expects that the FCC will administer the five percent threshold by a generally-applicable rule, and not require every broadcaster in a market to file a waiver petition.

Section 3302 also directs the FCC to assign the full 78 MHz that is reclaimed from incumbent broadcast licensees by means of competitive bidding. The FCC is required to commence bidding by July 1, 2001. To the extent that the FCC allocates the reclaimed spectrum for digital television broadcast service, section 3302 precludes the FCC from enforcing either the duopoly rule or the newspaper cross-ownership rule against qualified licensees intending to use the spectrum for digital television service. The Committee finds that this limited prohibition on enforcement of these FCC rules will serve the public interest in two ways.

First, it limits the enforcement of otherwise obsolete rules. The Committee finds that given the multiplicity of information outlets in today's society, including broadcast television, cable television, satellite-based services, newspapers, on-line news services, and the Internet, these ownership rules have outlived their usefulness. The Committee fully expects that the FCC will provide for even greater and more immediate relaxation of these rules in the course of its mandatory biennial review of ownership rules.

Second, section 3302's limited prohibition on enforcement of the duopoly and cross-ownership rules will likely increase the pool of bidders for the 78 MHz of spectrum. The Committee believes that relaxation of these rules in this context will entice both broadcast station owners and newspaper owners to participate in the 2001 auction for these frequencies. As a result, the winning bids are likely to be higher than without the owners' participation.

In recognition of the scarcity (and hence, the value) of spectrum below 3 GHz, section 3302 directs the FCC to establish auction procedures to ensure that the American taxpayer recovers at least two-thirds of the $4.0 billion in currently projected receipts. The Committee recognizes that the FCC may hold a series of auctions to assign licenses using the 78 MHz at issue here. The Committee does not, however, expect the FCC to wait until the last auction is completed to determine whether the total winning bids for all auctions exceeds two-thirds of $4.0 billion. Rather, section 3302 permits the FCC to partition the total minimum recovery among separate auctions, or even among separate bands, regions, or markets. Moreover, to the extent an auction fails to obtain its total (or subtotal) minimum recovery, the FCC is authorized under new subsection 309(j)(14)(C)(ii) to void the auction. The FCC may also use minimum bid requirements to obtain the total (or subtotal) minimum recovery.

Section 3302 thus gives the FCC fairly wide latitude in fashioning a methodology to secure a total minimum recovery of two-thirds of $4.0 billion. Accordingly, the FCC is precluded under section 3302 from conducting any auctions unless the FCC determines that its methodology will secure two-thirds of $4.0 billion. If the FCC refrains from conducting any competitive bidding proceedings pursuant to this requirement under new subsection 309(j)(14)(C)(iii), or pursuant to its permissive authority under new subsection 309(j)(14)(C)(ii), then new subsection 309(j)(14)(C)(iv) gives the FCC the discretion to hold those auctions at a future date.

Section 3302 defines both “digital television service” and “analog television service.”

Section 3303. Allocation and assignment of new public safety and commercial licenses

(a) In general

Subsection 3303(a) directs the FCC to reallocate on a national, regional, or market basis 24 MHz in television broadcast channels 60 through 69 to public safety, unless the FCC finds that the needs of public safety can be met in particular areas with allocations of less than 24 MHz. The Committee has learned from public safety representatives that they do not necessarily need 24 MHz in every market, especially in rural markets. This explains why the Committee refrained from making a nationwide block allocation of 24 MHz. The Committee thus encourages the FCC to closely evaluate the public safety needs for each market.

The FCC must allocate the remainder of the spectrum located in channels 60 through 69 for commercial use, and to assign these commercial licenses by means of competitive bidding.

(b) Assignment

In light of the critical public safety needs in some markets, subsection 3303(b) requires the FCC to assign public safety licenses by no later than March 31, 1998. The Committee emphasizes that the definition of “public safety services” in subsection 3303(g) is quite narrow, particularly in relation to the service exemption found in subsection 3301(a) for “public safety radio services.” The FCC is required to commence bidding for the commercial licenses no later than July 1, 2001.

(c) Licensing of unused frequencies for public safety radio services

The Committee recognizes that in some heavily congested markets, such as Los Angeles, California, 24 MHz of spectrum is simply not available in channels 60 through 69 for immediate reallocation. Subsection 3303(c) thus directs the FCC to waive its eligibility and other rules to permit public safety to use any unassigned radio frequencies. The Committee regards such waivers as extraordinary, and thus to qualify for such a waiver, a State or local governmental agency must demonstrate to the FCC that no other frequencies allocated to public safety are immediately available, that the proposed use of unassigned frequencies will cause no harmful interference to incumbent users in the proposed band, and that public safety usage is consistent with other existing public safety channel allocations in the same geographic area. The Committee, once again, notes that this provision will be applicable in only a limited number of circumstances.

(d) Conditions on licenses

This subsection imposes technical restrictions on public safety and commercial licensees operating in channels 60 through 69 in order to prevent interference with television broadcasters' analog and digital service. The Committee recognizes the inherent difficulty of inter-service sharing of spectrum between different spectrum users, and thus the FCC must adopt rules to ensure that current users of the spectrum suffer no new interference from the new spectrum uses that will be introduced in this band. It is the intent of the Committee that the protection for full-service analog television service provided for by this subsection shall include protection for the service proposed to be provided by any application for a new station on a vacant NTSC channel that was or is filed on or before the deadline established by the FCC for such a filing, including any cut-off date for competing applications. Public safety and commercial licensees are permitted to aggregate or disaggregate their licenses to create smaller or larger spectrum blocks.

(e) Minimum recovery for public required

In recognition of the scarcity (and hence, the value) of spectrum below 3 GHz, section 3303 directs the FCC to establish auction procedures to ensure that the American taxpayer recovers at least two-thirds of the $1.9 billion in currently projected receipts. The Committee recognizes that the FCC may hold a series of auctions to assign licenses using the 36 MHz at issue in section 3303. The Committee does not, however, expect the FCC to wait until the last auction is completed to determine whether the total winning bids for all auctions exceeds two-thirds of $1.9 billion. Rather, subsection 3303(e) permits the FCC to partition the total minimum recovery among separate auctions, or even among separate bands, regions, or markets. Moreover, to the extent an auction fails to obtain its total (or subtotal) minimum recovery, the FCC is authorized under subsection 3303(e)(2) to void the auction. The FCC may also use minimum bid requirements to obtain the total (or subtotal) minimum recovery.

Subsection 3303(e) thus gives the FCC fairly wide latitude in fashioning a methodology to secure a total minimum recovery of two-thirds of $1.9 billion. Accordingly, the FCC is precluded under subsection 3303(e) from conducting any auctions unless the FCC determines that its methodology will secure two-thirds of $1.9 billion. If the FCC refrains from conducting any competitive bidding proceedings pursuant to this requirement under subsection 3303(e)(3), or pursuant to its permissive authority under subsection 3303(e)(2), then subsection 3303(e)(4) gives the FCC the discretion to hold those auctions at a future date.

(f) Protection of qualifying low-power stations

Subsection 3303(f) directs the FCC to assure that each qualifying low power television station is assigned a frequency below 746 megahertz prior to making any allocation or assignment under this section. The Committee emphasizes that subsection 3303(g) narrowly defines “qualifying low-power television stations” to mean only those stations that broadcast at least 18 hours a day, with at least 3 hours a week of locally-originated programming. The FCC must make any assignments called for by subsection 3303(f) consistent with the primary status of incumbent licensees below 746 megahertz and the secondary status of low-power television stations. The FCC shall ensure that primary spectrum users will suffer no new or additional interference.

(g) Definitions

Section 3304. Inquiry required

Section 309(j)(12) of the Communications Act requires the FCC to conduct a public inquiry and report to Congress, no later than September 30, 1997, on a range of topics relating to its use of competitive bidding systems. Section 3304 of Subtitle D orders the FCC to initiate this inquiry no later than July 1, 1997.

SUBTITLE E—MEDICAID

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The purpose of Subtitle E of Title III is to modify Title XIX of the Social Security Act in a manner providing for greater operational and administrative flexibility for the States, enhanced protections and quality assurance for recipients, and program savings for the purpose of achieving a balanced Federal budget in Fiscal Year 2002.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

Established in 1965, Medicaid is a joint Federal-State entitlement program that pays for medical services and institutional care on behalf of certain low-income persons. Each State designs and administers its own Medicaid program within Federal guidelines. States are required to cover certain population groups, including recipients of cash assistance programs, income-eligible families with pregnant women and children, and aged, blind, and disabled persons.

In 1967, Federal and State spending under Medicaid was $2.4 billion. For Fiscal Year 1997, Medicaid is expected to serve 47 million persons at a combined cost to the Federal and State governments of $170 billion. The Federal share of this cost is expected to be $98 billion, or about 57 percent of total Medicaid spending. The $98 billion in Federal funds is the single largest source of Federal funds to the States. By 2007, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) projects that Federal and State Medicaid expenditures will reach $372 billion.

During Fiscal Years 1990 through 1994, Medicaid spending grew at an annual average rate of 18.9 percent. This rapid growth was due to increased enrollment, medical care inflation, and State initiatives to maximize collection of Federal funds. Spending growth subsided in recent years, however, with the annual growth rate decelerating to just 3.3 percent in 1996. This decline in the growth of Medicaid spending was attributed to Federally imposed limits on disproportionate share hospital (DSH) payments and greater flexibility accorded to the States, which allowed for cost-saving innovations in program administration, delivery, and management. Nevertheless, CBO predicts that Medicaid spending will once again increase by 7.7 percent in 1997, and continue to grow over the next decade at an average annual rate of 8.1 percent.

Despite recent decreases in Medicaid spending growth, Medicaid remains the single largest program in virtually every State budget. As a share of State spending, Medicaid grew from just over 10 percent in 1987 to 19 percent in 1995. As a result, the Medicaid program has had the unintended effect of curtailing State investment in a variety of other programs, including education, child welfare services, law enforcement, and transportation. Absent reform, the continued growth of the Medicaid program raises the prospect of severe financial crisis in the States in the years to come.

Although States are given the option of extending coverage to other individuals, they have little operational or administrative flexibility. As a result, Governors and other elected officials have long complained that the Medicaid program is too rigid to enable them to develop more innovative health care delivery strategies.

One of the problems frequently raised by the States concerns the role of the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA). Medicaid is administered at the Federal level by HCFA, a division of the Department of Health and Human Services. Through a network of regional offices, HCFA is supposed to work with State Medicaid departments to ensure appropriate management of the Medicaid program. Many States complain, however, that HCFA's role is less a matter of coordinated cooperation than an example of excess Federal micro management.

A number of States have sought waivers, the only form of relief currently available under Federal statute. Section 1915(b) program waivers allow States to restrict the providers from whom recipients may receive care, or to mandate participation in a managed care program for a specific population or geographical area. There are currently 96 Section 1915 program waivers operating in 42 States. Section 1115(a) research and demonstration waivers allow States to experiment with new, more flexible benefit packages and eligibility criteria than permitted by the Medicaid statute. Although many States have sought Section 1115 waivers, the application process is lengthy, complex, and expensive. To date, HCFA has approved only 16 State waivers, 6 of which have not yet been implemented. At least 9 other State applications have been pending at HCFA for as long as over two years without any definitive action taken.

On February 4, 1997, the National Governors' Association (NGA) unanimously adopted The Governors' Agenda for the 105th Congress, which expressed their recommendations for reforming the Medicaid program. As part of their agenda, the NGA opposes a per capita cap on Federal Medicaid spending, and any other measure that would shift greater financial responsibility for the program onto the States. In addition, the NGA urges a repeal of the Boren Amendment, and seeks greater State flexibility in establishing managed care networks and controlling Medicaid eligibility standards and benefits by repealing Medicaid waiver requirements.

Following on its efforts with the Medicaid Transformation Act of 1995 and the Medicaid Restructuring Act of 1996, the Committee's proposal to reform the Medicaid program within the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 would remove the program's most restrictive barriers to innovation and quality. By replacing many existing waiver requirements with simple plan amendments, the measure would restore States' control over their Medicaid programs. In addition, the measure facilitates the use of innovative and cost-effective health service delivery mechanisms, such as managed care and primary care case management, while strengthening quality assurance protections. Although these changes do not constitute complete Medicaid reform, if enacted, they would represent the single most important improvement to the administration, operations, and service delivery of the Medicaid program.

HEARINGS

The Committee's Subcommittee on Health and Environment has not held hearings specifically on Subtitle E. The Health and Environment Subcommittee, however, held an oversight hearing on the Medicaid program and a variety of reform issues on Tuesday, March 11, 1997. Testifying before the Subcommittee on March 11, 1997, were: The Honorable Michael O. Leavitt, Governor, State of Utah; The Honorable Bob Miller, Governor, State of Nevada; Mr. William Scanlon, Director of Health Financing Systems, U.S. General Accounting Office; Gail Wilensky, Ph.D., Chair, Board of Directors, Physician Payment Review Commission; and Diane Rowland, Senior Vice President, Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation.

COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION

On June 10, 1997, the Subcommittee on Health and Environment met in open session and approved for Full Committee consideration a Committee Print entitled "Title III, Subtitle E—Medicaid," amended, by a roll call vote of 16 yeas to 12 nays. SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE LEGISLATION

Chapter 1—State Flexibility

SUBCHAPTER A—USE OF MANAGED CARE

Section 3401. State options to provide benefits through managed care entities

Section 3401 gives States the option of providing benefits through a managed care entity, including primary care case managers (discussed below), without requiring a section 1915(b) waiver. States would be allowed to require that individuals eligible for medical assistance under the State plan enroll in a capitated managed care plan or with a primary care case manager. A State would be permitted to restrict the number of plans or providers it contracts with, consistent with quality of care. Individuals must be permitted to choose their manager or managed care entity from among those that meet Medicaid requirements. Individuals must be given a choice of at least two managed care entities or managers. In the case of rural areas, eligible individuals who are required to enroll with a single entity must be given the option of obtaining covered services through an alternative provider; those individuals offered no alternative to a single entity or manager must be given the choice of at least two providers within the managed care entity or through the primary care case manager. Native Americans/Alaskan Natives could only be required to enroll in a managed care entity if it is a participating Indian Health Service, tribally operated health, or urban Indian Health program. The provision would permit States to lock beneficiaries into plans for up to 6 months. As under current law, beneficiaries would be allowed to disenroll from a plan at any time for cause.

States could not require either special needs children or Qualified Medicare Beneficiaries to enroll in managed care plans. As under current law, access to family planning providers could not be restricted.

Section 3402. Elimination of 75/25 restriction on risk contracts.

Section 3402 eliminates the “75/25” rule. As a proxy for quality, current law requires that plans limit their enrollment of Medicaid and Medicare beneficiaries to less than 75 percent of total enrollment (known as the “75/25” rule). This requirement may be waived for community, migrant, or Appalachian health centers which receive Federal grant funds and meet certain other conditions. It may be waived temporarily for a publicly owned contracting plan, a plan with more than 25,000 enrollees that serves a designated “medically underserved” area and that previously participated in an approved demonstration project, or a plan that has had a Medicaid contract for less than 3 years, if the plan is making continuous and reasonable efforts to comply with the 75 percent limit. For some HMOs, the “75/25” rule has been bypassed through State demonstration waivers or through specific Federal legislation.

Section 3403. Primary care case management services as state option without need for waiver

Section 3403 adds primary care case management as an optional service States may provide without a waiver. Primary care case management services would be those case management and primary care services a physician or physician group practice, or, at State option, nurse practitioner, certified nurse-midwife, or physician assistant contracts with the State to provide. These include covered primary care services provided or arranged for directly by the primary care case manager and other services as specified under the contract. The contract would have to provide that: (1) hours of operation are reasonable and adequate; (2) enrollment is restricted to those living reasonably near a service delivery site; (3) a sufficient number of providers are employed or contracted with to meet the needs of enrollees; (4) individuals are not discriminated against in enrollment based on health status or need for care; (5) enrollees are allowed to disenroll without cause during the first month of enrollment and disenroll at any time for cause. Enrollees could not be locked in to a provider for more than 6 months. Primary care services would include all health care and laboratory services customarily provided by or through a general practitioner, family medicine physician, internal medicine physician, obstetrician/gynecologist, or pediatrician.

Section 3404. Change in threshold amount for contracts requiring Secretary's prior approval

Section 3404 raises from $100,000 to $1,000,000 the managed care contract expenditure level requiring prior approval from the Secretary of Health and Human Services, effective 1998. In future years, the amount would be indexed for inflation according to the percentage increase in the consumer price index for all urban consumers over the previous year.

Section 3405. Determination of hospital stay

Section 3405 requires that the length of an inpatient hospital stay be determined by the patient and his attending physician or other attending health care provider, based on medical appropriateness. Nothing in Medicaid law could be construed as requiring the provision of inpatient care if the patient and his or her attending physician determine a shorter period of hospital stay is medically appropriate. The provision would not affect the application of deductibles and co-insurance.

SUBCHAPTER B—PAYMENT METHODOLOGY

Section 3411. Flexibility in payment methods

Under the so-called Boren amendment, States are required to pay hospitals, nursing facilities, and intermediate care facilities for the mentally retarded (ICFs/MR) rates that are "reasonable and adequate" to cover the costs which must be incurred by "efficiently and economically operated facilities." A number of Federal courts have ruled that State systems failed to meet the test of "reasonableness" and some States have had to increase payments to these providers as a result of these judicial interpretations.

Section 3411 repeals the Boren Amendment and establishes a public notice process for setting payment rates for hospitals, nursing facilities, and ICFs/MR. In the case of hospitals, rates would have to take into account the situation of hospitals that serve a disproportionate number of low-income patients with special needs. For hospitals and nursing facilities, each State would have to assure that the average level of payments furnished during the 18-month period beginning October 1, 1997, is not less than the average level of payments that would be made for such services based on rates in effect as of May 1, 1997. It is the Committee's intention that, following enactment of this Act, neither this nor any other provision of Section 1902 will be interpreted as establishing a cause of action for hospitals and nursing facilities relative to the adequacy of the rates they receive.

Section 3412. Payment for center and clinic services

Under current law, State Medicaid programs are required to cover ambulatory services that are furnished by Federally qualified health centers (FQHCs) and rural health clinics (RHCs). Medicaid payments for ambulatory services that are provided by FQHCs or RHCs must be equal to 100 percent of the facilities' reasonable costs for providing the services. If an FQHC enters into a contract with a HMO that contracts with a State Medicaid program, the HMO must pay the FQHC 100 percent of reasonable costs and the State's capitation payment to the HMO must reflect the 100 percent rate that is due to the FQHC.

Section 3412 would require States to continue to pay 100 percent of reasonable costs for services furnished by FQHCs and RHCs during Fiscal Years 1998 and 1999, but permits them to reduce rates in later years. States would be required to pay FQHCs and RHCs at least 95 percent of costs for services furnished during FY 2000, 90 percent for FY 2001, and 85 percent for FY 2002.

To ease the transition from cost-based payment rates, the provision specifies two special payment rules that would be applicable during Fiscal Years 1998-2002. First, States would be required to make supplemental payments to FQHCs and RHCs. Such payments would be equal to the difference between the contracted amount and the cost-based amount. Second, in the case of a contract between an FQHC and an HMO, the HMO would have to pay the FQHC or RHC at least as much as it would pay any other provider for similar services.

Section 3412 also requires the Comptroller General to report, not later than February 1, 2001, on the impact of these amendments on access to health care for Medicaid beneficiaries and the uninsured, and on the ability of FQHCs and RHCs to become integrated in a managed care system.

Section 3413. Treatment of State taxes imposed on certain hospitals that provide free care

Currently, States may not claim for Federal matching payments State spending generated from provider-related donations or health care taxes that are not broad-based. Health care provider-specific taxes are not considered broad-based and, thus, may not be used to claim Federal matching payments for Medicaid spending. Section 3413 amends the definition of the term “broad-based health care related tax” to specify that taxes that exclude hospitals which are exempt from taxation under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue code and do not accept Medicaid or Medicare reimbursement would qualify for Federal matching payments if used as State Medicaid spending. The provision would also prohibit States from claiming Federal matching payments for State spending generated from health care taxes applied to these facilities.

SUBCHAPTER C—ELIGIBILITY

Section 3421. State option of continuous eligibility for 12 months; clarification of State option to cover all children under 19 years of age

Section 3421 permits a State to provide a full continuous 12 months of eligibility for children up to age 19 or an age specified by the State.

Section 3422. Payment of home-health-related Medicare Part B premium amount for certain low-income individuals States are currently required to pay Medicare Part B premiums for Medicare beneficiaries who have incomes up to 120 percent of the official poverty line. In response to the Part B premium increase that will result from the transfer of Medicare home health spending from Part A to Part B, Section 3422 provides for premium assistance for low-income beneficiaries who do not currently receive Medicaid premium assistance. This section requires State Medicaid programs to cover that portion of the Medicare Part B premium attributable to the transfer of certain home health post-institutional visits from Part A to Part B for Medicare beneficiaries with incomes ranging from 120 percent to 175 percent of poverty. The Federal government would pay 100 percent of these costs.

Section 3423. Penalty for fraudulent eligibility

Section 3423 clarifies a current law anti-fraud protection by providing that a person who, for a fee, assists an individual to dispose of assets in order to obtain Medicaid eligibility for nursing home care, may be subject to criminal liability if the individual disposes of assets and a period of ineligibility is imposed against such individual. It is the Committee’s expectation that, consistent with the Attorney General’s interpretation in the recent judgment of the United States District Court for the District of Oregon in Peebler v. Reno, this provision would apply in cases where the transfer of assets results in the imposition of a period of ineligibility for Medicaid benefits.

Section 3424. Treatment of certain settlement payments

Under a recent settlement, four manufacturers of blood plasma products will pay $100,000 to each of 6,200 hemophilia patients who are infected with human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). Some of the HIV-infected patients are receiving, or may apply for, Medicaid benefits. The amount of the settlement would exceed the income and resource limits for Medicaid eligibility. Section 3424 specifies that payments made from the blood products settlement shall not be considered income or resources in determining Medicaid eligibility, or the amount of benefits under Medicaid.

ELDERLY (PACE)

OBRA 86 required the Secretary to grant waivers of certain Medicare and Medicaid requirements to not more than 10 public or non-profit private community-based organizations to provide health and long-term care services on a capitated basis to frail elderly persons at risk of institutionalization. These projects, known as the Programs of All Inclusive Care for the Elderly, or PACE projects, were intended to determine whether an earlier demonstration program, ON LOK, serving frail elderly persons, could be replicated across the country. OBRA 90 expanded the number of organizations eligible for waivers to 15.

Sections 3431, 3432, 3433, and 3434 repeal current ON LOK and PACE project demonstration waiver authority and establish PACE as a State option under Medicaid. Persons enrolled in PACE would be eligible for Medicaid and need not be eligible for Medicare. Enrollees would receive Medicaid covered benefits solely through the PACE program. PACE providers would offer comprehensive health care services to eligible individuals in accordance with a PACE program agreement and regulations. In general, PACE providers would be public or private nonprofit entities, except for entities (up to 10) participating in a demonstration to test the operation of a PACE program by private, for-profit entities.

SUBCHAPTER E—BENEFITS

Section 3441. Elimination of requirement to pay for private insurance

Under current law, the ability of States to enroll individuals in private insurance is restricted by requirements that they identify cases in which it would be cost-effective to enroll a Medicaid-eligible individual in a private insurance plan and, as a condition of eligibility, require the individual to enroll in the plan. Section 3441 removes the identification and enrollment requirements and gives States a more flexible option of purchasing private insurance for recipients.

Section 3442. Permitting same copayments in health maintenance organizations as in fee-for-service

Section 3442 eliminates the prohibition on enrollment fees, coinsurance, or other cost-sharing charges for services furnished by health maintenance organizations (HMOs).

Section 3443. Physician qualification requirements

This provision repeals the minimum qualifications for physicians who furnish services to a child under age 21 or to a pregnant woman.

Section 3444. Elimination of requirement of prior institutionalization with respect to habilitation services furnished under a waiver for home or community-based services

Under current law, States may obtain waivers to provide a broad range of home and community-based services, including habilitation services, to persons who otherwise would require institutional care. Habilitation services, however, may be provided only to an individual who has been discharged from a nursing facility or an intermediate care facility for the mentally retarded. Section 3444 repeals the prior institutionalization requirement that applies to habilitation services offered under these home and community-based programs.

Section 3445. Benefits for services of physician assistants

This provision permits States to cover services furnished by a physician assistant which the assistant is legally authorized to perform under State law and with the supervision of a physician.

Section 3446. Study and report on actuarial value of EPSDT benefit

This provision requires the Secretary to provide for a study on the actuarial value of early and periodic screening, diagnostic, and treatment (EPSDT) services. The study would include an examination of the value attributable to the non-screening portions of EPSDT services.

SUBCHAPTER F—ADMINISTRATION

Section 3451. Elimination of duplicative inspection of care requirements for ICFs/MR and mental hospitals

Under current law, States that provide services in mental hospitals and in intermediate care facilities for the mentally retarded (ICFs/MR) must provide for periodic inspections of care for each Medicaid beneficiary who receives services in the institution. Inspections of care have been conducted to assure that persons are receiving the appropriate level of care of adequate quality. The Department of Health and Human Services has established a new survey outcome-oriented process for mental hospitals and ICFs/MR. Section 3451 eliminates inspection of care reviews in mental hospitals and ICFs/MR and retains survey and certification reviews for the facilities.

Section 3452. Alternative sanctions for noncompliant ICFs/MR

Under current law, ICFs/MR must meet certain requirements and standards for safety and for the proper provision of care. If a State finds that a facility is out of compliance with the requirements, the facility's participation in Medicaid can be terminated, or the State can withhold payment for new admissions to the facility until the deficiencies have been corrected. States have limited sanctions available for use for ICFs/MR that are found to have deficiencies that do not jeopardize the health and safety of patients. Section 3452 allows States to establish alternative remedies that are demonstrated to be effective in deterring noncompliance.

Section 3453. Modification of MMIS requirements

This provision deletes current statutory language that relates to 1980s requirements for the Medicaid Managed Information System (MMIS). It would require each State to operate a system that is adequate to provide efficient, economical, and effective administration, and is compatible with the claims processing and information retrieval systems that are used to administer the Medicare program. In addition, for claims filed on or after Jan. 1, 1999, the provision would require each State's system to electronically transmit data to the Secretary in a specific format.

Section 3454. Facilitating imposition of State alternative remedies on non-compliant nursing facilities

This provision eliminates the requirement for States to repay Federal funds for failure of a facility to correct deficiencies according to an approved plan of correction.

Section 3455. Medically accepted indication

Each State is required to provide for a drug use review (DUR) program to assure that covered outpatient drugs are appropriate, medically necessary, and are not likely to result in adverse medical results. Under the DUR program, data on drug use is to be assessed against predetermined standards consistent with compendia specified in the law. Section 3455 adds the DRUGDEX Information System to specified compendia for assessing data on drug use.

Section 3456. Continuation of State-wide Section 1115 Medicaid waivers

This provision amends Section 1115 of the Act to provide for a simplified renewal or extension process. Within a year before the expiration date of a waiver project, the chief executive officer of a State could submit a written request to the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) to extend the project for up to 3 years. If the Secretary did not respond to the request within 6 months, the request would be deemed to have been granted. The deadline for a final report on the project would be extended until 1 year after the waivers would originally have expired, and the Secretary's evaluation of the project would be due up to 1 year after the final report. The project extension would be on the same terms and conditions that applied to the project before the extension. If budget neutrality was an original condition of approval of a waiver project, the Secretary would be required to assure that such condition was met in the extension of the project. In so doing, the Secretary would have to take into account the Secretary's best estimate of rates of change in expenditures at the time of the extension.

It is the Committee's intent that a State operating under a Section 1115 research and demonstration waiver be permitted to use disproportionate share funds allotted to the State for the purpose of coverage expansion at the discretion of the State.

Section 3457. Authorizing administrative streamlining and privatizing modifications under the Medicaid Program

This provision would allow Medicaid eligibility determinations to be made by an entity that is not a State or local government, or by an individual who is not an employee of a State or local government. The conditions for eligibility and the right to challenge determinations would not be affected by this change; nor would determinations regarding quality control or error rates.

Section 3458. Extension of moratorium

Medicaid payment for services provided by institutions for mental disease (IMD) may be made only for beneficiaries who are under age 21 or over age 65. For two specified facilities, previous legislation has imposed a moratorium on determination of the facilities as IMDs. This provision extends the classification of the two facilities as IMDs for purposes of Medicaid reimbursement.

To facilitate its intended review and reform of the designation and payment of IMDs, the Committee calls on the States to collect data, on per-recipient and per-inpatient bases, relating to the utilization and cost of care provided to Medicaid recipients served by IMDs. This data will assist the Committee and other interested Federal agencies in the creation of a reliable baseline for IMD recipient expenditures, upon which cost estimates of statutory reform may be made.

Chapter 2—Quality Assurance

Section 3461. Requirements to ensure quality and access to care under managed care plans

States entering into contracts with managed care entities are required under this provision to establish a quality assurance program, consistent with standards that the Secretary would establish and monitor, in consultation with States and that do not preempt the application of stricter State standards. State quality assurance programs would be required to include: (1) standards for adequate access to primary care and specialized services, including pediatric services for special needs children; (2) procedures for monitoring and evaluating quality of care that includes submitting quality assurance data using requirements for entities with Medicare contracts or other requirements as approved by the Secretary, and periodic assessment of quality improvement strategies; and (3) provisions for financial reporting.

Managed care entities would be required to submit to the State any information the State may find necessary to monitor care, maintain an internal quality assurance program consistent with the State's quality assurance program described above, and provide effective grievance procedures.

Health maintenance organizations with contracts in effect under Section 1876 of the Social Security Act or MedicarePlus organizations with contracts in effect under Part C of Title XVIII of the Social Security Act could, at State option, be deemed to be in compliance with the requirements of Section 1903(m) pertaining to managed care entities.

The provision would allow States to deem those managed care entities that have been accredited by an accrediting organization to be in compliance with the requirements of Section 1903(m) pertaining to managed care entities. Such an accrediting organization must be: (1) private and nonprofit; (2) in existence for the primary purpose of accrediting managed organizations or health care providers; and (3) independent of health care providers or an association of health care providers. The Secretary would be required to specify requirements for the standards and process by which a managed care entity may be accredited by such an accrediting organization. The provisions of this section would apply to agreements between State agencies and managed care entities entered into or renewed on or after January 1, 1999.

Section 3462. Solvency standards for certain health maintenance organizations

Effective for contracts entered into or renewed on or after October 1, 1998, this section requires an HMO to either meet the same solvency standards set by the States for private HMOs or be licensed or certified by the State as a risk-bearing entity. Such requirements shall not apply to an organization if: (1) the organization does not provide inpatient and physician services; (2) the organization is a public entity; (3) the organization's solvency is guaranteed by the State; or (4) the organization is a Federally qualified health center. Such requirements shall not apply to fully capitated HMOs under contract as of the date of enactment of this Act until 3 years after the date of enactment of this Act.

Section 3463. Application of a prudent layperson standard for emergency medical condition and prohibition of gag rule restrictions

This provision requires that contracts with managed care plans provide for coverage for emergency services without regard to: (1) whether the emergency care provider has an arrangement with the plan; and (2) prior authorization. Plans would be required to comply with such guidelines as the Secretary may prescribe relating to promoting efficiency and timely coordination of appropriate maintenance and post-stabilization care provided to an enrollee determined to be stable by a medical screening examination required under the Examination and Treatment under Emergency Medical Conditions and Women in Labor requirements of the Social Security Act (Section 1867).

Emergency services would be defined, with respect to an individual enrolled with a participating HMO, as covered inpatient and outpatient services that are furnished by a qualified provider and needed to evaluate or stabilize an emergency medical condition. An emergency medical condition would be defined as one manifesting itself by acute symptoms of sufficient severity such that a prudent layperson, who possesses an average knowledge of health and medicine, could reasonably expect the absence of immediate medical attention to result in: (a) placing the health of the individual in serious jeopardy (and in case of a pregnant woman, her health or that of her unborn child); (b) serious impairment to bodily functions; or (c) serious dysfunction of any bodily organ or part.

The provision also prohibits interference with physician advice to enrollees. A participating health plan could not prohibit or otherwise restrict covered health care professionals from talking to their patients about their health status, health care, or treatment options, regardless of whether benefits for such care or treatment were provided under the plan so long as the professional is acting within the lawful scope of practice. "Covered health care professional" would include physicians, and other health care professionals (as specified).

HMOs would not be required to provide, reimburse, or provide coverage of a counseling or referral service if they objected to the provision of such service on moral or religious grounds. HMOs would be required to inform prospective and current enrollees of any such services they did not provide before or during enrollment or within 90 days after the date that the HMO adopts a change in policy regarding such a counseling or referral service.

In subsection (B), the Committee has adopted a "conscience protection" provision. Subsection (B) is intended to ensure that MedicarePlus organizations motivated by religious or moral beliefs can comply with subsection (A) while maintaining ethical integrity. Specifically, subsection (A) should not be construed to require MedicarePlus organizations to provide, reimburse for, or provide coverage of a counseling or referral service if the organization offering the plan objects to the provision of such service on moral or religious grounds. The provision is consistent with the intent of subsection (A) because health care professionals under contract with a MedicarePlus organization are free to advise their patients about relevant medical care or treatment. However, subsection (B) makes clear that neither the organization nor its employees must provide a counseling service or a referral service, nor does the organization have to reimburse for, or provide coverage of, such service, if it objects to such service on moral or religious grounds.

Subsection (B)(ii) is a requirement that MedicarePlus organizations make available to prospective and current enrollees information on its policies regarding the counseling and referral services to which it objects on moral or religious grounds. The Committee has permitted the plans to make this information on its policies available through written instrumentalities in the manner which the MedicarePlus organization deems appropriate so as to remove discretion from the Secretary or any other government entity to impose burdensome regulatory, legal, or stylistic requirements with respect to this subsection. However, the Committee intends that the information not be made available in a manner that intentionally obfuscates or seeks to deceive a prospective or current enrollee.

Subsection (B)(ii) requires a MedicarePlus organization to make such information on its policies available to prospective enrollees before or during enrollment. The subsection also makes clear that if a plan changes such a policy or adopts a new policy regarding a counseling or referral service to which it has moral or religious objections during the plan year, that it must make available information to current enrollees within 90 days of such a policy change regarding such a counseling service.

Subsection (B)(iii) is a construction clause making clear that nothing in subsection (B) should be construed to affect disclosure requirements under the State law or under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

The Committee emphasizes that the underlying guarantees of the Federal Medicaid laws remain in force for managed care enrollees and that States cannot abrogate these guarantees through a limited contract with a managed care organization. If the managed care provider with which a beneficiary is enrolled is unwilling or unable to provide a particular service (such as a full range of non-directive counseling, referral, and services for reproductive health care), the State must treat such a service as having been “carved out” of its contract with the organization and take positive steps to ensure that the service is truly available without burden to beneficiaries through another system or provider and that the beneficiaries know of this availability. The Committee intends that the prospective and updated notices of the organization’s unwillingness or inability to provide some services be made in a clear and complete manner. Services that must be sought outside the organization should be identified in an easily understood way and not as blanket generalizations or in complex or arcane terms.

Section 3464. Additional fraud and abuse protections in managed care

This provision requires that a State, in consultation with a medical care advisory committee, approve all marketing material an HMO wishes to distribute, prior to distribution. HMOs would be prohibited from: (1) distributing any marketing material containing false or misleading information; (2) seeking to influence enrollment in conjunction with the sale of any other insurance; and (3) directly or indirectly conducting door-to-door, telephonic, or other “cold call” marketing of enrollment. HMOs would be required to distribute marketing information to their entire service area. Before an individual is enrolled in a plan, HMOs would be required to comply with conditions the Secretary would prescribe to ensure that they are provided with accurate oral and written information sufficient to make an informed enrollment decision. The State would be prohibited from contracting with an HMO found to have distributed false or misleading marketing information.

An HMO could not knowingly affiliate with a person (or an affiliate of such person) debarred, suspended, or otherwise excluded from participating in procurement activities under the Federal acquisition regulation, or from participating in nonprocurement activities under regulations issued pursuant to Executive Order 12549. Specifically, an HMO could not have such a person as a director, officer, partner, or person with beneficial ownership of more than 5 percent of the organization equity. Further, an HMO could not have an employment, consulting, or other agreement with such a person for items and services related to the organization’s contract with the State.

If a State found an HMO contractor to be out of compliance with the above requirements, it could continue an existing agreement with such organization unless the Secretary, in consultation with the Inspector General of the Department, directs otherwise. The State could not renew or otherwise extend the duration of an existing contract with such organization unless the Secretary, in consultation with the Inspector General of the Department of HHS, provided to the State and to Congress compelling reasons for such renewal or extension.

States would be required to have conflict-of-interest safeguards in effect relating to State officers and employees having responsibilities over contracts with managed care entities. Such safeguards must be at least as effective as the Federal safeguards provided under Section 27 of the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act.

Federal financial participation (FFP) would be available in expenditures for the use of an enrollment broker in marketing HMOs and other managed care entities to eligible individuals, on the condition that the broker is independent of any plan or provider in the State, and that no person who is an owner, employee, consultant, or has a contract with the broker has any financial relationship with participating managed care entities or providers, or has been excluded from participating in Medicaid or Medicare.

Section 3465. Grievances under managed care plans

This provision requires that contracts with capitated managed care entities provide for compliance with the following grievance and appeals requirements. One, participating managed care entities must provide a meaningful and expedited procedure for resolving grievances between the entity and its enrollees. Such a procedure would include notice and hearing requirements. Two, the managed care entity must inform plan enrollees in a timely manner of any denial, termination, or reduction of services. The plan must clearly state the reason for the denial of service. The plan must provide enrollees with an explanation of the plan's complaint process and of all other appeal rights available to them. And, three, plans must establish a board of appeals to resolve grievances concerning denials of coverage or payment for services. The board shall consist of representatives of the managed care entity, including physician and nonphysicians; consumers who are not plan enrollees; and providers with expertise in the field of medicine which necessitates treatment. The board shall hear and resolve filed complaints within 30 days. This provision would not replace or supersede any other Medicaid appeal mechanisms.

Section 3466. Standards relating to access to obstetrical and gynecological services under managed care plans Managed care plans requiring or allowing enrollees to designate their primary care provider are required by this provision to permit female enrollees to designate a participating obstetrician-gynecologist as their primary care provider. Enrollees who have designated other providers as their primary care provider must be permitted to obtain obstetric and gynecologic care from a participating obstetrician-gynecologist without prior authorization. The ordering of any other gynecologic care by the participating obstetrician-gynecologist would be considered prior authorization for such care.

CHAPTER 3—FEDERAL PAYMENTS

Section 3471. Reforming disproportionate share payments under state medicaid programs

This provision establishes additional caps on the State DSH allotments for Fiscal Years 1998-2002. The State DSH allotments for States in which 1995 DSH payments were less than 1 percent of total medical assistance spending would be frozen at the level of payments for DSH adjustments in those States in 1995. For States classified as “high” DSH States for Fiscal Year 1997, DSH allotments would be reduced from the higher of 1995 or 1996 payment levels. The reduction percentage for “high” DSH States would be equal to 2 percent in 1998, 5 percent in 1999, 20 percent in 2000, 30 percent in 2001, and 40 percent in 2002. All other States’ DSH payments would be equal to the higher of 1995 or 1996 DSH payments levels reduced by one half of the reduction percentages for “high” DSH States. The provisions of this section would become effective beginning with Fiscal Year 1998.

The Committee has long been critical of DSH cuts as a source of Medicaid savings. In the 104th Congress, it reported two Medicaid reform measures that preserved all current DSH funds and provided for positive rates of growth in every subsequent year. Following the Administration’s proposed reduction in DSH funding, and the inclusion of this proposal in the budget agreement, the Committee is focusing its concern on the potential impact of DSH reductions on children’s hospitals and on urban and rural facilities serving high volumes of low-income and uninsured patients. Many of these “safety net” hospitals rely on DSH funding to subsidize care for these patients and, in some cases, to serve as teaching facilities and to provide such essential services as burn care, trauma care, neonatal intensive care, and services to high-risk pregnant women. The Committee expects States, in allocating DSH funds among eligible providers, to take into account the needs of these hospitals and the impact of possible DSH reductions on access to care for vulnerable patients and in underserved areas. The Committee further expects the Secretary to monitor the implementation of this section and to report to the Committee on the extent to which these reductions may adversely impact access to care for low-income children and their families.

Section 3472. Additional funding for state emergency health services furnished to undocumented aliens

This provision provides for additional funding for emergency health services furnished to undocumented aliens for Fiscal Years 1998 through 2002. For each of the five fiscal years, $20 million would be available to distribute among the 12 States (including the District of Columbia) having the highest number of undocumented aliens. In a fiscal year, each State’s portion of total funds available would be based on its share of total undocumented aliens in all of the eligible States. Each State’s allotment would be available for the following fiscal year. The number of undocumented aliens in a State would be based on estimates prepared by the Statistics Division of the Immigration and Naturalization Services as of October 1992.

SUBTITLE F—CHILD HEALTH ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The purpose of Subtitle F of Title III is to establish a mechanism enabling States to expand the provision of coverage and services to low-income uninsured children through such means as enrollment in the Medicaid program and in private health coverage plans, purchase of services provided by children's hospitals and community health centers, and improvement of initiatives dedicated to enhancing children's access to health services, coverage, and education.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

In June 1996, the U.S. General Accounting Office (GAO) issued its report on "Health Insurance for Children"—and helped to spark a national debate on how to decrease the rate of uninsurance among low-income children in America. In its report, GAO published an alarming finding: "In 1994, an estimated 3.5 million children—fully 35 percent of all uninsured children—were eligible for Medicaid coverage that they did not receive."

In short, despite unprecedented levels of Medicaid spending and Federal control, many Medicaid-eligible children do not receive the services to which they are entitled.

Over the last three decades, the Medicaid program has experienced unprecedented growth in both its cost and the complexity of its Federal mandates and regulations. Although this evolution has been defended by some as making the Medicaid program more responsive to the needs of low-income Americans, GAO's recent finding suggests that a different approach may be necessary to finally ensuring that the nation's low-income children do not lack the health coverage and services they need. In fact, the persistent problem of child uninsurance indicates that, despite its provision of substantial Federal funding and its passage of numerous operations mandates, Congress has yet to give the States the tools they need to ensure that low-income uninsured children receive the assistance they currently lack.

Washington's failure to give States the tools they need to expand the provision of coverage and services to at-risk children has had a serious impact on the nation's health, its health care marketplace, and—most of all—on the children themselves. Uninsured children, including those eligible for Medicaid coverage they do not now receive, are less likely to receive the primary and preventive care needed to improve their lifelong health. Medicaid-eligible children who are not enrolled in the program are less likely to receive the primary and preventive care that can improve their lifelong health. Without such care, these children are more likely to be served by the so-called "sick-care" system, as opposed to the health care system. As a result, many of them may receive care only when they have already become sick, rather than in time to prevent many common ailments. In addition, these children may need more costly corrective treatment to address ailments that could have been prevented with coverage providing for consistent primary care.

Due to such circumstances, many of these children may also face a lifetime of more significant health needs and higher medical expenses. Care provided to correct an existing ailment is generally more expensive than preventive care. In fact, leading researchers in the field of pediatrics have estimated that uninsured children may face lifelong medical expenses that could be as much as 20 percent higher than the cost of care borne by children who regularly receive the coverage or services they need.

The cost of health care services provided to uninsured children is often borne by taxpayer-funded public institutions, charitable organizations, or insured Americans who indirectly bear those expenses in the form of higher service costs (a practice known as cost-shifting). As a result, the lack of an effective and broad-based strategy for expanding coverage and service delivery for uninsured low-income children—not to mention the Medicaid program's failure to cover all eligible children—has created serious inefficiencies in the health care marketplace.

The need for an effective and broad-based strategy is timely not solely because of the pressing needs of low-income uninsured children but because of the tremendous gains made independently by States in this effort. For example, States have made significant progress in expanding children's coverage under Medicaid despite restrictive Federal regulations. In fact, GAO estimates that over a third of all Medicaid-covered children were made eligible by voluntary State expansions.

In an effort to further address the lack of coverage and services among low-income children, many States have also undertaken a variety of initiatives aimed at reducing uninsurance among children. Principal among these efforts are State partnerships with nonprofit organizations and private corporations to develop innovative health programs that have expanded access to responsive and effective health care for targeted youths. State- and privately-funded programs have been successful in large part because they tend to achieve a number of objectives essential to expanded children's coverage. Most notably, they:

- cover children who would otherwise be uninsured,
- complement existing Medicaid coverage,
- limit costs and utilize income-sensitive cost-sharing,
- emphasize primary and preventive services,
- integrate a wide range of providers and carriers, and
- utilize existing State, nonprofit, and private administrative systems.

As these successes indicate, advances in the coverage of children have occurred when States have the flexibility to achieve maximum coverage through the Medicaid program and related initiatives. The objective of the Child Health Assistance Program (CHAP) proposal, therefore, is to provide States with the tools they need to effectively provide needed services and expand Medicaid and private coverage to low-income uninsured children in a manner that will increase their access to and use of quality primary and preventive care.

The Committee's Subcommittee on Health and Environment has not held hearings specifically on Subtitle F. The Health and Environment Subcommittee, however, held oversight hearings on the Medicaid program and a variety of reform issues, including State initiatives that incorporate children's health initiatives, on July 26, 1995, and on March 11, 1997.

Testifying before the Subcommittee on July 26, 1995 were: The Honorable Fife Symington, Governor of Arizona, accompanied by Dr. Mabel Chen, Director, Arizona Health Care Cost Containment System; The Honorable Kay C. James, Secretary of Health and Human Resources, Commonwealth of Virginia; The Honorable Charles Condon, Attorney General of South Carolina; Mr. Bruce Vladeck, Administrator, Health Care Financing Administration; Michael D. McKinney, M.D., Commissioner, Department of Health and Human Services, State of Texas; Mr. Robert Corker, Commissioner, Department of Finance and Administration, State of Tennessee; Ms. Jean Thorne, Director, Office of Medical Assistance Programs, Oregon Department of Human Resources, State of Oregon; Ms. Debra Ward, MPH, Director, Governmental Relations, United Health Plan; Mr. Michael W. Murray, Executive Director, Health Plan of San Mateo; Ms. Judith Stavisky, Associate Vice President for Health Services, Mercy Health Plan; Ms. Maura Bluestone, President and CEO, The Bronx Health Plan; and Dr. Jesse Jampol, HIP Health Insurance Plan.

Testifying before the Subcommittee on March 11, 1997, were: The Honorable Michael O. Leavitt, Governor, State of Utah; The Honorable Bob Miller, Governor, State of Nevada; Mr. William Scanlon, Director of Health Financing Systems, U.S. General Accounting Office; Gail Wilensky, Ph.D., Chair, Board of Directors, Physician Payment Review Commission; and Diane Rowland, Senior Vice President, Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE LEGISLATION

Section 3501. Short title of subtitle; table of contents

This section states that the short title of this Subtitle is the “Child Health Assistance Program Act of 1997”, and sets forth the table of contents for the Subtitle.

Section 3502. Establishment of child health assistance programNew section 2101. Purpose; State child health plans Current Law. Medicaid, Title XIX of the Social Security Act, provides almost 21 million children with health coverage. States choosing to participate in the Medicaid program are required to cover children in families who would have qualified to receive Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) under the program rules in effect on August 22, 1996; children under age 6 in families with income below 133 percent of the Federal poverty level; and children under age 14 in families with income below 100 percent of the Federal poverty level. Coverage for children between the ages of 14 and 18 and in families with income below 100 percent of the Federal poverty level is being phased-in through 2002. States also have the option to cover other categories of low-income children under Medicaid and many have done so. All 50 States currently participate in Medicaid. The Maternal and Child Health (MCH) Block Grant is authorized under Title V of the Social Security Act to improve the health of all mothers and children consistent with the goals established under the Public Health Service Act. The program makes block grants to States to enable them to coordinate programs, develop systems, and provide a broad range of direct health services.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would establish a new Title XXI of the Social Security Act, Child Health Assistance Program. This program would establish entitlement to States for grants to expand access to health insurance for eligible children.

New Section 2101 would establish the purpose of the program: to provide funds to States to enable them to initiate and expand the provision of child care assistance to uninsured, low-income children in an effective and efficient manner that is coordinated with other sources for obtaining creditable coverage. Creditable coverage would mean coverage under: (a) a group health plan; (b) other health insurance plans; (c) Medicare; (d) Medicaid; (e) Department of Defense health programs; (f) Department of Veterans’ Affairs health care; (g) the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program; (h) a medical care program of the Indian health service or tribal organization; (i) a State health benefits risk pool; (j) a public health plan; and (k) other specified coverage.

The assistance could be provided through various approaches that would be specified in a State plan, including coverage under group health plans or group or individual health insurance coverage, the State's Medicaid plan, or direct purchase of services from providers. To be eligible for Federal assistance, a State would have to submit a plan to the Secretary of Health and Human Services (the Secretary) that specified how the State intended to use the Federal funds to provide health assistance to needy children consistent with Federal requirements (as described below). States that meet the requirements would be entitled to Federal assistance from funds appropriated for this purpose, and unless otherwise established by State law or judicial precedent, it is the Committee's intention that the Governor shall be responsible for the distribution of these funds and the development and implementation of the State plan required as a condition of eligibility. No State would be eligible for payments before October 1, 1997.

New section 2102. Contents of State child health plan

A State child health plan would have to include a description of: (a) the current insurance status of children, including targeted low-income children; (b) current State efforts to provide or obtain creditable coverage for uncovered children; and (c) how the plan is designed to be coordinated with current State efforts to increase creditable coverage of children. A State plan also would have to include a description of the standards to be used to determine the eligibility of targeted low-income children for child health insurance under the plan. Eligibility standards could include geography, age, income and resources, residency, disability status, and others as specified. The eligibility standards could not, within any defined class or group of covered targeted low-income children, cover children with higher family incomes without covering children with lower family incomes. They also could not deny eligibility to a child based on a preexisting medical condition (defined as a limitation or exclusion of benefits relating to a condition based on the fact that the condition was present before the date of enrollment, whether or not any medical advice, diagnosis, care, or treatment was recommended or received before such date).

In addition, a State plan would have to describe the methods of establishing and continuing eligibility and enrollment, including a methodology for computing family income that meets requirements specified in the provision. Procedures established for eligibility would have to ensure: (a) that only targeted low-income children received the assistance; (b) that children found through screening to be eligible for medical assistance under the State's Medicaid program were enrolled in Medicaid; (c) that the new insurance did not substitute for coverage under group health plans; and (d) that there was coordination with other public and private programs providing creditable coverage for low-income children. This provision would not create an entitlement for any individual to child health assistance under a State child health plan.

The child health assistance provided under the plan would be required to include at least the following items and services: inpatient and outpatient hospital care, physician services, laboratory and x-ray, well-baby and well child care including immunizations unless the care is provided under a group health plan. It is the Committee's intention that primary and preventive dental services be included in the definition of well child care, since the Committee recognizes that oral health is an essential component of overall health and that low-income children suffer disproportionately from dental disease. If the care is provided under a group health plan, then the benefits under the plan could be no less for CHAP beneficiaries than the benefits provided for other individuals covered by that plan. A State plan would have to describe the nature of the assistance to be provided including: cost-sharing, the health care delivery method (e.g., managed care, fee-for-service, direct provision of services, or vouchers), and utilization control systems. A plan could vary premiums, deductibles, coinsurance and other cost-sharing based on family income of the targeted low-income children only in a manner that did not favor children from higher-income families over those from lower incomes. Cost sharing would not be allowed for preventive services or benefits. A plan could not permit the imposition of any preexisting medical condition exclusion for covered benefits. If the plan provided for benefits through a group health plan or group insurance, preexisting condition exclusions could be imposed only to the extent that such exclusions are permitted under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (P.L. 104-191). States would be required to assure access to specialty care as required by eligible children who have chronic or life-threatening conditions. A State would not be permitted to pay benefits to an individual to the extent that such benefits were available to the individual under another public or private health care insurance program. Payments in the form of a voucher or cash would not be considered income for purposes of eligibility for or benefits provided under any means-tested Federal or Federally-assisted program.

Finally, a State plan would have to describe the procedures to be used to accomplish outreach and enrollment assistance to families of eligible children and to coordinate with other public and private health insurance programs.

New section 2103. Allotments

For each of the Fiscal Years 1998 through 2002, a total allotment of $2.88 billion would be available for the State Child Health Assistance Program. The funds would be allotted to States based on the number of uncovered children in a base period in a State and the relative cost of health care services in that State with a floor of $2 million for States and the District of Columbia. The base would be determined by taking the State's average number of uninsured children for the years 1993 through 1995 as reported in the March 1994, March 1995, and March 1996 supplements to the Current Population Surveys of the Bureau of the Census. The Secretary would be required to allot 0.5 percent of the total amount of funds to the territories, in a manner specified by the provision. In the case of a State electing the increased Medicaid match (see below), the amount of the State's allotment would be reduced by the amount of the State's additional Federal Medicaid payment. States would have 3 years to spend their allotments.

New section 2104. Payments to States

The Secretary would be required to make quarterly payments to each State with an approved child health assistance plan in amounts up to 80 percent of program spending during that quarter for child health assistance, other initiatives for improving child health, outreach and administration of the plan, except that no more than 15 percent of the total program spending could be used for other child health initiatives, outreach and administration. The Secretary would establish rules regarding the extent to which funds could be used to purchase family coverage for families that include targeted low-income children. The rules would allow such payment if the State demonstrates that the purchase of such coverage is cost effective when compared with the cost of covering only the targeted low-income children in the families involved.

Child health assistance funds may not be used to: (a) cover children who would be eligible for Medicaid using the income and assets standards or methodologies as in effect on June 1, 1997; (b) pay for the services of a provider who has been excluded from participation under the MCH or Social Services Block Grant programs, Medicare or other Federal programs except for emergency services not provided in hospital emergency rooms; (c) pay for services that a private insurer would be obligated to cover but for a provision of its insurance contract that limits its obligation because the child is eligible for child health assistance; (d) pay for services for which payment can reasonably be expected to be made under any other Federally operated or financed health insurance program or the Indian Health Service; or (e) pay for abortions, except in the case of a pregnancy resulting from rape or incest, or unless the mother is in danger of death unless an abortion is performed.

Federal funds or program spending that is largely subsidized by Federal funds may not be claimed as the required non-Federal share of costs.

The Secretary may make payments to States on the basis of advance estimates of spending made by the State and other investigations that the Secretary may find necessary, and may adjust payments as necessary to account for an overpayment or underpayment in prior quarters.

New section 2105. Process for submission, approval, and amendment of State child health plans

As a condition of receiving funding under this title, a State would be required to submit a State child health plan for approval by the Secretary. A State plan would become effective beginning in a specified calendar quarter that is at least 60 days after the plan is submitted. A State may amend its State child health plan at any time with a plan amendment. Plan amendments must be approved for the purposes of this title and would take effect on dates as specified in the amendment. Amendments restricting or limiting eligibility or benefits could not take effect until there had been public notice of the change. The Secretary would be required to promptly review State plans and amendments to determine compliance with the requirements of this title. Unless the State were notified in writing within 90 days that a plan or amendment was disapproved and the reasons for disapproval or that additional information was needed, the plan or amendment would be deemed approved. In the case of a disapproval, the Secretary would provide a State with a reasonable opportunity for correction.

Child health assistance programs would have to be conducted in accordance with the State plan and any approved amendments. The Secretary would establish a process for enforcing requirements under this title. Approved plans would continue in effect unless amended or unless the Secretary found the plan out of compliance with this title.

New section 2106. Strategic objectives and performance goals

A State child health plan would be required to identify: (a) specific strategic objectives aimed at increasing health coverage among low-income children; (b) performance goals for each strategic objective identified; and (c) performance measures that are objective and verifiable, so that when compared with the performance goals, indicate the State's performance under this title. Plans must include assurances that the State will collect data, maintain records, and furnish reports as required by the Secretary as well as provide the required annual assessments and evaluations. The Secretary would be required to have access to any records or information for reviews or audits as deemed necessary.

Plans would be required to include a description of the process for obtaining ongoing public involvement in the design and implementation of the plan, and the plan's budget to be updated periodically including details on the sources of the non-Federal share of plan spending.

The following sections of Title XI would apply to States' Child Health Assistance Insurance programs as they do under Title XIX: Section 1101(a)(1) relating to the definition of a State; Section 1116 relating to administrative and judicial review; Section 1124 relating to disclosure of ownership and related information; Section 1126 relating to disclosure of information about certain convicted individuals; Section 1128B(d) relating to criminal penalties; and Section 1132 relating to periods within which claims must be filed.

New section 2107. Annual reports and evaluations

A State would be required to provide an annual report to the Secretary by January 1 following the end of each fiscal year assessing the operation of the plan and the progress made in reducing the number of uncovered low-income children during the prior fiscal year. States would also be required to provide a State evaluation by March 31, 2000, assessing (a) the effectiveness of the State plan in increasing the number of children with health coverage; (b) the effectiveness of specific elements of the plan, such as characteristics of families and children assisted and quality of coverage provided; (c) the effectiveness of other public and private programs in the State in increasing health coverage for children; (d) State activities to coordinate the plan with other public and private programs providing health care coverage; (e) trends in the State affecting the provision of health care to children; (f) plans for improving the availability of health insurance and health care for children; and (g) recommendations for improving the program, among other matters the State and Secretary consider appropriate. The Secretary would be required to compile a report based on the State evaluation to submit to Congress and make available to the public by December 31, 2000.

New section 2108. Definitions

This section defines the following terms: child health assistance, targeted low-income child, Medicaid applicable income level, child, creditable health coverage, group health plan and health insurance coverage, low income, poverty line, preexisting condition exclusion, State child health plan, and uncovered child.

Section 3503. Optional use of State child health assistance funds for enhanced Medicaid match for expanded Medicaid eligibility

Current Law. States participating in the Medicaid program are required to cover children under age 6 in families with income under 133 percent of the Federal poverty level and older children under age 14 in families with income under 100 percent of the Federal poverty level. Children between 14 and 18 will have coverage phased-in by the year 2002. States may extend optional eligibility to other categories of low-income children.

The costs of providing Medicaid coverage are shared by the States and the Federal government. The Federal share is determined by a formula that takes into account the average per capita income in the State relative to the national average. States with lower per capita incomes have higher Federal matching rates. These Federal matching rates range from a floor of 50 percent to almost 80 percent.

Explanation of Provision. States may choose to use a portion of their Title XXI funds to increase the Federal matching share of the costs of extending Medicaid coverage to targeted low-income children. Targeted low-income children are those who do not qualify for Medicaid as in effect on June 1, 1997, and whose family income is below the higher of 75 percentage points over the Medicaid applicable income level, or 133 percent of the poverty line. In order to qualify for the enhanced Federal matching funds States must use income and resource standards and methodologies to determine eligibility for Medicaid that are no more restrictive than those in place in the State on June 1, 1997. Qualifying States must also report such information as the Secretary deems necessary to calculate the remaining child health insurance assistance funds available after the enhanced Federal match and to assure that no more than 15 percent of those funds are used for activities other than providing health care coverage. The enhanced Federal matching funds could not exceed the total amount of the child health insurance funds allotted to the State under Section 2104.

The enhanced medical assistance percentage would be equal to the Federal medical assistance percentage increased by the number of percentage points equal to 30 percent multiplied by the number of percentage points by which the Federal medical assistance percentage is less than 100 percent. States would be allowed to impose limits on the number of optional targeted low-income children whose health care costs are eligible for enhanced Federal matching payments under this provision. All provisions in this section become effective on October 1, 1997.

Section 3504. Medicaid presumptive eligibility for low-income children

Current Law. States have the option to allow presumptive eligibility for pregnant women. Under presumptive eligibility, health care providers are able to grant pregnant women with immediate, short-term Medicaid eligibility at the provider site while formal determination is being made. Presumptive eligibility is intended to provide immediate access to prenatal care services. As of 1996, 30 States have opted to provide presumptive eligibility.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would allow States to provide for a presumptive eligibility period for children under the age of 19. The presumptive eligibility period would begin when a qualified entity determines, based on preliminary information, that the family income of the child is below the applicable income eligibility threshold for the State Medicaid program, and ends when a formal determination is made. For children on whose behalf an application is not filed, the presumptive eligibility period would end on the last day of the month following the month when the period began.

CHANGES IN EXISTING LAW MADE BY SUBTITLE F

The changes in existing law made by Subtitle F are included at the conclusion of the report on this Title of the bill.

MINORITY, ADDITIONAL OR DISSENTING VIEWS

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, June 16, 1997.

Hon. TOM BLILEY,
Chairman, Committee on Commerce, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has prepared the enclosed cost estimate for the non-Medicare reconciliation recommendations of the House Committee on Commerce (Title III). The estimate for the committee's recommendations for Medicare (Title IV) is being provided under separate cover.

The estimate includes a summary table that shows the budgetary effects of the committee's proposals over the 1998–2002 period, and additional, more detailed tables of estimated effect through 2007. CBO understands that the Committee on the Budget will be responsible for interpreting how these proposals compare with the reconciliation instructions in the budget resolution. This estimate assumes the reconciliation bill will be enacted by August 15, 1997; the estimate could change if the bill is enacted later.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them. The CBO staff contacts are listed at the end of the estimate.

Sincerely,

Enclosure.

Non-Medicare Reconciliation Recommendations of the House Committee on Commerce (Title III)

Summary: Title III contains five subtitles aimed at providing budgetary savings from federal energy programs, auctions of licenses for use of portions of the electromagnetic spectrum, and Medicaid. A sixth subtitle would provide for increased direct spending by funding a child health care initiative. CBO estimates that enacting the provisions of Title III would produce net budgetary savings totaling $6.9 billion over the 1998–2002 period.

By extending the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's (NRC's) authority to collect fees from utilities, Subtitle A would impose an intergovernmental and private-sector mandate as defined by the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act of 1995 (UMRA). This provision would not impose costs above the threshold established in that law for intergovernmental mandates ($50 million in 1996, adjusted for inflation). CBO cannot determine whether the direct costs of this provision would exceed the annual threshold for private-sector mandates ($100 million in 1996, adjusted for inflation), because UMRA is unclear as to how to define the direct costs associated with extending an existing mandate that has not yet expired. Depending on how they are measured, the direct costs to the private sector could exceed the threshold. Other subtitles of Title III contain provisions that, while not mandates as defined in UMRA, would have significant impacts on the budgets of state, local, and tribal governments.

Description of Major Provisions: Subtitle A would extend through 2002 the NRC's authority to charge fees to offset 100 percent of its general fund appropriation.

Subtitle B would revise the terms under which the Department of Energy (DOE) could lease excess capacity of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve (SPR) to foreign governments and would direct the department to spend any income derived from leasing after fiscal year 2002 on SPR-related activities without further appropriation. The fees charged for storage would have to fully compensate the United States for all the costs associated with storing and removing the oil, including the cost of replacement facilities, if necessitated by the leasing activity.

Subtitle C would direct DOE to sell specified amounts of natural and low enriched uranium that have been declared surplus to national security needs. DOE would be required to sell 3.2 million pounds during each of the fiscal years 1999 through 2002, subject to certain conditions. In particular, before selling the uranium, DOE would have to determine that selling the specified amounts over the 1999–2002 period would satisfy existing statutory criteria regarding the sale of such materials from DOE's stockpiles, and proceeds from the sales would have to be collected and deposited in the general fund of the Treasury between 1999 and 2002.

Subtitle D contains several provisions relating to assignment of licenses for using the electromagnetic spectrum. It would instruct the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to use competitive bidding to assign licenses for most mutually exclusive applications of the electromagnetic spectrum and it would extend the FCC's authority to conduct such auctions through fiscal year 2002. Under current law, that authority expires at the end of fiscal year 1998. The subtitle also would amend current law by broadening the commission's authority to use competitive bidding to assign licenses. Current law restricts the use of competitive bidding to those mutually exclusive applications in which the licensee would receive compensation from subscribers to a communications service.

In addition, Subtitle D would require the FCC and the Department of Commerce, through the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA), to make available blocks of spectrum for allocation for commercial use and to assign the rights to use those blocks by competitive bidding, if the FCC determines that various specified conditions are met for each of the blocks of spectrum identified in the subtitle. The additional licenses that could be assigned by competitive bidding would grant the right to use 100 megahertz (MHz) of spectrum located below 3 gigahertz (GHz) currently under the FCC's jurisdiction and an additional 20 MHz also below 3 GHz to be identified by the NTIA and transferred to the FCC's jurisdiction.

Under current law, a part of the spectrum currently reserved for television broadcasting will become available for reallocation as broadcasters comply (over the next several years) with the FCC's direction to adopt digital television broadcasting technology to replace the current analog technology. This subtitle would make available for licensing and assignment by competitive bidding certain frequencies that are currently allocated for analog television broadcasting, including a part of the spectrum between 746 MHz and 806 MHz (frequencies currently allocated for primary use by ultra high frequency television broadcasting on channels 60 through 69).

The requirement that the commission use competitive bidding to assign the rights to use the frequencies noted in Subtitle D would be conditional. In all cases, the FCC would be directed to refrain from using competitive bidding unless it determines that license sales granting the use of various frequencies will meet specified dollar targets for aggregate winning bids. In addition, the commission would be authorized to void the results of any actions that take place but fail to meet targets for aggregate winning bids. Moreover, the commission could choose to delay assignment of licenses by competitive bidding if it determines that conducting auctions at a later date "will better attain the objectives of recovering for the public a fair portion of the value of the public spectrum resource and avoiding unjust enrichment." Finally, for the frequencies between 746 MHz and 806 MHz, the FCC would not be permitted to make allocations and assign licenses by auction unless each qualifying low-power television station (as defined in the title) is assigned a frequency below 746 MHz to continue its operation.

1995 was under 1 percent of medical assistance spending state allotments would depend on whether a state was designated as a high- or low-DSH state in 1997. For high-DSH states, allotments would equal each state's 1995 DSH spending reduced by 2 percent in 1998, with larger reductions in later years, reaching 40 percent in 2002. For low-DSH states, the state allotment would equal the state's 1995 spending reduced by half of the percentage reduction applied to high-DSH states.

This subtitle also includes provisions giving states greater flexibility in how they administer their Medicaid programs. The Boren amendment, which requires states to reimburse hospitals and nursing homes at "reasonable and adequate" rates, would be repealed. States would also have greater leeway to implement managed care programs, expand eligibility, change benefits, and meet federal requirements for administrative activities.

Subtitle F establishes a Child Health Assistance Program that would provide matching grants to states for the provisions of child health care assistance to uninsured, low-income children. The money would be allocated on the basis of participating states' shares of the total number of uninsured children, adjusted for the average cost of health care. The state matching requirement would be 20 percent. States would have substantial discretion in how to spend these funds, and could use them to purchase health insurance coverage from group plans, arrange for health care services directly through providers, expand their Medicaid programs, or use other approved methods.

Estimated Cost to the Federal Government: CBO estimates that the provisions of Title III would reduce direct spending by $6.7 billion over the next five years. That estimated impact would come from enacting Subtitles B, D, E, and F. In addition, we estimate that enacting Subtitle C would yield $184 million in asset sale proceeds over the same period. Gross budgetary savings would total $24.5 billion over the 1998–2002 period, but that amount would be partially offset by new direct spending, primarily under Subtitle F, totaling $17.6 billion over the same period. Enacting Subtitle A would, by itself, have no budgetary impact relative to the budget resolution baseline.

The budgetary effects of this legislation fall within budget functions 270 (energy), 370 (commerce and housing credit), 550 (health), and 950 (undistributed offsetting receipts).

Basis of estimate

Nuclear Regulatory Commission Annual Charges (Subtitle A)

This provision would extend through 2002 the NRC's authority to charge fees to offset 100 percent of its general fund appropriation. Under current law, after 1998 the NRC would be authorized to set fees on the industries it regulates sufficient to cover only 33 percent of its budget. Because the amount of fees collected under this provision would be determined by the size of the NRC's general fund appropriation, this provision would not affect direct spending.

Assuming future appropriations for the NRC continue at the 1997 level adjusted for inflation, enactment of this provision would increase offsetting collections by an average of about $340 million annually over the 1999–2002 period. Under rules for projecting discretionary spending established in the Budget Enforcement Act of 1990, however, the baseline projection of NRC spending for the 1998–2002 period is based on the agency's net spending level in 1997. Because the 1997 level reflects fee collections sufficient to offset 100 percent of the NRC's general fund appropriations, the provision to extend full-cost recovery does not produce any discretionary savings relative to the budget resolution baseline.

This subtitle would remove some of the statutory impediments to leasing the excess capacity of the SPR to foreign governments. For example, products stored on behalf of foreign governments would not be considered part of the U.S. reserve and could be exported. Estimates of how much of the excess capacity (currently about 110 million barrels) would be leased are speculative, because the decision to lease resides with foreign governments, not DOE. At this time, most nations needing capacity either have plans for domestic storage or face regulatory barriers to using U.S. facilities. CBO expects, however, that one or more nations would chose to store small quantities of oil in the SPR to accommodate growth in their storage requirements or to satisfy other strategic objectives. We estimate that such leasing activity would generate receipts totaling about $13 million over the 1999–2002 period, assuming a storage fee of about $1.20 per barrel (in 1997 dollars). Beginning in 2003, this provision would no longer generate net receipts because DOE would be authorized to spend the proceeds from leasing to purchase oil for the reserve without further appropriation.

Sale of DOE assets (Subtitle C)

CBO estimates that enacting Subtitle C would generate asset sale proceeds totaling $184 million over the 1999–2002 period. Under current law, DOE is required to sell uranium from its stockpile to raise a total of $77 million to offset appropriations provided for fiscal years 1996 and 1997. CBO projects that DOE will sell about three million pounds of uranium in 1998 and about 1.5 million pounds in 1999 to meet the $77 million target in current law. Based on recent departmental findings supporting that effort, CBO expects that, under the conditions specified in this subtitle, the Secretary could justify selling a total of 3.2 million pounds per year through 2002. Because we expect DOE to be marketing about 1.5 million pounds in 1999 under current law, we assume that DOE would sell slightly less than 2 million pounds under this new authority that year. Hence, the estimate of $184 million in proceeds attributable to Subtitle C is based on an assumed sales total of about 11 million pounds of uranium over the 1999–2002 period. Based on information provided by the department and committee staff, we assume that the uranium being sold as a result of this provision would be in addition to the Russian-derived uranium that must be sold over the same period. Finally, the spending required to conduct the sale would have no net effect on outlays, because this bill would require DOE to finance such costs using unobligated balances that otherwise would have been spent on other activities.

CBO estimates that the federal government would collect $9.7 billion in offsetting receipts over the 1998–2002 period from enacting the provisions contained in Subtitle D. This estimate reflects the likelihood that some of the auctions authorized by the subtitle would either not occur in the next five years or would yield relatively low aggregate winning bids. CBO believes that significantly higher aggregate auction receipts could be obtained under auction authority without the restrictions included in Subtitle D. Estimates for the major components of Subtitle D are discussed below and displayed in Table 3.

CBO expects that extending and broadening the FCC's authority to auction licenses through 2002 (under section 3301) would increase receipts by $5.8 billion over the 1998–2002 period. Most of the estimated receipts would be generated by the auction of licenses permitting the use of frequencies above 3 GHz that have not been specifically designated for reallocation or auction under existing law. CBO anticipates that, in complying with its mandate to assign licenses for most mutually exclusive applications of the spectrum by competitive bidding, the commission will make available such frequencies under the general authority provided by this section.

In addition, CBO estimates that the provisions of section 3301 that require the FCC to use competitive bidding to assign the rights to use 120 MHz of frequencies below 3 GHz (100 MHz to be reallocated by the FCC and 20 MHz to be identified by the NTIA) would generate receipts of $3.2 billion over the 1998–2002 period. This estimate reflects the significant probability that some auctions would not be held in the next five years and that some would be voided under the conditions set forth in the legislation. CBO's estimate of receipts for future FCC auctions is based on the expectation that prices for FCC licenses will fall from the levels of recent years as more spectrum is brought to the market. CBO has further reduced its estimate for the 120 MHz of spectrum identified for auction in this subtitle because the legislation does not specify the location on the electromagnetic spectrum for 55 MHz of the 100 MHz that it would require the commission to reallocate and auction. There is some doubt as to whether sufficient spectrum can be identified and auctioned to meet the 120 MHz target. Moreover, the subtitle directs the commission to refrain from holding auctions under certain circumstances, and authorizes it to void the results of auctions if the targeted level of two-thirds of $7.5 billion in aggregate winning bids is not achieved. These provisions create the prospect that the commission will decide not to conduct some auctions and will void the results of others. Our estimate reflects these uncertainties.

CBO estimates that enacting section 3302, which pertains to the recovery and auction of frequencies now allocated for analog television broadcasting, would yield $700 million in auction receipts. This section requires the FCC to delay the recovery of the frequencies used by analog TV broadcasters in a market beyond December 31, 2006, if more than 5 percent of households in that market continue to rely exclusively on over-the-air terrestrial analog television signals. It would therefore introduce significant uncertainty as to when bidders would be able to use the frequencies and could reduce auction receipts by 50 percent or more. Accordingly, the $700 million figure reflects (1) the possibility that the FCC might refrain from conducting the auction, (2) a lower estimate of the likely receipts if the commission holds the auction, and (3) the possibility that the commission would void the auction results because receipts would fall below the target of two-thirds of $4 billion.

CBO estimates that no receipts would result from enacting section 3303, which pertains to the current television frequencies between 746 MHz and 806 MHz. Subsection (f) would require the FCC to assign each qualifying low-power television station a frequency below 746 MHz to permit continued operation before it allocates and assigns by auction any new licenses in the 746 MHz to 806 MHz range. Based on information from the FCC, CBO believes that there is not enough free spectrum below 746 MHz to allow the commission to carry out that requirement.

Medicaid (Subtitle E)

Subtitle E includes provisions to give states greater leeway in how they administer their Medicaid programs, maintain quality assurance, and reduce federal payments for disproportionate share hospitals (DSH). Some of these provisions would not significantly affect spending and others would increase spending. On balance, however, the subtitle would reduce federal outlays by $11.4 billion over the 1998–2002 period (see Table 4). The assumptions underlying the estimates of costs or savings for provisions that would affect federal spending are described below.

Chapter 1—State flexibility reforms

Determination of Hospital Stay. CBO estimates that requiring Medicaid health plans to allow physicians or other attending health care providers and patients to determine the appropriate length of inpatient hospital stays would increase costs by $0.8 billion over five years. This provision would lead to an increase in the number of inpatient days, with the result that states would have to pay health plans higher capitation rates to cover enrollees.

Payment for Federally Qualified Health Center Services (FQHCs). This provision would phase out over five years the requirement that states reimburse rural health clinics (RHCs) and most federally qualified health centers on a cost basis. The provision would eliminate cost-based reimbursement for organizations designated by the Health Resources and Services Administration as look-alike FQHCs. Without the requirement that payments reflect costs, CBO assumes that states would lower reimbursement rates to FQHCs and RHCs to be more consistent with overall Medicaid payment rates at the end of the phase-out period. CBO estimates that this provision would reduce Medicaid costs by $0.3 billion over the next five years.

Repeal the Boren Amendment. The Boren Amendment requires states to reimburse hospitals and nursing homes at rates that are “reasonable and adequate to meet the costs which must be incurred by efficiently and economically operated facilities in order to provide care and services in conformity with applicable state and federal laws, regulations, and quality and safety standards.” Many states have argued that suits or threats of suits under the Boren Amendment have been an important cause of rapid increases in provider reimbursement rates.

CBO estimates that the repeal of the Boren Amendment would reduce spending by about $1.2 billion over the 1998–2002 period. This estimate assumes that reimbursement rates for institutional providers would increase more slowly than if providers could continue to use the threat of Boren suits as leverage against the states. About 40 percent of the savings would come from payments to hospitals and 60 percent would come from payments to nursing homes.

Although payments to these providers are generally increasing overall, CBO's projections of Medicaid spending under current law assume that some states reduce provider reimbursement rates in any given year. Accordingly, the floor would increase costs slightly in 1998 because it would prevent these states from reducing rates.

12-Month Continuous Coverage. This provision would allow states to enroll children for the entire year without regard to changes in the incomes of their families. Under current law, CBO estimates that children stay enrolled in the Medicaid program for an average of 9 months in any year. If all states opted to extend coverage for an entire year, Medicaid costs would increase by almost $14 billion. However, because this option would be so costly—and because few states take advantage of the option to provide 6-month continuous coverage under Section 1115 or Section 1915(b) waivers—CBO estimates that states accounting for only 5 percent of total costs would choose the option. Thus, this provision would cost $0.7 billion over the 1998–2002 period.

This provision would increase the average number of children enrolled on the Medicaid program in any month by 130,000. But because some of these children would otherwise have been insured, the number of uninsured children would decline by about 80,000.

Payment of Home Health Related Medicare Part B Premium. This provision would expand the Specified Low-Income Medicare Beneficiary (SLMB) program, which pays the Medicare Part B premium for Medicaid enrollees with family incomes between 100 percent and 120 percent of the poverty level. Under the provision, the federal government would reimburse states for 100 percent of costs for the portion of the Medicare Part B premium attributable to home health spending for enrollees with family incomes between 120 and 175 percent of the federal poverty level. CBO estimates that federal outlays would increase by $0.5 billion over the 1998–2002 period.

Physician Assistants. Expanding Medicaid benefits for services of physician assistants would increase costs by $0.1 billion during the 1998–2002 period. Although most state Medicaid programs already pay for these services, there are several states for which this policy would represent a change from current law. CBO's estimate accounts for costs due to increased demand for physician assistant services that would accompany this policy change in these states and, to a lesser degree, for induced demand in the other states that would occur with the inclusion of this provision. Half of the costs attributable to new demand for services would be offset by lower spending for physician services that are covered under current law.

CBO estimates that the application of the prudent layperson standard for emergency medical conditions to contracts with Medicaid HMOs would increase costs of $0.1 billion over five years. This provision would increase managed care plans' liability for emergency room use and, therefore, increase premiums for Medicaid managed care plans and thus federal spending.

Chapter 3—Federal payments

This chapter specifies allotments that would limit the amount of federal reimbursement available for state disproportionate share hospital (DSH) programs over the 1998–2002 period. The bill classifies states into three categories according to how their DSH spending compared with total medical assistance payments. The allotment for a state whose DSH spending in 1995 was under 1 percent of medical assistance spending that year would equal the state's 1995 amount. The allotment for a state designated as a high-DSH state in 1997—one whose DSH payments were greater than 12 percent of medical assistance payments—would equal the state's 1995 spending reduced by 2 percent in 1998, 5 percent in 1999, 20 percent in 2000, 30 percent in 2001 and 40 percent in 2002 and subsequent years. The allotment for any state would equal the state's 1995 spending reduced by half of the percentage reduction applied to high-DSH states. The bill also specifies that DSH payments would be made directly to hospitals and not included in the capitation payments for managed care plans. This chapter also includes provisions that would guarantee that DSH payments to certain children's and teaching hospitals be no less than DSH payments made to such hospitals in 1995 for fiscal year 1999. This amount would be increased by overall Medicaid growth for subsequent years.

CBO estimates that these provisions would reduce federal outlays by $13.1 billion over the 1998–2002 period. This estimate takes into account state responses to the reduced availability of DSH money and interactions with the Child Health Assistance Program (CHAP) in Subtitle F of the bill. It is based on the preliminary designations of high- and low-DSH states published in the Federal Register on January 31, 1997.

By itself, a policy to limit DSH spending would not be fully effective because states could restore some of the lost federal revenues by increasing their use of intergovernmental transfers or Medicaid maximization techniques. (Intergovernmental transfers are a process by which public hospitals or other public facilities transfer money to the state, which then uses these funds to make DSH payments—mainly to those same facilities—and receives federal matching dollars for those payments. Medicaid maximization refers to states shifting to the Medicaid program activities that were previously financed without federal assistance.) CBO estimates that these strategies would reduce the savings from limits on DSH spending by 25 percent. In this case, however, states would not feel the full effects of the limits because some of their CHAP funds could be used for existing state activities, such as health insurance programs or direct provision of health care services to uninsured children. Because of this flexibility, the reduction in payments to states to which CBO applies the 25 percent factor is smaller, and net federal savings from limiting DSH spending are larger than would be the case for a stand-alone policy.

Finally, this subtitle would provide $20 million a year to be allocated among the 12 states with the highest number of undocumented aliens for emergency health services provided to them.

Child Health Assistant Program (CHAP)—(Subtitle F)

The Child Health Assistant Program would provide funds enabling states to initiate and expand the provision of child health care assistance to uninsured, low-income children. The bill would provide $2.9 billion per year ($14.4 billion over the 1998–2002 period) to finance these activities. Of this amount, 0.5 percent would be allocated to the territories. The remaining money would be distributed according to each state's share of the total number of uninsured children in all states, adjusted for the average cost of health care. The state matching requirement would be 20 percent.

The bill would provide states with a great deal of flexibility in how to spend these funds. States could purchase health insurance coverage from group plans, arrange for health care services directly through providers, expand their Medicaid programs, or use other methods approved by the Secretary. CBO makes no specific assumption about which approach states would choose. However, CBO assumes it unlikely that states would opt to use their state allocations to expand the Medicaid program.

Given the range of options from which a state could choose, the number of children who would be covered under the programs cannot be estimated with precision. Whereas some states would choose to purchase insurance coverage, others might choose to provide health care services directly. Access to health care for uninsured children would increase under both approaches, but only the former approach would be counted as an increase in health insurance coverage. Further, not all of this spending would represent a net increase in health care services. CBO assumes that states would use some of the money to substitute for funds that are currently being spent on these services, including payments to disproportionate share hospitals, state health programs, and administrative activities.

After accounting for spending on the provision of direct services and other activities, CBO assumes the states could cover about 500,000 children through new health insurance programs. In addition, CBO estimates that in the process of enrolling children in these programs, states would identify some children who were eligible for Medicaid and would enroll them in that program. As a result, federal Medicaid outlays would increase by $0.7 billion over the 1998–2002 period; on a full-year equivalent basis, Medicaid enrollment would increase by about 125,000 children annually. Not all of the children newly enrolled in state programs or Medicaid would otherwise have been uninsured, however, so that the net effect of this provision would be to reduce the number of uninsured children by about 380,000.

Subtitle F would allow states the option to provide Medicaid coverage to children during a period of presumptive eligibility. CBO estimates that this provision would increase federal costs by $0.5 billion over five years. Of this amount, $0.1 billion would be deducted from states' CHAP allotments for spending during a period of presumptive eligibility. The remaining $0.4 billion would be attributable to an overall increase in Medicaid enrollment. (These costs are shown under Subtitle E in Table 4.) CBO assumes that the states would limit the entities authorized to determine eligibility to those who currently do so for pregnant women.

Estimated impact on State, local, and tribal governments: By extending the NRC's authority to collect fees from publicly owned utilities, Subtitle A would impose an intergovernmental mandate as defined by UMRA, but this mandate would not impose costs above the threshold established in that law ($50 million in 1996, adjusted for inflation). Other subtitles of Title III contain provisions that would have significant impacts on the budgets of state, local, and tribal governments.

Mandates

Subtitle A would extend, through fiscal year 2002, the NRC's authority to charge fees to offset 100 percent of its general fund appropriation. The existing authority to charge these fees expires after fiscal year 1998. After that year, NRC would be authorized to set fees equal to only 33 percent of its budget. CBO cannot determine whether this mandate would impose any direct costs because UMRA is unclear as to how to define costs associated with extending an existing mandate that has not yet expired.

In any case, this mandate would impose costs on state, local and tribal governments significantly below the threshold established by UMRA. The amount of fees collected under this provision would depend on the level of future appropriations. Assuming appropriations remain at the 1997 level, adjusted for inflation, CBO estimates that this provision would result in additional collections of about $340 million annually over the 1999–2002 period. CBO estimates that a small percentage of these fees—less than five percent—would be paid by publicly owned utilities, so this provision would result in additional costs to state, local, and tribal governments totaling no more than $20 million per year.

Other significant impacts

Communications (Subtitle D).—This subtitle would instruct the FCC to allocate a portion of the spectrum to state and local governments for public safety services. It would also allow state and local governments to use unassigned radio frequencies for public safety purposes under certain circumstances.

Medicaid (Subtitle E).—By expanding benefits and eligibility, CBO estimates that this subtitle would increase net state Medicaid spending excluding DSH. The subtitle would also decrease the federal government's share of DSH payments by $13.1 billion over the next five years but contains a provision that would require states to maintain their DSH payments to certain teaching and children's hospitals at 1995 levels (increased annually by the rate of growth of their Medicaid programs). This reduction in DSH payments would not constitute a mandate under UMRA because reductions in federal funding to states for large entitlement programs are not mandates if states have the flexibility to reduce their own programmatic or financial responsibilities under the program. States have significant programmatic flexibility under Medicaid. Finally, this title would provide states with $100 million over the next five years to provide emergency health services to undocumented aliens.

Child Health Coverage (Subtitle F).—This subtitle would create a new program—Child Health Assistance Program (CHAP)—that would provide states with $14.4 billion over the next five years to provide assistance to low income children who are uninsured in obtaining health coverage. States would provide 20 percent of this program's funding.

Estimated impact on the private sector: CBO has identified one private-sector mandate in Title III. Subtitle A would impose a mandate on the private sector by extending the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's authority to collect annual charges from nuclear utilities, resulting in additional collections averaging $340 million a year from 1999 through 2002. CBO estimates that most of the fees would be paid by investor-owned nuclear utilities.

CBO cannot determine whether the direct costs of this mandate would exceed the annual threshold in UMRA, because UMRA is unclear as to how to define the direct costs associated with extending an existing mandate that has not yet expired. Measured against the private-sector costs that would be incurred if current law remains in place and the annual fee declines, the total direct cost of extending this mandate would be about $300 million annually, beginning in fiscal year 1999. In this case the cost of the mandate would exceed the annual threshold for the private sector as defined in UMRA. By contrast, measured against current private-sector costs, the direct cost of the mandate would be zero.

TITLE III—PROVISIONS RELATING TO RADIO

PART I—GENERAL PROVISIONS

* * * * *

SEC. 309. ACTION UPON APPLICATIONS; FORM OF AND CONDITIONS ATTACHED TO LICENSES.

(a) * * *

* * * * *

[(1) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—If—

[(A) there is more than one application for any initial license or construction permit which will involve a use of the electromagnetic spectrum; and then the Commission shall have the authority to grant such license or permit to a qualified applicant through the use of a system of random selection.

[(B) the Commission has determined that the use is not described in subsection (j)(2)(A);

[(2) No license or construction permit shall be granted to an applicant selected pursuant to paragraph (1) unless the Commission determines the qualifications of such applicant pursuant to subsection (a) and section 308(b). When substantial and material questions of fact exist concerning such qualifications, the Commission shall conduct a hearing in order to make such determinations.

For the purposes of making such determinations, the Commission may, by rule, and notwithstanding any other provision of law—

[(A) adopt procedures for the submission of all or part of the evidence in written form;

[(B) delegate the function of presiding at the taking of written evidence to Commission employees other than administrative law judges; and

[(C) omit the determination required by subsection (a) with respect to any application other than the one selected pursuant to paragraph (1).

[(3)(A) The Commission shall establish rules and procedures to ensure that, in the administration of any system of random selection under this subsection used for granting licenses or construction permits for any media of mass communications, significant preferences will be granted to applicants or groups of applicants, the grant to which of the license or permit would increase the diversification of ownership of the media of mass communications. To further diversify the ownership of the media of mass communications, an additional significant preference shall be granted to any applicant controlled by a member or members of minority group.

[(B) The Commission shall have authority to require each qualified applicant seeking a significant preference under subparagraph (A) to submit to the Commission such information as may be necessary to enable the Commission to make a determination regarding whether such applicant shall be granted such preference. Such information shall be submitted in such form, at such times, and in accordance with such procedures, as the Commission may require.

[(C) For purposes of this paragraph:

[(i) The term “media of mass communication” includes television, radio, cable television, multipoint distribution service, direct broadcast satellite service, and other services, the licensed facilities of which may be substantially devoted toward providing programming or other information services within the editorial control of the licensee.

[(ii) The term “minority group” includes Blacks, Hispanics, American Indians, Alaska Natives, Asians, and Pacific Islanders.

[(4)(A) The Commission shall, after notice and opportunity for hearing, prescribe rules establishing a system of random selection for use by the Commission under this subsection in any instance in which the Commission, in its discretion, determines that such use is appropriate for the granting of any license or permit in accordance with paragraph (1).

[(B) The Commission shall have authority to amend such rules from time to time to the extent necessary to carry out the provisions of this subsection. Any such amendment shall be made after notice and opportunity for hearing.

[(C) Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this subparagraph, the Commission shall prescribe such transfer disclosures and antitrafficking restrictions and payment schedules as are necessary to prevent the unjust enrichment of recipients of licenses or permits as a result of the methods employed to issue licenses under this subsection.]

(j) USE OF COMPETITIVE BIDDING.—

【(1) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—If mutually exclusive applications are accepted for filing for any initial license or construction permit which will involve a use of the electromagnetic spectrum described in paragraph (2), then the Commission shall have the authority, subject to paragraph (10), to grant such license or permit to a qualified applicant through the use of a system of competitive bidding that meets the requirements of this subsection.

【(2) USES TO WHICH BIDDING MAY APPLY.—A use of the electromagnetic spectrum is described in this paragraph if the Commission determines that—

【(A) the principal use of such spectrum will involve, or is reasonably likely to involve, the licensee receiving compensation from subscribers in return for which the licensee—

【(i) enables those subscribers to receive communications signals that are transmitted utilizing frequencies on which the licensee is licensed to operate; or

【(ii) enables those subscribers to transmit directly communications signals utilizing frequencies on which the licensee is licensed to operate; and

【(B) a system of competitive bidding will promote the objectives described in paragraph (3).】

(1) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—If, consistent with the obligations described in paragraph (6)(E), mutually exclusive applications are accepted for any initial license or construction permit which will involve an exclusive use of the electromagnetic spectrum, then the Commission shall grant such license or permit to a qualified applicant through a system of competitive bidding that meets the requirements of this subsection.

(2) EXEMPTIONS.—The competitive bidding authority granted by this subsection shall not apply to licenses or construction permits issued by the Commission—

(A) that, as the result of the Commission carrying out the obligations described in paragraph (6)(E), are not mutually exclusive;

(B) for public safety radio services, including private internal radio services used by non-Government entities, that—

(i) protect the safety of life, health, or property; and

(ii) are not made commercially available to the public;

(C) for initial licenses or construction permits assigned by the Commission to existing terrestrial broadcast licensees for new terrestrial digital television services; or

(D) for public telecommunications services, as defined in section 397(14) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 397(14)), when the license application is for channels reserved for noncommercial use.

(3) DESIGN OF SYSTEMS OF COMPETITIVE BIDDING.—For each class of licenses or permits that the Commission grants through the use of a competitive bidding system, the Commission shall, by regulation, establish a competitive bidding methodology. The Commission shall seek to design and test multiple alternative methodologies under appropriate circumstances. The Commission shall, directly or by contract, provide for the design and conduct (for purposes of testing) of competitive bidding using a contingent combinatorial bidding system that permits prospective bidders to bid on combinations or groups of licenses in a single bid and to enter multiple alternative bids within a single bidding round. In identifying classes of licenses and permits to be issued by competitive bidding, in specifying eligibility and other characteristics of such licenses and permits, and in designing the methodologies for use under this subsection, the Commission shall include safeguards to protect the public interest in the use of the spectrum and shall seek to promote the purposes specified in section 1 of this Act and the following objectives:

(A) * * *

(C) recovery for the public of a portion of the value of the public spectrum resource made available for commercial use and avoidance of unjust enrichment through the methods employed to award uses of that resource; [and]

(D) efficient and intensive use of the electromagnetic spectrum[.]; and

(E) ensuring that, in the scheduling of any competitive bidding under this subsection, an adequate period is allowed—

(i) before issuance of bidding rules, to permit notice and comment on proposed auction procedures; and

(ii) after issuance of bidding rules, to ensure that interested parties have a sufficient time to develop business plans, assess market conditions, and evaluate the availability of equipment for the relevant services.

* * * * *

(8) TREATMENT OF REVENUES.—

(A) * * *

[(B) RETENTION OF REVENUES.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), the salaries and expenses account of the Commission shall retain as an offsetting collection such sums as may be necessary from such proceeds for the costs of developing and implementing the program required by this subsection. Such offsetting collections shall be available for obligation subject to the terms and conditions of the receiving appropriations account, and shall be deposited in such accounts on a quarterly basis. Any funds appropriated to the Commission for fiscal years 1994 through 1998 for the purpose of assigning licenses using random selection under subsection (i) shall be used by the Commission to implement this subsection. Such offsetting collections are authorized to remain available until expended.]

[(C) (B) DEPOSIT AND USE OF AUCTION ESCROW ACCOUNTS.—Any deposits the Commission may require for the qualification of any person to bid in a system of competitive bidding pursuant to this subsection shall be deposited in an interest bearing account at a financial institution designated for purposes of this subsection by the Commission (after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury). Within 45 days following the conclusion of the competitive bidding—

(i) the deposits of successful bidders shall be paid to the Treasury;

(ii) the deposits of unsuccessful bidders shall be returned to such bidders; and

(iii) the interest accrued to the account shall be transferred to the Telecommunications Development Fund established pursuant to section 714 of this Act.

* * * * *

(11) TERMINATION.—The authority of the Commission to grant a license or permit under this subsection shall expire September 30, ~~1998~~ 2002.

* * * * *

(13) RECOVERY OF VALUE OF PUBLIC SPECTRUM IN CONNECTION WITH PIONEER PREFERENCES.—

(A) * * *

* * * * *

(F) EXPIRATION.—The authority of the Commission to provide preferential treatment in licensing procedures (by precluding the filing of mutually exclusive applications) to persons who make significant contributions to the development of a new service or to the development of new technologies that substantially enhance an existing service shall expire on ~~September 30, 1998~~ the date of enactment of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997.

* * * * *

(14) AUCTION OF RECAPTURED BROADCAST TELEVISION SPECTRUM.—

(A) LIMITATIONS ON TERMS OF TERRESTRIAL TELEVISION BROADCAST LICENSES.—A television license that authorizes analog television services may not be renewed to authorize such service for a period that extends beyond December 31, 2006. The Commission shall grant by regulation an extension of such date to licensees in a market if the Commission determines that more than 5 percent of households in such market continue to rely exclusively on over-the-air terrestrial analog television signals.

(B) SPECTRUM REVERSION AND RESALE.—

(i) The Commission shall ensure that, when the authority to broadcast analog television services under a license expires pursuant to subparagraph (A), each licensee shall return spectrum according to the Commission's direction and the Commission shall reclaim such spectrum.

(ii) Licensees for new services occupying spectrum reclaimed pursuant to clause (i) shall be selected in accordance with this subsection. The Commission shall start such selection process by July 1, 2001, with pay- ment pursuant to rules established by the Commission under this subsection.

(C) MINIMUM RECOVERY FOR PUBLIC REQUIRED.—

(i) METHODOLOGY TO SECURE MINIMUM AMOUNTS REQUIRED.—In establishing, pursuant to section 309(j)(3) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 309(j)(3)), a competitive bidding methodology with respect to the frequencies required to be assigned by competitive bidding under subparagraph (B) of this paragraph, the Commission shall establish procedures that are designed to secure winning bids totaling not less than two-thirds of $4,000,000,000.

(ii) AUTHORITY.—In establishing such methodology, the Commission is authorized—

(I) to partition the total required to be obtained under clause (i) among separate competitive bidding proceedings, or among separate bands, regions, or markets;

(II) to void any such separated competitive bidding proceeding that fails to obtain the partitioned subtotal that pertains to that proceeding; and

(III) to prescribe minimum bids or other bidding requirements to obtain such aggregate total.

(iii) LICENSES WITHHELD.—Notwithstanding any other requirement of this paragraph, the Commission shall refrain from conducting any competitive bidding pursuant to the methodology established pursuant to this subparagraph unless the Commission determines that such methodology will secure winning bids totaling not less than two-thirds of $4,000,000,000.

(iv) AUTHORITY TO REBID AT A LATER TIME TO SECURE STATUTORY OBJECTIVES.—Nothing in clause (ii) or (iii) shall preclude or limit the Commission from assigning the frequencies described in clause (i) by competitive bidding at such later date (than the date required by this paragraph) as the Commission determines, in its discretion, will better attain the objectives of recovering for the public a fair portion of the value of the public spectrum resource and avoiding unjust enrichment.

(D) CERTAIN LIMITATIONS ON QUALIFIED BIDDERS PROHIBITED.—In prescribing any regulations relating to the qualification of bidders for spectrum reclaimed pursuant to subparagraph (B)(i), the Commission shall not—

(i) preclude any party from being a qualified bidder for spectrum that is allocated for any use that includes digital television service on the basis of—

(I) the Commission's duopoly rule (47 C.F.R. 73.3555(b)); or

(II) the Commission's newspaper cross-ownership rule (47 C.F.R. 73.3555(d)); or

(ii) apply either such rule to preclude such a party that is a successful bidder in a competitive bidding for such spectrum from using such spectrum for digital television service.

(E) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this paragraph:

(i) The term “digital television service” means television service provided using digital technology to enhance audio quality and video resolution, as further defined in the Memorandum Opinion, Report, and Order of the Commission entitled “Advanced Television Systems and Their Impact Upon the Existing Television Service”, MM Docket No. 87–268 and any subsequent Commission proceedings dealing with digital television.

(ii) The term “analog television service” means service provided pursuant to the transmission standards prescribed by the Commission in section 73.682(a) of its regulation (47 CFR 73.682(a)).

(1) [IN GENERAL] INITIAL REALLOCATION REPORT.—In accordance with the provisions of this section, the Secretary shall recommend for reallocation in the first report required by subsection (a), for use other than by Federal Government stations under section 305 of the 1934 Act (47 U.S.C. 305), bands of frequencies that in the aggregate span not less than 200 megahertz, that are located below 5 gigahertz, and that meet the criteria specified in paragraphs (1) through (5) of subsection (a). Such bands of frequencies shall include bands of frequencies, located below 3 gigahertz, that span in the aggregate not less than 100 megahertz.

(2) MIXED USES PERMITTED TO BE COUNTED.—Bands of frequencies which a report of the Secretary under subsection (a) or (d)(1) recommends be partially retained for use by Federal Government stations, but which are also recommended to be reallocated to be made available under the 1934 Act for use by non-Federal stations, may be counted toward the minimum spectrum required by paragraph (1) or (3) of this subsection, except that—

TITLE IV—COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE—MEDICARE

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

Recently, the Board of Trustees of the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and the Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund issued their annual reports which pointed to significant short- and long-term financing crises in both Part A and Part B of Medicare. With respect to the Hospital Insurance (HI) Trust Fund, the Trustees noted:

As we reported for the last several years, one of the Medicare Trust Funds, the Hospital Insurance Fund, would be exhausted in four years without legislation that addresses its financial imbalance.

The Trustees also expressed very strong concerns regarding the Supplementary Medical Insurance (SMI) Trust Fund. Although the SMI Program is currently actuarially sound because it receives most of its funds from general revenues, the Trustees noted:

SMI benefits have been growing rapidly. Outlays have increased 45 percent over the past 5 years (33 percent on a per-beneficiary basis). During this period the program grew about 14 percent faster than the economy as a whole, despite efforts to control SMI costs.

SMI expenditures are expected to continue to grow faster than the economy as a whole. SMI outlays were almost 1 percent of the Gross Domestic Product (GDP) in 1996 and are projected to grow about 2.5 percent in 2020.

We note with great concern the past and projected rapid growth in the cost of the program. Therefore, we urge the Congress to take appropriate steps to more effectively control SMI costs. Prompt, effective, and decisive action is necessary.

To address the twin financial crises facing Medicare, the Committee on Commerce has adopted legislation which will place Part B of Medicare, the part of the program which is under the Committee's primary jurisdiction, on a long-term sustainable growth path.

In addition to providing responsible and sustainable financing for Medicare, the Committee's bill will provide Medicare beneficiaries with the same choices in health delivery that younger Americans receive from their employers. While Medicare enrollees will be guaranteed the right to remain in traditional fee-for-service Medicare, they will now have the right to choose new and innovative health plans such as the following: (1) Provider Sponsored Organizations; (2) Health Care Maintenance Organizations with and without Point of Service options; (3) Medical Savings Accounts under a new demonstration authority; and (4) Preferred Provider Networks.

This legislation was developed after several months of public hearings by the Subcommittee on Health and the Environment. Testimony was received from dozens of witnesses including health care providers, health care economists, actuaries, and other health care experts.

BACKGROUND AND NEED FOR LEGISLATION

Medicare is a Federal health insurance program for the aged and certain disabled individuals. It consists of two parts: Part A is the hospital insurance (HI) program; and Part B is the supplementary medical insurance (SMI) program. Most Americans age 65 or older are automatically entitled to health coverage under Part A, whereas participation in Part B is voluntary. Also eligible, after a two-year waiting period, are people under age 65 who are receiving Social Security disability benefits.

The cost and scope of the Medicare program have placed its future financial viability in jeopardy. According to the 1997 report of the Board of Trustees, both Part A and Part B of the Medicare program require immediate attention if they are to remain a solvent and integral component in the health care coverage of America's seniors. In light of the importance of the Medicare program to the lives of millions of Americans, the Medicare legislation was developed to preserve, protect, and strengthen the program for the current and future generations of beneficiaries.

According to the Medicare Trustees, the Hospital Insurance (HI) Trust Fund is projected to run out of reserves in just four years. The Trustees also called for action to restructure the Supplementary Medical Insurance (SMI) program because the rate of growth in this program is unsustainable. SMI growth directly affects Medicare beneficiary Part B Premiums as well as the overall Federal budget from which the largest share of SMI costs are financed.

Among the factors that initiated Congressional action on this critical issue is the fact that recent Medicare cost increases compare very unfavorably to those in the private health care market. According to data from the Congressional Budget Office, Medicare spending growth is more than two times greater than the increase in private health care costs.

For all of the above reasons, this legislation was developed to preserve, protect and strengthen the Medicare program. To achieve these objectives, the following criteria guided the Committee's reform efforts:

- (1) Policy improvements to make Medicare solvent for at least 10 years, and ensure that Medicare continues to increase spending each year. However, Medicare spending will be brought in line with the need to ensure Part B affordability, rather than permitting the program's uncontrolled spending growth rates as in the past;

- (2) Policy improvements designed to create opportunities for beneficiaries to choose more modern private coverage options, as well as for health care providers to reduce waste, eliminate abuse, and increase efficiency;

- (3) Policy improvements that expand coverage for mammography screening (annual mammograms for all women ages 40 and over; waiving of screening deductible); pap smear/pelvic screening (pelvic screening every 3 years; yearly for high-risk women); prostate cancer screening (annually for men over 50; covers digital rectal exam or PSA); colorectal screening (men over 50; fecal-occult blood test, flexible sigmoidoscopy for high-risk individuals, and barium enema if recommended by the Secretary of Health and Human Services (the Secretary)), diabetes screening (self-management training, glucose monitors and testing strips); and vaccines (extension of influenza and pneumonia campaign through 2002); and

- (4) The establishment of a Bipartisan Commission on the Effect of the Baby Boom Generation on the Medicare Program to make recommendations to the Congress on the reforms necessary to ensure the preservation of the program, in light of anticipated demographic pressures on the program's financing.

CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE ESTIMATE

Pursuant to clause 2(1)(3)(C) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the following is a letter from the Congressional Budget Office providing a cost estimate for Title IV.

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, DC, June 16, 1997.

Hon. TOM BLILEY,
*Chairman, Committee on Commerce,
House of Representatives, Washington, DC.*

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has reviewed Title IV, the Medicare reconciliation recommendations of the Committee on Commerce, as approved by the committee on June 12, 1997.

The enclosed tables show the federal budgetary effects of the committee's proposals over the 1998–2007 period. CBO understands that the Committee on the Budget will be responsible for interpreting how these proposals compare with the reconciliation instructions in the budget resolution. The estimate assumes that the reconciliation bill will be enacted by August 15, with timely implementation of the policies that would take effect at the beginning of fiscal year 1998. The estimate could change if the bill is enacted later.

Title IV is broadly similar to the Medicare recommendations of the Committee on Ways and Means, as included in Title X. It would provide for the establishment of MedicarePlus plans, expand preventive benefits, reduce payment rates to certain health care providers, increase premiums required of beneficiaries, and make other changes to reduce the growth of Medicare spending. Because of jurisdictional differences, Title IV does not contain provisions relating only to Part A of Medicare (Subtitle F of Title X).

The proposal would give Medicare beneficiaries the option to remain in the existing fee-for-service Medicare program or to enroll in MedicarePlus plans, which would replace Medicare's current risk plans. MedicarePlus plans would include health maintenance organizations, point-of-service plans, preferred provider organizations, as well as insurance plans operated in conjunction with a medical savings account. New or expanded benefits would be added for mammography, pap smears and pelvic exams, screening for prostate and colorectal cancer, diabetes self-management and supplies, and the diagnosis of osteoporosis.

The proposal would also establish new payment methods for outpatient hospital services and home health services. It would reduce projected payment rates for physicians' services, clinical laboratory services, and durable medical equipment. The premium for Part B of Medicare (Supplementary Medical Insurance) would be set to cover 25 percent of program costs in future years, as it is now, instead of being allowed to decline as a share of spending, as would be the case under current law. Finally, the proposal contains several provisions to expand and improve accounting of claims where Medicare is secondary payer.

Title IV would impose several intergovernmental mandates as defined in the Unfunded Mandates Reform Act (UMRA). The title would prohibit states from imposing premium taxes on MedicarePlus plans. It would also extend and expand the existing mandate that employment-based health insurance plans, including those sponsored by state and local governments, be the primary payer for the working disabled and for individuals with endstage renal disease. CBO is uncertain whether the threshold for intergovernmental mandates ($50 million in 1996, adjusted annually for inflation) would be exceeded in any of the next five years, because UMRA is unclear about including the costs of extending an existing mandate. If the costs of extending the primary payer requirement are included, then the total costs of the intergovernmental mandates in this title would be at or near the threshold in 1999. If such costs are not included, then the threshold would not be exceeded in any year. Other mandates included in the title would impose no significant costs on state, local, or tribal governments.

Title IV also contains several private-sector mandates as defined in UMRA. The expansion of the primary payer requirement for employment-based health insurance plans would impose direct costs on the private sector of $110 million in 1998 and $140 million in 2002. If the costs of extending the primary payer requirement are included, the direct costs of this mandate would be about $1½ billion a year after 1998. The title would also require Medigap plans to guarantee issue and prohibit coverage exclusions for continuously covered Medicare enrollees switching plans; the costs of this mandate would amount to $10 million in 1998 and $30 million in 2002. Other mandates included in the title would impose no significant costs on the private sector.

If you wish further details on these estimates, we will be pleased to provide them.

Sincerely,

JUNE E. O'NEILL, Director.

Enclosures.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE LEGISLATION

SUBTITLE A—MEDICAREPLUS PROGRAM

Chapter 1—MedicarePlus Program

SUBCHAPTER A—MEDICAREPLUS

Section 4001. Establishment of MedicarePlus ProgramNew section 1851 of the Social Security Act. Eligibility, election, and enrollment

Current Law. Persons enrolling in Medicare have two basic coverage options. They may elect to obtain services through the traditional fee-for-service system under which program payments are made for each service rendered. Under Section 1876 of the Social Security Act, they may also elect to enroll with a managed care organization which has entered into a payment agreement with Medicare. Three types of managed care organizations are authorized to contract with Medicare: an entity that has a risk contract with Medicare, an entity that has a cost contract with Medicare, or a health care prepayment plan (HCPP) that has a cost contract to provide Medicare Part B services. Risk-contracts are frequently referred to as TEFRA risk contracts and cost contracts are frequently referred to as TEFRA cost contracts. TEFRA refers to the 1982 legislation, the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982, which established the rules governing these types of contracts.

A beneficiary in an area served by a health maintenance organization (HMO) or competitive medical plan (CMP) with a Medicare risk contract may voluntarily choose to enroll in the organization. (A CMP is a health plan that is not a federally qualified HMO but that meets specific Medicare requirements.) Medicare makes a single monthly capitation payment for each of its enrollees. In return, the entity agrees to provide or arrange for the full range of Medicare services through an organized system of affiliated physicians, hospitals and other providers. The beneficiary must obtain all covered services through the HMO or CMP, except in emergencies. The beneficiary may be charged the usual cost-sharing charges or pay the equivalent in the form of a monthly premium to the organization. Beneficiaries are expected to share in any of the HMO's/CMP's projected cost savings between Medicare's capitation payment and what it would cost the organization to provide Medicare benefits to its commercial enrollees through the provision of additional benefits. (It could also return the "savings" to Medicare.)

Beneficiaries may also enroll in organizations with TEFRA cost contracts. These entities must meet essentially the same conditions of participation as risk contractors; however they may have as few as 1,500 enrollees (rather than 5,000) to qualify. Under a cost contract, Medicare pays the actual cost the entity incurs in furnishing covered services (less the estimated value of beneficiary cost-sharing). Enrollees obtain supplemental benefits by paying a monthly premium. The entity must offer a basic package (which covers all or a portion of Medicare cost-sharing charges); any additional benefits must be priced separately. (Conversely, a risk-contractor may offer just one package.) Enrollees in TEFRA cost-contract entities may obtain services outside the entity's network; however, the entity has no obligation to cover the beneficiary's cost-sharing in this case.

A third type of managed care arrangement is the HCPP. A HCPP arrangement is similar to a TEFRA cost contract except that it provides only Part B services. Further, there are no specific statutory conditions to qualify for a HCPP contract. Some HCPPs are private market HMOs, while others are union or employer plans. HCPPs have no minimum enrollment requirements, no requirement that the plan have non-Medicare enrollees, or a requirement for an open enrollment period. Unlike TEFRA cost contractors (but like risk contractors), HCPPs may offer a single supplemental package that includes both Part B cost-sharing and other benefits; cost-sharing benefits need not be priced separately.

Any Medicare beneficiary residing in the area served by an HMO/CMP may enroll, with two exceptions. The first exception applies to beneficiaries not enrolled in Part B. The second exception applies to persons qualifying for Medicare on the basis of end-stage renal disease (ESRD); however, persons already enrolled who later develop ESRD may remain enrolled in the entity.

The HMO/CMP must have an annual open enrollment period of at least 30 days duration. During this period, it must accept beneficiaries in the order in which they apply up to the limits of its capacity, unless to do so would lead to violation of the 50 percent Medicare-Medicaid maximum or to an enrolled population unrepresentative of the population in the area served by the HMO.

TEFRA risk contractors are required to hold an additional open enrollment period if any other risk-based entity serving part of the same geographic area does not renew its Medicare contract, has its contract terminated, or has reduced its service area to exclude any portion of the service area previously served by both contractors. In such cases, the Secretary must establish a single coordinated open enrollment period for the remaining contractors. These remaining HMOs/CMPs must then accept its enrollees during an enrollment period of 30 days.

An enrollee may request termination of his or her enrollment at any time. An individual may file disenrollment requests directly with the HMO or at the local social security office. Disenrollment takes effect on the first day of the month following the month during which the request is filed. The HMO may not disenroll or refuse to re-enroll a beneficiary on the basis of health status or need for health services.

The requirement for an open enrollment period does not apply to HCPPs. These entities may deny enrollment or terminate enrollment on medical or other grounds, if they use the same criteria for Medicare and non-Medicare enrollees. As a result, employer or union plans may restrict enrollment to covered retirees.

The Secretary of HHS is authorized to prescribe procedures and conditions under which eligible organizations contracting with Medicare may inform beneficiaries about the organization. Brochures, applications forms, or other promotional or informational material may be distributed only after review and approval by the Secretary. HMOs may not disenroll or refuse to re-enroll a beneficiary because of health status or need for health care services. HMOs must provide enrollees, at the time of enrollment and annually thereafter, an explanation of rights to benefits, restrictions on services provided through nonaffiliated providers, out-of-area coverage, coverage of emergency and urgently needed services, and appeal rights. A terminating HMO must arrange for supplementary coverage for Medicare enrollees for the duration of any preexisting condition exclusion under their successor coverage for the lesser of 6 months or the duration of the exclusion period.

Explanation of Provision. The Social Security Act would be amended to insert a new Part C, MedicarePlus Program. New Section 1851 of Part C of the Social Security Act would specify requirements related to eligibility, election of coverage, and enrollment.

a. Types of Choices. Under the provision, every individual entitled to Medicare Part A and enrolled under Part B could elect to receive benefits through two options: (i) the existing Medicare fee-for-service program (Medicare FFS) or (ii) through a MedicarePlus plan. The exception to this would be individuals medically determined to have end-stage renal disease (ESRD). They would not be able to elect MedicarePlus. Individuals who develop ESRD while enrolled in a plan could continue in that plan. A MedicarePlus plan could be offered by: (i) a coordinated care plan (including an HMO or preferred provider organization (PPO)), (ii) a provider sponsored organization (PSO); and (iii) a combination of a medical savings account (MSA) and contributions to a MedicarePlus MSA.

b. Special Rules. In general, an individual would be eligible to elect a MedicarePlus plan offered by a MedicarePlus organization only if the organization served the geographic area in which the individual resided. Enrollment could continue if the plan provided benefits for enrollees located in the area to which the individual moved. An individual eligible for an annuity under the Federal Employee Health Benefits Program (FEHBP) would not be eligible for an MSA plan until the Office of Management and Budget adopted policies to ensure that such enrollment did not result in increased expenditures for the federal government to FEHBP plans. The Secretary could apply similar rules in the case of individuals who are eligible for Departments of Defense or Veterans' Affairs health care. An individual who is a qualified Medicare beneficiary (QMB), a qualified disabled and working individual, a specified low-income Medicare beneficiary (SLMB), or otherwise entitled to Medicare cost-sharing assistance under a State Medicaid program, would not be eligible to enroll in an MSA plan.

In addition, individuals would not be eligible to enroll in an MSA plan on or after January 1, 2003, or as of any date if the number of individuals enrolled in MSA plans reached 500,000. Individuals enrolling in MSA plans prior to either of those two events would be allowed to continue such enrollment. The Secretary would be required to regularly evaluate and report to Congress on the impact of permitting enrollment of MSA plans on selection (including adverse selection), use of preventive care, access to care, and the financial status of the Trust Funds. In addition, the Secretary would be required to submit to Congress periodic reports on the number of individuals enrolled in MSA plans and to submit a report to Congress by no later than March 1, 2002 on whether the 4-year time limitation should be extended or removed, and whether any change should be made to the number of individuals permitted to enroll in Medicare MSAs.

c. Process for Exercising Choice. The Secretary would be required to establish a process for elections (and changing elections) of Medicare fee-for-service (FFS) and MedicarePlus options. Elections would be made (or changed) only during specified coverage election periods. An individual who wished to elect a MedicarePlus plan would do so by filing an election form with the organization. Disenrollment would be accomplished the same way. An individual failing to make an election during the initial election period would be deemed to have chosen the Medicare FFS option. The Secretary would be required to establish procedures under which individuals enrolled with a MedicarePlus organization at the time of the initial election period and who failed to elect to receive coverage other than through the organization would be deemed to have elected the MedicarePlus plan offered by the organization (or, if the organization offered more than one such plan, such plan as the Secretary provided for under such procedures). An individual who made (or was deemed to have made) an election would be considered to have continued such election until the individual changed the election or the plan was discontinued.

d. Providing Information to Promote Informed Choice. The Secretary would provide for activities to disseminate broadly information to current and prospective Medicare beneficiaries on the coverage options available in order to promote an active, informed selection among such options. At least 30 days before each annual, coordinated election period, the Secretary would send to each MedicarePlus eligible person a notice containing the information specified below in order to assist the individual in making an election. This would include general information, a list of plan options and comparative plan option information, the MedicarePlus monthly capitation rate, and other information determined by the Secretary to be helpful in making elections. This information would have to be written in language easily understood by Medicare beneficiaries. The Secretary would be required to coordinate the mailing of this information with annual mailing of other Medicare information required under current law. To the extent practicable, the Secretary would provide such information to new MedicarePlus individuals at least two months prior to their initial enrollment period.

The required general election information would include information on: (i) services covered and not covered by Medicare FFS (including benefits, cost-sharing, and beneficiary liability for balance billing); (ii) the Part B premium amount, (iii) election procedures, (iv) rights including grievance and appeals procedures under Medicare FFS and MedicarePlus and the right to be protected against discrimination based on health status-related factors, (v) information on Medigap and Medicare Select policies, and (vi) the right of the organization to terminate the contract and what this would mean for enrollees.

Comparative plan option information would have to include: (i) a description of benefits including any covered beyond Medicare FFS, any reductions in cost-sharing and any maximum limits on out-of-pocket costs, whether provider networks are used, coverage of emergency care, grievance and appeal information, and in the case of MSA plans, the differences in their cost sharing compared to other MedicarePlus plans; (ii) the monthly premium (and net monthly premium) for the plan; (iii) the service area of the plan; (iv) to the extent available, quality indicators (compared with indicators for Medicare FFS) including disenrollment rates, enrollee satisfaction and health outcomes, and whether the plan is out of compliance with any federal requirements; and (v) information on any supplemental coverage. The required information would be updated at least annually.

The Secretary would be required to maintain a toll-free number and Internet site for inquiries regarding MedicarePlus options and plans. A MedicarePlus organization would be required to provide the Secretary with such information on the organization and its plans as the Secretary needed to prepare the information described above for Medicare beneficiaries. The Secretary could enter into contracts with appropriate non-federal entities to carry out these information activities.

e. Coverage Election Periods. Individuals would first have a choice ("initial election") between Medicare FFS and MedicarePlus plans (if there were one or more MedicarePlus plans to choose from in their area) upon eligibility for Medicare. The Secretary would designate a time for the election such that coverage would become effective when the individual was eligible to begin coverage.

From 1998 through 2000, there would be continuous open enrollment and disenrollment, when eligible individuals could switch MedicarePlus plans or move into or out of the Medicare FFS program option. For the first 6 months during 2001, there would also be continuous open enrollment and disenrollment, but individuals could only change their election once during 2001 (except for during the annual coordinated open enrollment period or a special enrollment period (as described below)). During subsequent years, individuals would be able to enroll in a MedicarePlus option and disenroll from it at any time during the first 3 months of a year (or during the first 3 months after an individual became eligible to enroll in a MedicarePlus plan). Such changes could be made only once a year except during annual coordinated election and special enrollment periods.

Beginning in October 2000, there would be an annual, coordinated election period during which individuals could change elections for the following calendar year. The Secretary would be required to hold MedicarePlus health fairs in October of each year, beginning with 1998. Such fairs would provide for nationally, coordinated educational and publicity campaigns to inform MedicarePlus eligibles about MedicarePlus plans and the election process, including the annual, coordinated election periods.

Starting January 1, 2001, special election periods would be provided in which an individual could discontinue an election of a MedicarePlus plan and make a new election if: (i) the organization's or plan's certification was terminated or the organization terminated or otherwise discontinued providing the plan; (ii) the person who elected a MedicarePlus plan was no longer eligible because of a change in residence or certain other changes in circumstances; (iii) the individual demonstrated that the organization offering the plan violated its contract with Medicare (including the failure to provide the enrollee on a timely basis medically necessary care or to provide such care in accordance with applicable quality standards), or misrepresented the plan in its marketing; or (4) the individual encountered other exceptional conditions specified by the Secretary.

Special rules would apply for MSA plans. Individuals could elect a MSA plan only during: (i) an initial open enrollment period; (ii) an annual, coordinated election period, or (iii) October 1998 and October 1999. Such individuals could not discontinue an election of an MSA plan except during an annual, coordinated election period, October 1998 and October 1999, or if the MSA plan had been decertified or terminated.

f. Effectiveness of Elections. An election made during the initial election period would become effective when the individual became entitled to Medicare benefits, except as the Secretary might provide in order to prevent retroactive coverage. During continuous open enrollment periods, an election or change of elections would take effect with the first calendar month after the election was made. An election or change of coverage made during a coordinated election period would take effect as of the first day of the following year. Elections during other periods would take effect in the manner specified by the Secretary to protect continuity of coverage.

g. Guaranteed Issue and Renewal. MedicarePlus organizations would be required to accept MedicarePlus eligibles without restriction during election periods. If the organization had a capacity limit, it could limit enrollment but only if priority were given to those who had already elected the plan and then to other persons in a manner that did not discriminate on the basis of health-status related factors (which include health status, medical condition (including both physical and mental illnesses), claims experience, receipt of health care, medical history, genetic information, evidence of insurability (including conditions arising out of acts of domestic violence) and disability). This would not apply if it would result in enrollment that is substantially misrepresentative of the Medicare population in the service area.

MedicarePlus organizations could not terminate an enrollee's election except for failure to pay premiums on a timely basis, disruptive behavior, or because of plan termination of all MedicarePlus individuals. Individuals terminated for cause would be deemed to have elected Medicare FFS. An individual whose plan was terminated would have a special election period to change into another MedicarePlus plan. If the individual failed to make an election, he or she would be deemed to be Medicare FFS. Plans would have to transmit to the Secretary a copy of each enrollee's election form.

h. Approval of Marketing Material. The provision would require MedicarePlus plans to submit marketing material to the Secretary at least 45 days before distribution. The material could then be distributed if not disapproved by the Secretary. Medicare's new standards for plans (established as described below under new section 1856) would have to include guidelines for the review of all marketing material submitted. Under these guidelines, the Secretary would have to disapprove marketing materials if they were materially inaccurate or misleading.

Each MedicarePlus organization would have to conform to fair marketing standards, including a prohibition on a MedicarePlus organization (or its agent) completing any portion of any election form on behalf of any individual.

i. Effect of Election of MedicarePlus Plan Option. Payments under a contract with a MedicarePlus organization with respect to an individual electing a MedicarePlus plan offered by an organization would be instead of the amounts which otherwise would have been payable under Medicare Parts A and B.

New section 1852. Benefits and beneficiary protections

Current Law. Section 1876 provides for requirements relating to benefits, payment to the plans by Medicare, and payments to the plans by beneficiaries. In addition, it specifies standards for patient protection and quality assurance.

A Medicare beneficiary enrolled in an HMO/CMP is entitled to receive all services and supplies covered under Medicare Parts A and B (or Part B only, if only enrolled in Part B). These services must be provided directly by the organization or under arrangements with the organization. Enrollees in risk-based organizations are required to receive all services from the HMO/CMP except in emergencies.

In general, HMOs/CMPs offer benefits in addition to those provided under Medicare's benefit package. In certain cases, the beneficiary has the option of selecting the additional benefits, while in other cases some or all of the supplementary benefits are mandatory.

Some entities may require members to accept additional benefits (and pay extra for them in some cases). These required additional services may be approved by the Secretary if it is determined that the provision of such additional services will not discourage enrollment in the organization by other Medicare beneficiaries.

Medicare HMOs/CMPs must provide enrollees, at the time of enrollment and annually thereafter, an explanation of: rights to benefits, restrictions on services provided through nonaffiliated providers, out-of-area coverage, coverage of emergency and urgently needed services, and appeal rights.

Medicare HMOs/CMPs must make all Medicare-covered services and all other services contracted for available and accessible within its service area, with reasonable promptness and in a manner that assures continuity of care. Urgent care must be available and accessible 24 hours a day and 7 days a week. HMOs must also pay for services provided by nonaffiliated providers when services are medically necessary and immediately required because of an unforeseen illness, injury, or condition and it is not reasonable, given the circumstances, to obtain the services through the HMO.

HMOs/CMPs are required to have arrangements for an ongoing quality assurance program that stresses health outcomes and provides review by physicians and other health care professionals of the process followed in the provision of health services. External review is conducted by a peer review organization (PRO), one of the groups that has contracted with the Secretary for review of the quality and appropriateness of hospital services. PRO reviews of HMOs/CMPs covers both inpatient and outpatient care. The Secretary also has the right to inspect or otherwise evaluate the quality, appropriateness, and timeliness of services provided and the facilities of the organization when there is reasonable evidence of some need for inspection.

In up to 25 States, the Secretary is authorized to designate another external agency, known as a quality review organization (QRO) to perform reviews. QROs must meet many of the same standards as PROs, but have not contracted with HHS for the review of services other than those provided by an HMO/CMP.

HMOs/CMPs must have meaningful grievance procedures for the resolution of individual enrollee complaints, about such problems as failure to receive covered services or unpaid bills. In addition, an enrollee who believes that the HMO has improperly denied a service or imposed an excessive charge has the right to a hearing before the Secretary if the amount involved is greater than $100. If the amount is greater than $1,000, either the enrollee or the HMO may seek judicial review. On April 30, 1997, Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) issued final rules for establishing an expedited review process for Medicare beneficiaries enrolled in HMOs and CMPs.

Hospitals and other providers are required under Medicare as a condition of participation to ask whether an individual has an advance directive and make a notice of such in the patient's record. Such hospitals and other providers also have to provide upon admission and at other specified times written information to adult patients: on applicable advance directive laws of the relevant State and of the advance directive policies of the provider.

Payments to Medicare HMOs/CMPs include amounts that reflect Medicare's fee-for-service payments to hospitals in an area for indirect and direct medical education costs and disproportionate share adjustments.

Penalties apply for violations of limits on the use of "physician incentive plans," i.e., compensation arrangements between HMOs and physicians that might induce physicians to withhold services. An HMO may not make a specific payment to a physician as an inducement to reduce or limit services to a specific enrollee. In addition, if physicians or physician groups are placed at substantial financial risk for services other than their own, the HMO must provide adequate stop-loss protection to limit the physicians' potential liability and must periodically survey enrollee satisfaction.

There are no provisions in current law for provider protections. In addition, there is no provision in current law for medical savings account plans for Medicare beneficiaries.

Explanation of Provision. The provision establishes a new Section 1852 specifying Federal requirements related to MedicarePlus plan benefits and beneficiary protections.

a. Basic Benefits. Each MedicarePlus plan, except an MSA plan, would be required to provide benefits for at least the items and services for which benefits are available under Parts A and B of Medicare and any additional health services as the Secretary may approve under section 1854 of this provision (see below). A MedicarePlus plan would meet this requirement if, for items and services furnished other than through a provider that has a contract with the organization offering the plan, the plan provides (in addition to any cost sharing provided for under the plan) for at least the dollar amount of payment as would otherwise be authorized under Medicare FFS (including any balance billing permitted under Medicare FFS). These cost-sharing limitations would not apply to an individual enrolled under an MSA plan.

MedicarePlus organizations could offer under their MedicarePlus plans supplemental benefits. Supplemental benefits approved by the Secretary may be offered without affording enrollees an option to decline them. Alternatively, a MedicarePlus organization could provide to enrollees (other than those in an MSA plan) optional supplemental benefits. A MedicarePlus plan could seek payment from other payors, such as insurers or employer plans, in circumstances where secondary payor rules apply.

The provision would establish a policy relating to a national coverage determination made between the annual announcements of MedicarePlus payment rates. The application of the determination would be delayed if the determination would result in a significant change in costs to the MedicarePlus plan, and such change was not incorporated in the MedicarePlus payment rate established for that period. In such cases, the national coverage determination would apply to the first contract year beginning after such period. If the determination provided for coverage of additional benefits or benefits under additional circumstances, it would also apply to the first contract year beginning after such period, unless otherwise required by law.

b. Antidiscrimination. A MedicarePlus organization could not deny, limit, or condition the coverage or provision of benefits under this part based on any health-status related factor (health status, medical condition (including both physical and mental illnesses), claims experience, receipt of health care, medical history, genetic information, evidence of insurability (including conditions arising out of acts of domestic violence) and disability). This requirement should not be construed to mean that a MedicarePlus organization had to enroll individuals determined to have ESRD.

c. Detailed Description of Plan Provisions. The provision would require each MedicarePlus plan to disclose in clear, accurate, and standardized form to each enrollee at the time of enrollment and annually thereafter, the following information about the plan: (i) its service area; (ii) its benefits and exclusions from coverage (and, in the case of an MSA plan, a comparison with other MedicarePlus plans); (iii) the number, mix, and distribution of participating providers, and whether there is a point-of-service option and, if so, the premium for it (iv) permitted out-of-area coverage; (v) coverage of and procedures for obtaining emergency services (including the appropriate use of 911 or local equivalent); (vi) any supplemental coverage, including the benefits and premium price and whether they are optional; (vii) any prior authorization or other rules that could result in nonpayment; (viii) any grievance and appeals procedures; and (ix) its quality assurance program.

d. Access to Services. The provision would permit a MedicarePlus organization offering a MedicarePlus plan to restrict the providers from whom benefits could be provided so long as: (i) the organization makes the benefits available and accessible to each individual electing the plan within the service area with reasonable promptness and in a manner which assures continuity in the provision of benefits; (ii) when medically necessary, the organization makes benefits available and accessible 24 hours a day, 7 days a week; (iii) the plan provides reimbursement for covered out-of-network services if the services are medically necessary and immediately required because of unforeseen illness, injury, or condition and it is not reasonable to provide the services through the organization or met other conditions; (iv) the organization provides access to appropriate providers, including credentialed specialists, for medically necessary treatment and services; and (v) coverage is provided for emergency services without regard to either prior authorization requirements or the emergency care entity's contractual relationship with the organization.

A MedicarePlus organization would be required to comply with such guidelines as the Secretary may prescribe relating to promoting efficiency and timely coordination of appropriate maintenance and post-stabilization care provided to an enrollee determined to be stable by a medical screening examination required under the Examination and Treatment under Emergency Medical Conditions and Women in Labor requirements of the Social Security Act (Section 1867).

Emergency services mean covered inpatient and outpatient services that are furnished to an enrollee of a MedicarePlus organization by a provider qualified to provide services under Medicare, and are needed to evaluate or stabilize an emergency medical condition.

An emergency medical condition is one manifesting itself by acute symptoms of sufficient severity such that a prudent layperson, who possesses an average knowledge of health and medicine, could reasonably expect the absence of immediate medical attention to result in: (i) placing the health of the individual in serious jeopardy (and in case of a pregnant woman, her health or that of her unborn child); (ii) serious impairment to bodily functions, or (iii) serious dysfunction of any bodily organ or part.

A MedicarePlus organization would be required to ensure that the length of an inpatient hospital stay covered under Medicare be determined by the attending physician (or other attending health care provider to the extent permitted under State law) and the patient to be medically appropriate. This should not be construed as requiring the provision of inpatient coverage if the attending physician or provider and patient determine that a shorter stay is medically appropriate or as affecting the application of deductibles and coinsurance.

e. Quality Assurance Program. The provision would require a MedicarePlus organization to have arrangements (established in accordance with regulations of the Secretary) for an ongoing quality assurance program for services provided to its MedicarePlus enrollees. The program has to: (i) stress health outcomes and provide for the collection, analysis, and reporting of data that will permit measurement of outcomes and other indices of MedicarePlus plans and organizations; (ii) provide for written protocols for utilization review; (iii) provide review by physicians and other health care professionals of the process followed in the provision of health services; (iv) monitor and evaluate high volume and high risk services and the care of acute and chronic conditions; (v) evaluate the continuity and coordination of care; (vi) have mechanisms in place to detect both underutilization and overutilization; (vii) after identifying areas for improvement, establish or alter practice parameters; (viii) take action to improve quality and assess effectiveness of such actions; (ix) make available information on quality and outcomes measures to facilitate beneficiary comparison and choice; (x) be evaluated on an ongoing basis; (xi) include measures of consumer satisfaction; and (xii) provide the Secretary with such access to information collected as may be appropriate to monitor and ensure quality.

Each organization would be required to have an agreement with an independent quality review and improvement organization, approved by the Secretary, for each plan it operates, to perform functions such as quality review, review for the appropriateness of setting of care, adequacy of access, beneficiary outreach, and review of complaints about poor quality of care. A MedicarePlus organization would be deemed to meet the requirements for quality assurance external review if it is accredited by a private organization under a process that the Secretary has determined assures that the organization applies and enforces standards that are no less stringent than those specified under the plan standards requirements established by this provision (see new Section 1856 as described below).

f. Coverage Determinations. A MedicarePlus organization would be required to make determinations regarding authorization requests for nonemergency care on a timely basis and to provide notice of any denial and the reasons for it. An explanation of the grievance and appeals process would also have to be provided. Reconsideration of denials would generally have to be decided within 30 days of receiving medical information, but not later than 60 days after the coverage determination. Physicians would be the only individuals permitted to make decisions to deny coverage based on medical necessity.

g. Grievances and Appeals. The provision would require each MedicarePlus organization to provide meaningful procedures for hearing and resolving grievances. An enrollee dissatisfied by reason of the enrollee's failure to receive health services would be entitled, if the amount in controversy was $100 or more, to a hearing before the Secretary. If the amount in controversy was $1,000 or more, the individual or organization, upon notifying the other party, would be entitled to judicial review. The Secretary would be required to contract with an independent, outside entity to review and resolve appeals of denials of coverage related to urgent or emergency services.

An enrollee in a MedicarePlus plan could request an expedited determination by the organization regarding an appeal. Such requests could also come from physicians. The organization would have to maintain procedures for expediting organization determinations when, upon request of an enrollee, the organization determined that the application of a normal time frame for making a determination or a reconsideration could seriously jeopardize the life or health of an enrollee or the enrollee's ability to regain maximum function. In an urgent case, the organization would have to notify the enrollee (and physician involved) of the determination as expeditiously as the enrollee's condition requires, but not later than 72 hours (or 24 hours in the case of a reconsideration), or such longer period as the Secretary may permit in specified cases. The Secretary would have to annually report publicly on the number and disposition of denials and appeals within each organization, and those resolved by the independent entity.

h. Confidentiality and Accuracy of Enrollee Records. Each MedicarePlus organization would be required to establish procedures to safeguard the privacy of individually identifiable enrollee information, to maintain accurate and timely medical records and other health information, and to assure timely access of enrollees to their medical records.

i. Information on Advance Directives. Each MedicarePlus organization would be required to maintain written policies and procedures respecting advance directives.

j. Rules Regarding Physician Participation. Each MedicarePlus organization would be required to establish reasonable procedures relating to the participation of physicians under a MedicarePlus plan offered by the organization. The procedures would include: (i) providing notice of the rules regarding participation; (ii) providing written notice of adverse participation decisions; and (iii) providing a process for appealing adverse decisions. The organization would be required to consult with physicians who have entered into participation agreements regarding the organization's medical policy, quality, and medical management procedures.

The provision (patient's right to know) would prohibit interference with physician advice to enrollees. A MedicarePlus organization could not prohibit a covered health professional from advising a patient about the patient's health status or about medical care or treatment for the patient's condition or disease, regardless of whether benefits for such care or treatment are provided under the plan if the professional is acting within the lawful scope of practice.

The Committee has adopted a conscience protection provision. This provision is intended to ensure that MedicarePlus organizations motivated by religious or moral beliefs can comply with the general rule while maintaining ethical integrity. Specifically, the patient's right to know provision should not be construed to require MedicarePlus organizations to provide, reimburse for, or provide coverage of a counseling or referral service if the organization offering the plan objects to the provision of such service on moral or religious grounds. The provision is consistent with the intent of the patient right's to know provision because health care professionals under contract with a MedicarePlus organization are free to advise their patients about relevant medical care or treatment. However, this provision makes clear that neither the organization nor its employees must provide a counseling service or a referral service, nor does the organization have to reimburse for, or provide coverage of, such service, if it objects to such service on moral or religious grounds.

This provision also has a requirement that MedicarePlus organizations make available to prospective and current enrollees information on its policies regarding the counseling and referral services to which it objects on moral or religious grounds. The Committee has permitted the plans to make this information on its policies available through written instrumentalities in the manner which the MedicarePlus organization deems appropriate so as to remove discretion from the Secretary or any other government entity to impose burdensome regulatory, legal or stylistic requirements with respect to this subsection. However, the Committee intends that the information not be made available in a manner that intentionally obfuscates or seeks to deceive a prospective or current enrollee. Rather, the Committee intends for such notice to be provided in a manner that would be meaningful to beneficiaries and reasonably inform them of any policies resulting in plan restrictions.

This provision also requires a MedicarePlus organization to make such information on its policies available to prospective enrollees before or during enrollment. The subsection also makes clear that if a plan changes such a policy or adopts a new policy regarding a counseling or referral service to which it has moral or religious objections during the plan year, that it must make available information to current enrollees within 90 days of such a policy change regarding such a counseling service.

This provision has a construction clause making clear that nothing in subsection (B) should be construed to affect disclosure requirements under the State law or under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

The provision would limit the use of health care provider incentive plans. The provision would define an incentive plan as any compensation arrangement between a MedicarePlus organization and a provider or provider group that has the effect, directly or indirectly, of reducing or limiting services provided. The provision would prohibit MedicarePlus plans from operating such a provider incentive plan unless the following conditions were met. No specific payment could be made, directly or indirectly, to a provider or provider group as an inducement to reduce or limit medically necessary services provided with respect to a specific individual. If the plan placed a provider or provider group at substantial financial risk, the organization would be required to provide adequate and appropriate stop-loss protection and to conduct periodic surveys of currently and previously enrolled individuals to determine the degree of access to and satisfaction with the quality of services. Further, the organization would be required to provide the Secretary with sufficient descriptive information for the Secretary to determine compliance with these requirements.

A MedicarePlus organization would not be able to provide (directly or indirectly) for a provider (or group of providers) to indemnify the organization against any liability resulting from a civil action brought by or on behalf of an enrollee for any damage caused to the enrollee by the organization's denial of medically necessary care.

A MedicarePlus organization could not (directly or indirectly) seek to enforce contractual provisions which prevent providers whose contractual obligations to the organization for the provision of medical services through the organization have ended from joining or forming any competing MedicarePlus PSO in the same area.

k. Treatment of Services Furnished by Certain Providers. Physician or other entity (other than a provider of services) that does not have a contract establishing payment amounts for services furnished to an individual enrolled with a MedicarePlus organization would be required to accept as payment in full for covered services the amounts that the physician or other entity could collect if the individual were in Medicare FFS. Any penalty or other provision of law that applies to such a payment under Medicare FFS would also apply with respect to an individual covered under a MedicarePlus plan.

l. Disclosure of Use of DSH and Teaching Hospitals. Each MedicarePlus organization would have to provide the Secretary with information on (i) the extent to which it provides inpatient and outpatient hospital benefits under MedicarePlus through the use of hospitals that are eligible for disproportionate share hospital adjustments or through the use of teaching hospitals that receive indirect and direct graduate medical education payments, and (ii) the extent to which differences between payment rates to different hospitals reflect the disproportionate share percentage of low-income patients and the presence of medical residency training programs in those hospitals.

m. Out-of-Network Access. The provision requires that if a MedicarePlus organization offers one plan which provides for coverage primarily through network providers, that it also be allowed to offer individuals (at the time of enrollment) another plan which provides for coverage through non-network providers.

n. Non-Preemption of State Law. A State could establish or enforce requirements with respect to beneficiary protections in this section but only if such requirements were more stringent.

o. Nondiscrimination in Selection of Network Health Professionals. A MedicarePlus plan offering network coverage could not discriminate in selecting the members of its health professional network (or in establishing the terms and conditions for membership in the network) on the basis of the race, national origin, gender, age, or disability (other than a disability that impairs the ability of an individual to provide health care services of that may threaten the health of enrollees) of the health professional. A MedicarePlus organization could not deny any health care professionals, based solely on the license or certification as applicable under State law, the ability to participate in providing covered health care services or to be reimbursed or indemnified for providing such services.

p. Special Rule for Unrestricted Fee-for-Service MSA Plan. A MedicarePlus MSA plan that is a fee-for-service plan would not be subject to the requirements described above relating to procedures for establishing physician participation in the plan or the limitations on balance billing.

New section 1853. Payments to MedicarePlus organizations.

Current Law. Under a Medicare risk contract, an HMO agrees to provide or arrange for the full scope of covered Medicare services in return for a single monthly capitation payment issued by Medicare for each enrolled beneficiary. One of the numbers used to determine this payment is the adjusted average per capita cost (AAPCC). The other, the adjusted community rate (ACR), is discussed below (see new Section 1854).

The AAPCC is Medicare's estimate of the average per capita amount it would spend for a given beneficiary (classified by certain demographic characteristics and county of residence) who was not enrolled in an HMO and who obtained services on the usual fee-for-service basis. Separate AAPCCs are established for enrollees on the basis of age, sex, whether they are in a nursing home or other institution, whether they are also eligible for Medicaid, whether they are working and being covered under an employer plan, and the county of their residence. These AAPCC values are calculated in three basic steps:

Medicare national average calendar year per capita costs are projected for the future year under consideration. These numbers are known as the U.S. per capita costs (USPCCs) and are estimated average incurred benefit costs per Medicare enrollee and adjusted to include program administration costs. USPCCs are developed separately for Parts A and B of Medicare, and for costs incurred by the aged, disabled, and those with ESRD in those two parts of the program.

Geographic adjustment factors that reflect the historical relationships between the county's and the Nation's per capita costs are used to convert the national average per capita costs to the county level. Expected Medicare per capita costs for the county are calculated only for fee-for-service beneficiaries by removing both reimbursement and enrollment attributable to Medicare beneficiaries in prepaid plans.

Once the county AAPCC is calculated, it is then adjusted for the demographic variables described above, such as age, sex, and Medicaid status.

For each Medicare beneficiary enrolled under a risk contract, Medicare will pay the HMO 95 percent of the rate corresponding to the demographic class to which the beneficiary is assigned.

Medicare payments to risk-contract HMOs include amounts that reflect Medicare's fee-for-service payments to hospitals in an area for disproportionate share adjustment.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would establish a new Section 1853 specifying the methodology for determining payment to MedicarePlus plans and the procedures for announcing rates and paying plans.

a. In General. Under a MedicarePlus contract, the Secretary would be required to make monthly payments in advance to each MedicarePlus organization for each covered individual in a payment area in an amount equal to 1/12 of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate with respect to that individual for that area. The payment would be adjusted for such risk factors as age, disability status, gender, institutional status, and other such factors as the Secretary determined to be appropriate, so as to ensure actuarial equivalence. The Secretary could add to, modify, or substitute for such factors, if such changes would improve the determination of actuarial equivalence. The Secretary would be required to establish separate rates of payment with respect to individuals with end stage renal disease (ESRD). Payments to organizations could be retroactively adjusted for (i) actual versus the estimated enrollment used to determine the amount of advance payment; and (ii) individuals' change of enrollment from a MedicarePlus organization sponsored or contributed to by an employer to a MedicarePlus organization.

Risk Adjustment. The Secretary would be required to develop and submit to Congress by no later than October 1, 1999, a report on a method of risk adjustment of payment rates that accounts for variations in per capita costs based on health status. This report would have to include an evaluation of the proposal by an independent actuary of the actuarial soundness of the proposal. The Secretary would have to require MedicarePlus organizations (and risk-contract plans) to submit, for periods beginning on or after January 1, 1998, data regarding inpatient hospital and other services and other information the Secretary deems necessary. The Secretary would have to provide for implementation of a risk adjustment methodology that accounts for variations in per capita costs based on health status by no later than January 1, 2000.

b. Annual Announcement of Payment Rates. Payments to plans would be calculated based on the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate. The Secretary would be required to annually determine, and announce no later than August 1 before the calendar year concerned: (i) the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for each MedicarePlus payment area for the year, and (ii) the risk and other factors to be used in adjusting such rates for payments for months in that year. An explanation of the assumptions and changes in methodology would have to be included in sufficient detail so that organizations could compute monthly adjusted MedicarePlus capitation rates. The Secretary would be required to provide advance notice (at least 45 days prior to the announcement) of the proposed changes in the methodology and assumptions used to develop the rates, and give organizations an opportunity to comment.

c. Calculation of Annual MedicarePlus Capitation Rates. The annual MedicarePlus capitation rate, for a payment area (for a contract for a calendar year) would be equal to the greatest of the following:

- (A) A blended capitation rate, defined as the sum of:

(1) the area-specific percentage (as defined below) of the annual area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate for the year for the payment area, and

(2) the national percentage (as defined below) of the input-price adjusted annual national MedicarePlus capitation rate for the year. (This sum is multiplied by the budget neutrality adjustment factors (described below).

(B) A minimum (i.e., “floor”) monthly payment amount set at $350 for 1998 (but not to exceed, in the case of an area outside the 50 States and the District of Columbia, 150 percent of the 1997 AAPCC). For a subsequent year, this payment amount would be increased by the national per capita MedicarePlus growth percentage for that year.

(C) A minimum percentage increase (i.e., “hold harmless”) amount. In 1998, the payment area would receive a MedicarePlus capitation rate that is 100 percent of its 1997 AAPCC. For 1999 and 2000, it would be 101 percent of the previous year’s rate. For 2001 and subsequent years, it would be 102 percent of the previous year’s rate.

There are five elements in the blended capitation rate referred to in “A” above: First, the area-specific and national percentages are as follows:

1999—the area-specific percentage is 85% and the national percentage is 15%.

2000—the area-specific percentage is 80% and the national percentage is 20%.

2001—the area-specific percentage is 75% and the national percentage is 25%.

After 2001—the area-specific percentage is 70% and the national percentage is 30%.

Second, the annual area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate for a MedicarePlus payment area would be calculated as follows, after removing certain amounts from historical payment amounts (as described below):

For 1998—the annual per capita rate of payment for 1997 (as determined under the current law calculation to derive the AAPCC), increased by the national average per capita growth percentage for 1998 (as defined below); or

For a subsequent year—the annual area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate for the previous year, increased by the national per capita MedicarePlus growth percentage for such subsequent year.

Third, in determining the area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rate, amounts attributable to payments for hospitals serving a disproportionate share of low-income patients, payments for the indirect costs of medical education, and payments for direct graduate medical education costs, should be deducted from the 1997 payment amount as follows:

1998—20% of such payments

1999—40% of such payments

2000—60% of such payments

2001—80% of such payments

2002—100% of such payments

Fourth, the input-price-adjusted annual national MedicarePlus capitation rate for a MedicarePlus payment area for a year would be equal to the sum, for all types of Medicare services, of the product of three amounts: (i) the national standardized annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for the year (defined as the weighted average of area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rates), (ii) the proportion of such rate for the year which is attributable to such type of services, and (iii) an index that reflects (for that year and that type of service) the relative input price of such services in the area as compared to the national average input price of such services. (In applying (iii), the Secretary would use those indices that are used in applying (or updating) national payment rates for specific areas and localities.) Special rules specified in the provision would apply for 1998 (and optionally for 1999) in providing for the input price adjustment.

Fifth, in calculating the payment rates, the Secretary would be required to apply a budget neutrality adjustment to the blended rate payments. This adjustment would ensure that the aggregate of payments equals that which would have been made if the payment was based on 100 percent of the area-specific MedicarePlus capitation rates for each payment area. In doing this, the budget neutral amount for each county would be equal to the sum of the area-specific rates used to compute the blended rates multiplied by the product of the update factor and the number of enrollees in that county.

With respect to the blended and the minimum payment rate categories described in “A” and “B” above, the national per capita MedicarePlus growth percentage is the percentage determined by the Secretary, by April 30th before the beginning of the year involved, to reflect the Secretary’s estimate of the projected per capita rate of growth in expenditures under Medicare Parts A and B, reduced by 0.5 percentage points for 1998–2002, and by 0 percentage points for years thereafter. Separate determinations would have to be made for aged enrollees, disabled enrollees, and enrollees with ESRD. The percentage adjustment would have to reflect an adjustment for over or under projecting the percentage growth for previous years.

In the case of a MedicarePlus payment area for which the AAPCC for 1997 varies by more than 20 percent from such rate for 1996, the Secretary, where appropriate, could substitute for the 1997 rate a rate that is more representative of the cost of the enrollees in the area.

d. MedicarePlus Payment Area. The provision defines a MedicarePlus payment area as a county or equivalent area specified by the Secretary. In the case of individuals determined to have ESRD, the MedicarePlus payment area would be each State, or other payment areas as the Secretary specified.

Upon request of a State for a contract year (beginning after 1998) made at least 7 months before the beginning of the year, the Secretary would redefine MedicarePlus payment areas in the State to: (1) a single Statewide MedicarePlus payment area; (2) a metropolitan system (described in the provision); or (3) a single MedicarePlus payment area consolidating noncontiguous counties

(or equivalent areas) within a State. This adjustment would be effective for payments for months beginning with January of the year following the year in which the request was received. The Secretary would be required to make an adjustment to payment areas in the State to ensure budget neutrality.

e. Special Rules for Individuals Electing MSA Plans. If the monthly premium for a MSA plan for a MedicarePlus payment area was less than $\frac{1}{12}$ of the annual MedicarePlus capitation rate for the area and year involved, the Secretary would deposit the difference in a MedicarePlus MSA established by the individual. No payment would be made unless the individual had established the MedicarePlus MSA before the beginning of the month or by such other deadline the Secretary specifies. If the individual had more than one account, he or she would designate one to receive the payment. The payment for the first month for which a MSA plan was effective for a year would also include amounts for successive months in the year. For cases when an MSA election was terminated before the end of the year, the Secretary would establish a procedure to recover deposits attributable to the remaining months.

f. Payments from Trust Funds. Payments to the MedicarePlus organizations and payments to MedicarePlus MSAs, would be made from the HI and SMI trust funds in such proportion as the Secretary determined reflected the relative weights that benefits under Parts A and B represented of Medicare's actuarial value of the total benefits.

g. Special Rule for Certain Inpatient Hospital Stays. In the case of an individual receiving inpatient hospital services from a hospital covered under Medicare's prospective payment system (PPS) as of the effective date of the (1) individual's election of a MedicarePlus plan: (a) payment for such services until the date of the individual's discharge would be made as if the individual did not elect coverage under the MedicarePlus plan; (b) the elected organization would not be financially responsible for payment for such services until the date of the individual's discharge; and (c) the organization would nevertheless be paid the full amount otherwise payable to the organization; or (2) termination of enrollment with a MedicarePlus organization: (a) the organization would be financially responsible for payment for such services after the date of termination and until the date of discharge; (b) payment for such services during the stay would not be made under Medicare's PPS system; and (c) the terminated organization would not receive any payment with respect to the individual during the period in which the individual was not enrolled.

h. Payments to Managed Care Organizations Operating Graduate Medical Education Programs. See Section 4008 below.

New section 1854. Premiums

Current Law. Section 1876 provides for requirements relating to benefits, payment to the plans by Medicare, and payments to the plans by beneficiaries. A Medicare beneficiary enrolled in an HMO/CMP is entitled to receive all services and supplies covered under Medicare Parts A and B (or Part B only, if only enrolled in Part B). These services must be provided directly by the organization or under arrangements with the organization. Enrollees in risk-based organizations are required to receive all services from the HMO/CMP except in emergencies.

In general, HMOs/CMPs offer benefits in addition to those provided under Medicare's benefit package. In certain cases, the beneficiary has the option of selecting the additional benefits, while in other cases some or all of the supplementary benefits are mandatory.

Some entities may require members to accept additional benefits (and pay extra for them in some cases). These required additional services may be approved by the Secretary if it is determined that the provision of such additional services will not discourage enrollment in the organization by other Medicare beneficiaries.

The amount an HMO/CMP may charge for additional benefits is based on a comparison of the entity's adjusted community rate (ACR), essentially the estimated market price, for the Medicare package and the average of the Medicare per capita payment rate. A risk-based organization is required to offer "additional benefits" at no additional charge if the organization achieves a savings from Medicare. This "savings" occurs if the ACR for the Medicare package is less than the average of the per capita Medicare payment rates. The difference between the two is the amount available to pay additional benefits to enrollees. These may include types of services not covered, such as outpatient prescription drugs, or waivers of coverage limits, such as Medicare's lifetime limit on reserve days for inpatient hospital care. The organization might also waive some or all of the Medicare's cost-sharing requirements.

The entity may elect to have a portion of its "savings" placed in a benefit stabilization fund. The purpose of this fund is to permit the entity to continue to offer the same set of benefits in future years even if the revenues available to finance those benefits diminish. Any amounts not provided as additional benefits or placed in a stabilization fund would be offset by a reduction in Medicare's payment rate.

If the difference between the average Medicare payment rate and the adjusted ACR is insufficient to cover the cost of additional benefits, the HMO/CMP may charge a supplemental premium or impose additional cost-sharing charges. If, on the other hand, the HMO does not offer additional benefits equal in value to the difference between the ACR and the average Medicare payment, the Medicare payments are reduced until the average payment is equal to the sum of the ACR and the value of the additional benefits.

For the basic Medicare covered services, premiums and the projected average amount of any other cost-sharing may not exceed what would have been paid by the average enrollee under Medicare rules if she or he had not joined the HMO. For supplementary services, premiums and projected average cost-sharing may not exceed what the HMO would have charged for the same set of services in the private market.

Explanation of Provision. The provision creates a new Section 1854 specifying requirements for the determination of premiums charged by MedicarePlus organizations to MedicarePlus enrollees.

a. Submission and Charging of Premiums. Each MedicarePlus organization would be required annually to file with the Secretary the amount of the monthly premium for coverage under each of the plans it would be offering in each payment area, and the enrollment capacity in relation to the plan in each such area. The net monthly premium is the premium for covered services reduced by the monthly MedicarePlus capitation payment.

b. Monthly Premium Charged. The monthly amount of premium charged in a payment area to an enrollee would equal the net monthly premium plus any monthly premium charged (in accordance with (e) below) for supplemental benefits.

c. Uniform Premium. Premiums could not vary among individuals who resided in the same payment area.

d. Terms and Conditions of Imposing Premiums. Each MedicarePlus organization would have to permit monthly payment of premiums. An organization could terminate election of individuals for a MedicarePlus plan for failure to make premium payments but only under specified conditions. A MedicarePlus organization could not provide for cash or other monetary rebates as an inducement for enrollment or otherwise.

e. Limitation on Enrollee Cost-Sharing. In no case could the actuarial value of the net monthly premium rate, deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments applicable on average to individuals enrolled with a MedicarePlus plan with respect to required benefits exceed the actuarial value of the deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments applicable on average to individuals in Medicare FFS. For supplemental benefits, the premium for such benefits and the actuarial value of its deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments could not exceed the adjusted community rate for such benefits. These provisions would not apply to an MSA plan. If the Secretary determined that adequate data were not available to determine the actuarial value of the cost-sharing elements of the plan, the Secretary could determine the amount.

If the actuarial value of the benefits under the MedicarePlus plan (as determined based upon the ACR) for individuals was less than the average of the capitation payments made to the organization for the plan at the beginning of a contract year, the organization would have to provide additional benefits in a value which was at least as much as the amount by which the capitation payment exceeded the ACR. These benefits would have to be uniform for all enrollees in a plan area. (The excess amount could, however, be lower if the organization elected to withhold some of it for a stabilization fund.) A MedicarePlus organization could provide additional benefits (over and above those required to be added as a result of the excess payment), and could impose a premium for such additional benefits.

f. Periodic Auditing. The Secretary would be required to provide annually for the auditing of the financial records (including data relating to utilization and computation of the ACR) of at least one-third of the MedicarePlus organizations offering MedicarePlus plans. The General Accounting Office (GAO) would be required to monitor such auditing activities.

g. Prohibition of State Imposition of Premium Taxes. No State could impose a premium tax or similar tax on the premiums of MedicarePlus plans or the offering of such plans.

New Section 1855. Organizational and financial requirements for MedicarePlus organizations; provider-sponsored organizations

Current Law. Under Section 1876 of the Social Security Act, Medicare specifies requirements to be met by an organization seeking to become a managed care contractor with Medicare. In general, these include the following: (1) the entity must be organized under the laws of the State and be a Federally qualified HMO or a competitive medical plan (CMP) which is an organization that meets specified requirements (it provides physician, inpatient, laboratory, and other services, and provides out-of-area coverage); (2) the organization is paid a predetermined amount without regard to the frequency, extent, or kind of services actually delivered to a member; (3) the entity provides physicians' services primarily through physicians who are either employees or partners of the organization or through contracts with individual physicians or physician groups; (4) the entity assumes full financial risk on a prospective basis for the provision of covered services, except that it may obtain stop-loss coverage and other insurance for catastrophic and other specified costs; and (5) the entity has made adequate provision for protection against the risk of insolvency.

Provider Sponsored Organizations (PSOs) that are not organized under the laws of a State and are neither a Federally qualified HMO or CMP are not eligible to contract with Medicare under the risk contract program. A PSO is a term generally used to describe a cooperative venture of a group of providers who control its health service delivery and financial arrangements.

Explanation of Provision. The provision adds a new Section 1855 to the Social Security Act providing organizational and financial requirements for MedicarePlus organizations, including PSOs.

a. Organized and Licensed Under State Law. A MedicarePlus organization would have to be organized and licensed under State law as a risk-bearing entity eligible to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage in each State in which it offers a MedicarePlus plan. A special exception would apply, however, for PSOs. In general, a PSO seeking to offer a MedicarePlus plan could apply to the Secretary for a waiver of the State licensing requirement. The Secretary would be required to grant or deny a waiver application within 60 days of a completed application.

The Secretary would grant a waiver of the State licensing requirement for an organization that is a PSO if the Secretary determined that: (i) the State had failed to substantially complete action on a licensing application within 90 days of the receipt of an application (not including any period before the date of enactment) (this section is not intended to allow for the submission of incomplete "shell" applications); or (ii) the State denied such a licensing application and (a) the State had imposed documentation or information requirements not related to solvency requirements that were not generally applicable to other entities engaged in substantially similar business, or (b) the State's standards or review process imposed any material requirements, procedures, or standards (other than requirements relating to solvency) on such organizations that were not generally applicable to other entities engaged in substantially similar business; or (iii) the State used its own solvency requirements which were not the same as the Federal requirements to deny the licensing application, or the State had imposed as a condition of licensure approval any documentation requirements relating to solvency or other material requirements, procedures, or standards that were different from the requirements, procedures, or standards applied by the Secretary.

In the case of a waiver granted under this paragraph for a PSO: (i) the waiver would be effective for a 36-month period, except it could be renewed based on a subsequent application filed during the last 6 months of such period; (ii) the waiver was conditioned upon the pendency of the licensure application during the period the waiver was in effect; and (iii) any provision of State law related to the licensing of the organization which prohibited the organization from providing coverage pursuant to a MedicarePlus contract would be preempted. Waivers could be renewed more than once.

Nothing in (iii) should be construed as waiving any provision of State law relating to quality of care or consumer protection (and not to solvency standards) and which is imposed uniformly and is generally applicable to other entities engaged in substantially similar business.

The State licensing requirement would not apply to a MedicarePlus organization in a State if the State required the organization, as a condition of licensure, to offer any plan other than a MedicarePlus plan. The fact that an organization was licensed under State law would not substitute for or constitute certification.

b. Prepaid Payment. A MedicarePlus organization would have to be compensated (except for deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments) by a fixed payment paid on a periodic basis and without regard to the frequency, extent, or kind of health care services actually provided to an enrollee.

c. Assumption of Full Financial Risk. The MedicarePlus organization would have to assume full financial risk on a prospective basis for the provision of health services (other than hospice care) except the organization could obtain insurance or make other arrangements for costs in excess of $5,000, services needing to be provided other than through the organization; and obtain insurance or make other arrangements for not more than 90 percent of the amount by which its fiscal year costs exceed 115 percent of its income for such year. It could also make arrangements with providers or health institutions to assume all or part of the risk on a prospective basis for the provision of basic services.

d. Certification of Provision Against Risk of Insolvency for Unlicensed PSOs. Each MedicarePlus PSO, that is not licensed by a State and for which a waiver of State law has been approved by the Secretary, would be required to meet Federal financial solvency and capital adequacy standards (see new Section 1856 as described below). The Secretary would be required to establish a process for the receipt and approval of applications of entities for certification (and periodic recertification) of a PSO as meeting the Federal solvency standards. The Secretary would be required to act upon the PSO's certification application within 60 days of its receipt.

e. Provider-Sponsored Organization (PSO) Defined. A PSO is a public or private entity that is established or organized by a health care provider or group of affiliated providers that provides a substantial portion of health care under the contract directly through the provider or affiliated group of providers, and with respect to those affiliated providers that share, directly or indirectly, substantial financial risk, has at least a majority interest in the entity. In defining substantial proportion, the Secretary would be required to consider the need for such an organization to assume responsibility for a substantial portion of services in order to assure financial stability and other factors. "Affiliation," "control," and "health care provider" are specifically defined. The Secretary would be required to issue regulations to carry out this provision.

New Section 1856. Establishment of standards; certification of organizations and plans

Current Law. Under Section 1876 of the Social Security Act, Medicare specifies requirements to be met by an organization seeking to become a managed care contractor with Medicare. There is no provision for Provider Sponsored Organizations (PSOs).

Explanation of Provision. The provision would add a new Section 1856 providing for the establishment of Federal standards for MedicarePlus plans, including solvency standards for PSOs.

a. Establishment of Solvency Standards for PSOs. The provision would require the Secretary of HHS to establish, on an expedited basis and using a negotiated rule-making process, standards related to financial solvency and capital adequacy of organizations seeking to qualify as PSOs. The target date for publication of the resulting rules would be April 1, 1998. The Secretary would be required to consult with interested parties and to take into account: (i) the delivery system assets of such an organization and ability of it to provide services directly to enrollees through affiliated providers, and (ii) alternative means of protection against insolvency, including reinsurance, unrestricted surplus, letters of credit, guarantees, organizational insurance coverage, etc. Such standards would have to include provisions to prevent enrollees from being held liable to any person or entity for the MedicarePlus organization's debts in the event of its insolvency. The negotiated rule-making committee would be appointed by the Secretary. If the committee reported by January 1, 1998 that it had failed to make significant progress towards consensus or was unlikely to reach consensus by a target date, the Secretary could terminate the process and provide for the publication of a rule. If the committee was not terminated, it would have to report with the proposed rule by March 1, 1998. The Secretary would then publish the rule on a final, interim basis, but be subject to change after public notice and comment. In connection with the rule, the Secretary would specify the process for timely review and approval of applications of entities to be certified as PSOs consistent with this subsection. The Secretary would be required to provide for consideration of such comments and republication of the rule within 1 year of its publication.

b. Establishment of Other Standards. The Secretary would be required to establish by regulation other standards (not included in (a)) for MedicarePlus organizations and plans consistent with, and to carry out, this part. By June 1, 1998, the Secretary would be required to issue interim standards based on currently applicable standards for Medicare HMOs/CMPs. In establishing standards, the Secretary would be required to consider model State and other standards relating to quality of care and consumer protection. Subject to the non-preemption provision of section 1852 (see above) relating to State beneficiary protection requirements that are more stringent, the new standards established under this provision would supersede any State law or regulation with respect to MedicarePlus plans offered by Medicare contractors to the extent that such State law or regulations was inconsistent with such standards. This should not be construed as superseding a State law or regulation that is not related to solvency, that is applied on a uniform basis and is generally applicable to other entities engaged in substantially similar business, and that provides consumer protections in addition to, or more stringent than, those provided under this subsection.

New Section 1857. Contracts with MedicarePlus organizations

Current Law. Contracts with HMOs are for 1 year, and may be made automatically renewable. However, the contract may be terminated by the Secretary at any time (after reasonable notice and opportunity for a hearing) in the event that the organization fails substantially to carry out the contract, carries out the contract in a manner inconsistent with the efficient and effective administration of Medicare HMO law, or no longer meets the requirements specified for Medicare HMOs. The Secretary also has authority to impose lesser sanctions, including suspension of enrollment or payment and imposition of civil monetary penalties. These sanctions may be applied for denial of medically necessary services, overcharging, enrollment violations, misrepresentation, failure to pay promptly for services, or employment of providers barred from Medicare participation.

To be eligible as a risk contractor, HMOs/CMPs generally must have at least 5,000 members. However, if HMOs/CMPs primarily serve members outside urbanized areas, they may have fewer members (regulations specify at least 1,500). Organizations eligible for Medicare cost contracts also may have fewer than 5,000 members (regulations specify at least 1,500).

No more than 50 percent of the organization's enrollees may be Medicare or Medicaid beneficiaries. This rule may be waived, however, for an organization that serves a geographic area where Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries make up more than 50 percent of the population or (for 3 years) for an HMO that is owned and operated by a governmental entity.

During its annual open enrollment period of at least 30 days duration, HMOs must accept beneficiaries in the order in which they apply, up to the limits of its capacity, unless doing so would lead to violation of the 50 percent Medicare-Medicaid maximum or to an enrolled population unrepresentative of the population in the area served by the HMO. If an HMO chooses to limit enrollment because of its capacity, regulation provides that it must notify HCFA at least 90 days before the beginning of its open enrollment period and, at that time, provide HCFA with its reasons for limiting enrollment.

In areas where Medicare has risk contracts with more than one HMO and an HMO's contract is not renewed or is terminated, the other HMOs serving the area must have an open enrollment period of 30 days for persons enrolled under the terminated contract.

The Secretary is encouraged to use this waiver authority to grant, immediately on enactment, a waiver of the 50-50 requirement to a health plan providing quality health care services to Medicaid beneficiaries, including innovative health promotion and disease prevention programs, particularly if such a plan was unintentionally prevented from participating in the Medicare risk market through provisions of the Social Security and Technical Corrections Act of 1994.

Explanation of Provision. The provision establishes a new Section 1857 specifying requirements for organizations to become MedicarePlus contractors with the Medicare program.

a. In General. The Secretary would not permit the election of a MedicarePlus plan and no payment would be made to an organization unless the Secretary had entered into a contract with the organization with respect to the plan. A contract with an organization could cover more than one MedicarePlus plan. Contracts would provide that organizations agree to comply with applicable requirements and standards.

b. Minimum Enrollment Requirements. The Secretary would be prohibited from entering into a contract with a MedicarePlus organization unless the organization had at least 5,000 individuals (or 1,500 individuals in the case of a PSO) who were receiving health benefits through the organization. An exception would apply if the MedicarePlus standards (as established in new Section 1856 described above) permitted the organization to have a lesser number of beneficiaries (but not less than 500 for a PSO) if the organization primarily served individuals residing outside of urbanized areas. These lower minimum enrollment requirements relating to PSOs are effective January 1, 1998. In addition, the Secretary could waive this requirement during an organization's first 3 contract years. Minimum enrollment requirements would not apply to a contract that related only to an MSA plan.

c. Contract Period and Effectiveness. Contracts would be for at least 1 year, and could be made automatically renewable in the absence of notice by either party of intention to terminate. The Secretary could terminate a contract at any time or impose intermediate sanctions described below if the Secretary determined that the organization: (i) had failed substantially to carry out the contract; (ii) was carrying it out in a manner substantially inconsistent with the efficient and effective administration of MedicarePlus; or (iii) no longer substantially met MedicarePlus conditions. Contracts would specify their effective date, but contracts providing coverage under an MSA plan could not take effect before January 1998. The Secretary would not contract with an organization that had terminated its MedicarePlus contract within the previous 5 years, except in special circumstances as determined by the Secretary. The authority of the Secretary with respect to MedicarePlus plans could be performed without regard to laws or regulations relating to contracts of the United States that the Secretary determined were inconsistent with the purposes of Medicare.

d. Protections Against Fraud and Beneficiary Protections. Contracts would provide that the Secretary or his or her designee would have the right to inspect or otherwise evaluate the quality, appropriateness and timeliness of services, as well as the organization's facilities if there were reasonable evidence of need for such inspection; in addition, they would have the right to audit and inspect any books and records that pertain either to the ability of the organization to bear the risk of potential financial loss or to services performed or determinations of amounts payable under the contract. Contracts would also require the organization to provide and pay for advance written notice to each enrollee of a termination, along with a description of alternatives for obtaining benefits. They would also require that organizations notify the Secretary of loans and other special financial arrangements made with subcontractors, affiliates, and related parties.

MedicarePlus organizations would be required to report financial information to the Secretary, including information demonstrating that the organization was fiscally sound, a copy of the financial report filed with HCFA containing information required under Section 1124 of the Social Security Act, and a description of transactions between the organization and parties in interest. These transactions would include: (i) any sale, exchange, or leasing of property; (ii) any furnishing for consideration of goods, services, and facilities (but generally not including employees' salaries or health services provided to members); and (iii) any lending of money or other extension of credit. Financial information would be available to enrollees upon reasonable request. Consolidated financial statements could be required when the organization controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with another entity.

With respect to financial information, the term "party in interest" means: (i) any director, officer, partner, or employee responsible for management or administration of a MedicarePlus organization; any person who directly or indirectly is a beneficial owner of more than 5 percent of its equity; any person who is the beneficial owner of a mortgage, deed of trust, note, or other interest secured by, and valuing more than 5 percent of the organization; and in the case of a nonprofit MedicarePlus organization, an incorporator or member of such corporation; (ii) any entity in which a person described in (i) is an officer or director; a partner; has directly or indirectly a beneficial interest in more than 5 percent of the equity; or has a mortgage, deed of trust, note, or other interest valuing more than 5 percent of the assets of the entity; (iii) any person directly or indirectly controlling, controlled by, or under common control with an organization; and (iv) any spouse, child, or parent of an individual described in (i).

e. Additional Contract Terms. Contracts would contain other terms and conditions (including requirements for information) as the Secretary found necessary and appropriate. Contracts would require payments to the Secretary for the organization's pro rata share of the estimated costs to be incurred by the Secretary relating to enrollment and dissemination of information, and for certain counseling and assistance programs. These payments would be appropriated to defray such costs and would remain available until expended. If a contract with a MedicarePlus organization was terminated, the organization would have to notify each enrollee.

f. Prompt Payment by MedicarePlus Organization. Contracts would require a MedicarePlus organization to provide prompt payment of claims submitted for services and supplies furnished to individuals pursuant to the contract, if they are not furnished under a contract between the organization and the provider or supplier. If the Secretary determined (after notice and opportunity for a hearing) that the organization had failed to pay claims promptly, the Secretary could provide for direct payment of the amounts owed providers and suppliers. In these cases, the Secretary would reduce MedicarePlus payments otherwise made to the organization to reflect the amount of the payments and the Secretary's cost in making them.

g. Intermediate Sanctions. The Secretary would be authorized to carry out specific remedies in the event that a MedicarePlus organization: (i) failed substantially to provide medically necessary items and services required to be provided, if the failure adversely affected (or had the substantial likelihood of adversely affecting) the individual; (ii) imposed net monthly premiums on individuals that were in excess of the net monthly premiums permitted; (iii) acted to expel or refused to re-enroll an individual in violation of MedicarePlus requirements; (iv) engaged in any practice that would reasonably be expected to have the effect of denying or discouraging enrollment (except as permitted by MedicarePlus) of eligible individuals whose medical condition or history indicates a need for substantial future medical services; (v) misrepresented or falsified information to the Secretary or others; (vi) failed to comply with rules regarding physician participation; or (vii) employed or contracted with any individual or entity that was excluded from participation in Medicare under Section 1128 or Section 1128A of the Social Security Act (relating to sanctions for program violations) for the provision of health care, utilization review, medical social work, or administrative services, or employed or contracted with any entity for the provision (directly or indirectly) through such an excluded individual or entity.

The remedies would include civil money penalties of not more than $25,000 for each determination of a failure described above or not more than $100,000 with respect to misrepresenting information furnished to the Secretary or denying enrollment to persons with a preexisting medical condition. In cases of the latter failure, the Secretary could also levy a $15,000 fine for each individual not enrolled. In cases of excess premium charges, the Secretary could also recover twice the excess amount and return the excess amount to the affected individual. In addition, the Secretary could suspend enrollment of individuals and payment for them after notifying the organization of an adverse determination, until the Secretary was satisfied that the failure had been corrected and would not likely recur.

Other intermediate sanctions could be imposed if the Secretary determined that a failure had occurred other than those described above. These include: (i) civil money penalties up to $25,000 if the deficiency directly adversely affected (or had the likelihood of adversely affecting) an individual under the organization's contract;

(ii) civil money penalties of not more than $10,000 for each week after the Secretary initiated procedures for imposing sanctions; and (iii) suspension of enrollment until the Secretary is satisfied the deficiency had been corrected and would not likely recur.

h. Procedures for Termination. The Secretary could terminate a contract in accordance with formal investigation and compliance procedures under which (i) the Secretary provides the organization with an opportunity to develop and implement a corrective action plan, (ii) the Secretary imposes more severe sanctions on organizations that have a history of deficiencies or have not taken steps to correct those the Secretary brought to their attention, (iii) there are no unreasonable or unnecessary delays between finding a deficiency and imposing sanctions, and (iv) the Secretary provides reasonable notice and opportunity for a hearing, including the right to appeal an initial decision, before imposing any sanction or terminating the contract. The provisions of Section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) would apply to a civil money penalty in the same manner as they apply to a civil money penalty or proceeding under that section. The Secretary would be authorized not to delay termination of a contract (resulting from the formal investigation and compliance procedures) if such termination would pose an imminent and serious risk to enrollees' health.

New Section 1858. Payments to hospitals for certain costs attributable to managed care enrollees

See Sections 4008 and 4009 below.

New Section 1859. Definitions and miscellaneous provisions

Current Law. No provision.

Explanation of Provision. The provision establishes a new Section 1859 including definitions and other provisions.

Definition of MedicarePlus Organization. A MedicarePlus organization is a public or private entity that is certified under Section 1856 as meeting the MedicarePlus requirements and standards for such an organization (described above).

Definition of MedicarePlus Plan. A MedicarePlus plan is a health benefits coverage offered under a policy, contract, or plan by a MedicarePlus organization pursuant to and in accordance with a contract under Section 1857 (described above).

Definition of MSA Plan. A MSA plan is a MedicarePlus plan that (i) provides reimbursement for at least the items and services for which benefits are available under Medicare Parts A and B to individuals but only after the enrollee incurs countable expenses (as specified in the plan) equal to the amount of the annual deductible; (ii) counts as such expenses at least all amounts that would have been payable under Parts A and B or by the enrollee as deductibles, coinsurance, or copayments if the enrollee had elected to receive benefits through those parts; and (iii) provides, after the deductible is met for a year (and for all subsequent expenses referred to in (i) in the year) for a level of reimbursement that is not less than the lesser of (A) 100 percent of such expenses, or (B) 100 percent of the amount that would have been paid (without regard to any deductibles or coinsurance) under Medicare Parts A and B. For contract year 1999, the annual deductible under a MSA plan could not be more than $6,000. For a subsequent contract year, the annual deductible could not be more than the maximum amount for the previous contract year increased by the national per capita MedicarePlus growth percentage and rounded to the nearest multiple of $50.

Coordinated Acute and Long-Term Care Benefits under a MedicarePlus Plan. A State would not be prevented from coordinating benefits under a Medicaid plan and a MedicarePlus plan in a manner that assures continuity of a full range of acute care and long-term care services to poor elderly or disabled individuals eligible for Medicare benefits under a MedicarePlus plan.

Restrictions on Enrollment for Certain MedicarePlus Plans. A MedicarePlus religious fraternal benefit society plan could restrict enrollment to individuals who are members of the church, convention, or group with which the society is affiliated. A MedicarePlus religious fraternal benefit society plan would be a MedicarePlus plan that (i) is offered by a religious fraternal benefit society only to members of the church, convention, or affiliated group, and (ii) permits all members to enroll without regard to health status-related factors. This provision could not be construed as waiving plan requirements for financial solvency. In developing solvency standards, the Secretary would take into account open contract and assessment features characteristic of fraternal insurance certificates. Under regulations, the Secretary would provide for adjustments to payment amounts under Section 1854 to assure an appropriate payment level, taking account of the actuarial characteristics and experience of the individuals enrolled in such a plan.

A religious fraternal benefit society is an organization that (i) is exempt from Federal income taxation under Section 501(c)(8) of the Internal Revenue Code; (ii) is affiliated with, carries out the tenets of, and shares a religious bond with, a church or convention or association of churches or an affiliated group of churches; (iii) offers, in addition to a MedicarePlus religious fraternal benefit society plan, at least the same level of health coverage to individuals entitled to Medicare benefits who are members of such church, convention, or group; and (iv) does not impose any limitation on membership in the society based on any health status-related factor.

Reports. (1) The Secretary would provide for a study on the feasibility and impact of removing the restriction on beneficiaries with end-stage renal disease from enrolling in a MedicarePlus MSA plan. No later than October 1, 1998, the Secretary would submit to Congress a report on this study and include recommendations regarding removing or restricting the limitation as may be appropriate. (2) No later than October 1, 1999, the Secretary would submit to Congress a report on the extent to which MedicarePlus organizations are providing payments to disproportionate share hospitals and teaching hospitals. The report would be based on information provided to the Secretary by MedicarePlus organizations as required under the requirements of this provision and such information as the Secretary may obtain.

Section 4002. Transitional rules for current Medicare HMO Program

Current Law. No provision for transition rules. Medicare's requirements for managed care plans are specified in Section 1876 of the Social Security Act. Current law requires that to be a risk contractor, no more than 50 percent of the organization's enrollees may be Medicare or Medicaid beneficiaries. The rule may be waived, however, for an organization that serves a geographic area where Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries make up more than 50 percent of the population or (for 3 years) for an HMO that is owned and operated by a governmental entity.

Explanation of Provision. Effective for contract periods beginning after December 31, 1996, the Secretary could waive or modify the 50/50 rule to the extent the Secretary finds the waiver is in the public interest.

The provision would allow a PSO with at least 1,500 enrollees in urban areas and 500 enrollees in rural areas to qualify for a risk-sharing contract beginning on or after January 1, 1998.

The Secretary would be prohibited from entering into, renewing, or continuing any risk-sharing contract under Section 1876 for any contract year beginning on or after the date MedicarePlus standards are first established for MedicarePlus organizations that are insurers or HMOs. If the organization had a contract in effect on that date, the prohibition would be effective 1 year later. The Secretary could not enter into, renew, or continue a risk-sharing contract for any contract year beginning on or after January 1, 2000. An individual who is enrolled in Medicare Part B only and also in an organization with a risk-sharing contract on December 31, 1998, could continue enrollment in accordance with regulations issued not later than July 1, 1998.

For individuals enrolled under both Medicare Part A and Part B, payments for risk-sharing contracts for months beginning with January 1998 would be computed by substituting the MedicarePlus payment rates specified in this bill. For individuals enrolled only under Part B, the substitution would be based upon the proportion of those rates that reflects the proportion of payments under title XVIII of the Social Security Act (i.e., Medicare) attributable to Part B. With respect to months in 1998, the Secretary would compute, announce, and apply the MedicarePlus payment rates in as timely manner as possible (notwithstanding deadlines in Section 1853(a) as described above) and could provide for retroactive adjustments in risk-sharing contract payments not in accordance with those rates.

An individual who is enrolled on December 31, 1998, with an organization having a Section 1876 contract would be considered to be enrolled with that organization under MedicarePlus if the organization has a MedicarePlus contract for providing services on January 1, 1999, unless the individual had disenrolled effective that date.

Any reference in law in effect before the date of enactment of this legislation to Part C of Medicare would be deemed a reference to Part D as in effect after such date.

Not later than 90 days after enactment of this legislation, the Secretary would submit to Congress a legislative proposal providing for technical and conforming amendments as the MedicarePlus provisions require.

Required MedicarePlus organization contributions for costs related to enrollment and dissemination of information would apply to demonstrations if their enrollment were effected or coordinated under Section 1851.

In order to carry out the MedicarePlus provisions in a timely manner, the Secretary could (after notice and opportunity for public comment) promulgate regulations that take effect on an interim basis.

Section 4003. Conforming changes in Medigap Program

Current Law. Current law contains rules regarding the sale of Medicare supplement policies (generally referred to as “Medigap” policies). Included are prohibitions governing the sale of duplicative policies and exceptions to the general prohibitions.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would include conforming language to the duplication provisions for persons electing a MedicarePlus plan. Included in the general prohibitions would be a general prohibition against selling to a person electing a MedicarePlus plan a Medicare supplemental policy with the knowledge that it duplicated benefits to which the individual was otherwise entitled to under Medicare or another supplemental policy. The provision would further specify that a MedicarePlus policy is not included within the definition of a Medicare supplementary policy.

The provision would prohibit the sale of certain policies to a person electing a high deductible plan. Specifically, the prohibition would apply to the sale of policies providing coverage for expenses that are otherwise required to be counted toward meeting the annual deductible amount provided under a medical savings account (MSA) plan.

SUBCHAPTER B—SPECIAL RULES FOR MEDICAREPLUS MEDICAL SAVINGS ACCOUNTS

Section 4006. MedicarePlus MSA.

Current Law. Under present law, the value of Medicare coverage and benefits is not includable in taxable income.

Individuals who itemize deductions may deduct amounts paid during the taxable year (if not reimbursed by insurance or otherwise) for medical expenses of the taxpayer and the taxpayer’s spouse and dependents (including expenses for insurance providing medical care) to the extent that the total of such expenses exceeds 7.5 percent of the taxpayer’s adjusted gross income (“AGI”).

Within limits, contributions to a medical savings account (“MSA”) are deductible in determining AGI if made by an eligible individual and are excludable from gross income and wages for employment tax purposes if made by the employer of an eligible individual.¹ Individuals covered under Medicare are not eligible to have an MSA.

Earnings on amounts in an MSA are not currently includable in income. Distributions from an MSA for medical expenses of the ¹The number of MSAs which can be established is subject to a cap.

MSA account holder and his or her spouse or dependents are not includable in income. For this purpose, medical expenses are defined as under the itemized deduction for medical expenses, except that medical expenses do not include any insurance premiums other than premiums for long-term care insurance, continuation coverage (so-called “COBRA coverage”), or premiums for coverage while an individual is receiving unemployment compensation. Distributions not used for medical expenses are subject to an additional 15 percent tax unless the distribution is made after age 65, death, or disability.

Under present law, there are no provisions for MedicarePlus medical savings accounts (“MedicarePlus MSAs”).

Explanation of provision. Under the bill, individuals who are eligible for Medicare are permitted to choose either the traditional Medicare program or a MedicarePlus MSA plan. To the extent an individual chooses such a plan, the Secretary of Health and Human Services makes a specified contribution directly into a MedicarePlus MSA designated by such individual. Only contributions by the Secretary of Health and Human Services can be made to a MedicarePlus MSA and such contributions are not included in the taxable income of the MedicarePlus MSA holder. Income earned on amounts held in a MedicarePlus MSA are not currently includable in taxable income. Withdrawals from a MedicarePlus MSA are excludable from taxable income if used for the qualified medical expenses of the MedicarePlus MSA holder. Withdrawals from a MedicarePlus MSA that are not used for the qualified medical expenses of the account holder are includable in income and may be subject to an additional tax (described below).

Definition of MedicarePlus MSAs. In general a MedicarePlus MSA is an MSA that is designated as MedicarePlus MSA and to which only the contribution that can be made are those by the Secretary of Health and Human Services.² Thus a MedicarePlus MSA is a tax-exempt trust (or a custodial account) created exclusively for the purpose of paying the qualified medical expenses of the account holder that meets requirements similar to those applicable to individual retirement arrangements (“IRAs”).³ The trustee of a MedicarePlus MSA can be a bank, insurance company, or other person that demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the treasury that the manner in which such person will administer the trust will be consistent with applicable requirements.

A MedicarePlus MSA trustee would be required to make such reports as may be required by the Secretary of the Treasury. A $50 penalty would be imposed for each failure to file without reasonable cause.

Taxation of distributions from a MedicarePlus MSA. Distributions from a MedicarePlus MSA that are used to pay the qualified medical expenses of the account holder would be excludable from taxable income regardless of whether the account holder is enrolled in the MedicarePlus MSA plan at the time of the distribution.⁴ Qualified medical expenses are defined as under the rules relating to the itemized deduction for medical expenses. However, for this purpose, qualified medical expenses would not include any insurance premiums other than premiums for long-term care insurance, continuation insurance (so-called “COBRA coverage”), or premium for coverage while an individual is receiving unemployment compensation. Distributions from a MedicarePlus MSA that are excludable from gross income under the provision can not be taken into account for purposes of the itemized deduction for medical expenses.

² Medicare Plus MSAs are not taken into account for purposes of the cap on non-MedicarePlus MSAs, nor are they subject to that cap.

Distributions for purposes other than qualified medical expenses are includable in taxable income. An additional tax of 50 percent applies to the extent the total distributions for purposes other than qualified medical expenses in a taxable year exceed the amount by which the value of the MedicarePlus MSA as of December 31, of the preceding taxable year exceeds 60 percent of the deductible of the plan under which the individual is covered. The additional tax does not apply to distributions on account of the disability or death of the account holder. Direct trustee-to-trustee transfers could be made from one MedicarePlus MSA to another MedicarePlus MSA without income inclusion.

The provision includes a corrective mechanism so that if contributions for a year are erroneously made by the Secretary of Health and Human Services, such erroneous contributions can be returned to the Secretary of Health and Human Services (along with any attributable earnings) from the MedicarePlus MSA without tax consequence to the account holder.

Treatment of MedicarePlus MSA at death. If the beneficiary of a MedicarePlus MSA is not the account holder’s spouse, the MedicarePlus MSA is no longer treated as a MedicarePlus MSA and the value of the MedicarePlus MSA on the account holder’s date of death is included in the taxable income of the beneficiary for the taxable year in which the death occurred (under the rules applicable to MSAs generally). If the account holder fails to name a beneficiary, the value of the MedicarePlus MSA on the account holder’s date of death is to be included in the taxable income of the account holder’s final income tax return (under the rules applicable to MSA generally).

In all cases, the value of the MedicarePlus MSA is included in the account holder’s gross estate for estate tax purposes.

Reason for Change. The Committee believes that introduction of significant innovations from the private sector, coupled with the full transfer of responsibility for health care choices to enrollees who choose to participate in private sector health plans, will be effective in tempering the growth of Medicare spending while providing opportunities for beneficiaries to improve upon the traditional government-defined Medicare benefit package. In addition, the Committee believes that senior citizens should be provided with greater power over their own health care choices and expenses.

⁴Under the provision, medical expenses of the account holder’s spouse or dependents would not be treated as qualified medical expenses.

Effective Date. The provision is effective with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1998.

SUBCHAPTER C—GME, IME, DSH PAYMENTS FOR MANAGED CARE ENROLLEES

Section 4008.—Graduate medical education and indirect medical education payments for managed care enrollees

Current Law. Medicare payments to risk-contract HMOs include amounts that reflect Medicare's fee-for-service payments to hospitals in an area for indirect and direct graduate medical education (GME) costs.

Explanation of the Provision. The provision inserts a new subsection (h) into Section 1853 (see above) providing for payments to certain managed care organizations.

(a) Payments to Medicare managed care organizations. The proposal would provide a mechanism for the allocation of payments for direct Graduate Medical Education (GME), Indirect Medical Education (IME) and disproportionate share hospitals (DSH) costs carved out from the AAPCCs and MedicarePlus capitation rates to be made to risk contract plans under Section 1876 and MedicarePlus organizations (i.e., Medicare managed care organizations). Beginning January 1, 1998, each contract with a MedicarePlus organization would be required to provide an additional payment for Medicare's share of allowable direct GME costs incurred by the organization for an approved medical residency program. A MedicarePlus organization that incurred all or substantially all of the costs of the medical residency program would receive a payment equal to the national average per resident amount times the number of full-time-equivalent (FTE) residents in the program in non-hospital settings. The Secretary would be required to estimate the national average per resident amount equal to the weighted average amount that would be paid per FTE resident under the direct GME payment in a calendar year. A separate determination would be required to be made for primary care residency programs as defined by Medicare, including obstetrics and gynecology residency programs.

(b) Part C of Medicare, as amended by Section 4001 of this provision, would be amended by inserting a new section 1858, "Payments to Hospitals for Certain Costs Attributable to Managed Care Enrollees."

Payments to Hospitals. The Secretary would be required to make additional payments for the direct GME costs to PPS hospitals and hospitals located in a State with a State hospital reimbursement control system for services furnished to Medicare beneficiaries enrolled in managed care. These payments would be phased in over 5 years in the same proportion as amounts are deducted (carved out) from Medicare managed care plans under the new Section 1853 established by this provision (see above). Total payments under this provision could not exceed amounts deducted (carved out) of the MedicarePlus capitation rates. Subject to certain limits, the direct GME payment amount would be equal to the product of: (1) the aggregate approved amount of direct GME payments for the period, and (2) the fraction of the total number of inpatient-beddays determined by the Secretary during the period which was attributable to Medicare managed care enrollees. The Secretary would be required to separately determine the direct GME payment amounts that would be paid to hospitals in a State with a reimbursement control system.

The IME payment amount would be determined, subject to certain limits, as equal to the product of: (1) the amount of the IME adjustment factor applicable to the hospital under PPS, and (2) the product of (i) the number of discharges attributable to Medicare managed care enrollees and (ii) the estimated average per discharge amount that would otherwise have been paid under PPS if the individuals had not been enrolled in a managed care plan. The Secretary would also be required to make payments for the costs attributable to Medicare managed care enrollees, subject to certain limits in the same way as the direct GME payment amount. The Secretary would be required to separately determine the IME payment amounts that would be paid to hospitals in a State with a reimbursement control system.

As rates paid to MedicarePlus organizations are being reduced to allow for the direct payment to hospitals for the direct and indirect costs of graduate medical education and disproportionate share hospital payments, it is the intent of the Committee that rates charged to MedicarePlus organizations by hospitals who receive such direct payments shall be reduced by the amount of such payments. In other words, it is the intent of the Committee that health plan will be able to negotiate new contracts with lower payment rates with academic medical centers and disproportionate share hospitals to offset the reduction in AAPCC payments due to the "carve out" of GME, IME, and DSH.

Section 4009. Disproportionate share hospital payments for managed care enrollees

Current Law. Medicare payments to risk-contract HMOs include amounts that reflect Medicare's fee-for-service payments to hospitals in an area for disproportionate share adjustment.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would require the Secretary to provide additional payments for PPS hospitals and hospitals in a State with a State hospital reimbursement control system for hospitals that furnish services to Medicare risk plan enrollees under Section 1876 and MedicarePlus enrollees (i.e., Medicare managed care enrollees). These payments would be phased in over 5 years in the same proportion as amounts are deducted (carved out) from Medicare managed care plans under the new Section 1853 established by this provision (see above). Subject to certain limits, the DSH payment would be equal to the product of (1) the DSH adjustment factor that would be attributable to the hospital under PPS, and (2) the product of: (i) the aggregate approved amount of direct GME for the hospital during that period, and (ii) the fraction of the total number of inpatient-bed days attributable to Medicare managed care. The Secretary would be required to separately determine the DSH payment amount that would be paid to hospitals in a State with a reimbursement control system.

Chapter 2—Integrated Long-Term Care Programs

SUBCHAPTER A—PROGRAMS OF ALL-INCLUSIVE CARE FOR THE ELDERLY (PACE)Section 4011–4014. Coverage of PACE under the Medicare Program

Current Law. OBRA 86 required the Secretary to grant waivers of certain Medicare and Medicaid requirements to not more than 10 public or non-profit private community-based organizations to provide health and long-term care services on a capitated basis to frail elderly persons at risk of institutionalization. These projects, known as the Programs of All Inclusive Care for the Elderly, or PACE projects, were intended to determine whether an earlier demonstration program, ON LOK, could be replicated across the country. OBRA 90 expanded the number of organizations eligible for waivers to 15.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would repeal current ON LOK and PACE project demonstration waiver authority and establish in Medicare law PACE as a permanent benefit category eligible for coverage and reimbursement under the Medicare program. PACE providers would offer comprehensive health care services to eligible individuals in accordance with a PACE program agreement and regulations. In general, PACE providers would be public or private nonprofit entities, except for entities (up to 10) participating in a demonstration to test the operation of a PACE program by private, for-profit entities.

The Secretary would be required to make prospective monthly capitation payments for each PACE program enrollee in the same manner and from the same sources as payments are made to a MedicarePlus organization. The amount would be adjusted to take into account the comparative frailty of PACE enrollees and such other factors as the Secretary determines to be appropriate. The total payment level for all PACE program enrollees would be required to be less than the projected payment under Medicare for a comparable population not enrolled in PACE.

For purposes of carrying out a PACE program, certain Medicare requirements would be waived, including those pertaining to limits on coverage of institutional services, rules for payment for benefits, limits on coverage of SNF and home health services, the 3-day prior hospitalization requirement for SNF care, and other coverage rules.

The Secretary would be required to promulgate regulations for PACE in a timely manner so that entities may establish and operate PACE programs under Medicare and Medicaid beginning not later than 1 year after enactment.

During the transition from demonstration waiver authority to permanent provider status, applications for waivers (subject to the numerical limitation) would be deemed approved unless the Secretary, within 90 days after the date of submission, either denies the request in writing or informs the applicant in writing that additional information is needed. After the date the Secretary receives the additional information, the application would be deemed approved unless the Secretary, within 90 days, denies the request.

During the 3-year period beginning on the date of enactment, the Secretary would be required to give priority, in processing applications of entities seeking to qualify as PACE programs under Medicare or Medicaid (1) first, to entities that are operating a PACE demonstration waiver program, (2) then, to entities that have applied to operate a program as of May 1, 1997. In awarding additional waivers under the original PACE demonstration authority, the Secretary would be required to give priority to any entities that have applied for a waiver as of May 1, 1997, and to any entity that, as of May 1, 1997, has formally contracted with a State to provide services on a capitation basis with an understanding that the entity was seeking to become a PACE provider. The Secretary would be required to give special consideration, in the processing of applications for PACE provider status and for demonstration waivers, to entities which, as of May 1, 1997, have indicated through formal activities (such as entering into contracts for feasibility studies) a specific intent to become a PACE provider. Repeal of waiver demonstration authority would not apply to waivers granted before the initial effective date of regulations. Repeals would apply to waivers granted before this date only after allowing organizations a transition period (of up to 24 months) in order to permit sufficient time for an orderly transition from demonstration project authority to general authority.

The Secretary (in close consultation with States) would be required to conduct a study of the quality and cost of providing PACE program services under the Medicare and Medicaid programs. This study would be required specifically to compare the costs, quality, and access to services offered by private for-profit entities operating under the new demonstration described above with the costs, quality, and access to services of other PACE providers. The Secretary would be required to report to Congress on findings of the study (including specific finding on private for-profit providers), together with recommendations for changes, not later than 4 years after enactment. The Medicare Payment Evaluation Commission would be required to include in its annual report to Congress recommendations on the methodology and level of payments made to PACE providers and on the treatment of private for-profit PACE providers.

The provision would also establish PACE as a State option under Medicaid. See Medicaid, Title III, Subtitle E for description.

SUBCHAPTER B—SOCIAL HEALTH MAINTENANCE ORGANIZATIONS
(SHMOS)

Section 4015. Social Health Maintenance Organizations (SHMOs).

Current Law. The Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 required the Secretary to grant 3-year waivers for demonstrations of social health maintenance organizations (SHMOs) which provide integrated health and long-term care services on a prepaid capitation basis. The waivers have been extended on several occasions since then and a second generation of projects was authorized by OBRA 90.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would require the Secretary to extend waivers for SHMOs through December 31, 2000, and to submit a final report on the projects by March 31, 2001. The limit on the number of persons served per site would be expanded from 12,000 to 36,000. The Secretary would also be required to submit to Congress by January 1, 1999, a plan, including an appropriate transition, for the integration of health plans offered by first and second generation SHMOs and similar plans into the MedicarePlus program. The report on the plan would be required to include recommendations on appropriate payment levels for SHMO plans, including an analysis of the extent to which it is appropriate to apply the MedicarePlus risk adjustment factors to SHMO populations.

SUBCHAPTER C—OTHER PROGRAMS

Section 4018. Orderly transition of Municipal Health Service Demonstration Projects

Current Law. Under a general demonstration authority, the Health Care Financing Administration began waiving in the late 1970s certain Medicare requirements to conduct the Municipal Health Services Demonstration. This project has been conducted in four cities—Baltimore, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, and San Jose. As originally conceived, the project was intended to encourage the use of municipal health centers, in place of more costly hospital emergency rooms and outpatient departments, by eliminating coinsurance and deductibles, expanding the range of covered services, and paying the cities the full cost of delivering services at the clinics. Waivers have been extended several times since the inception of the project by budget reconciliation bills.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would extend the demonstration through December 31, 2000, but only with respect to persons enrolled in the projects before January 1, 1998. The Secretary would be required to work with each demonstration project to develop a plan, to be submitted to the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance Committees by March 31, 1998, for the orderly transition of projects and project enrollees to a non-demonstration health plan, such as a Medicaid managed care or MedicarePlus plan. A demonstration project which does not develop and submit a transition plan by March 31, 1998 or within 6 months after enactment of the Act, whichever is later, would be discontinued as of December 31, 1998. The Secretary would be required to provide appropriate technical assistance to assist in the transition so that disruption of medical services to project enrollees would be minimized.

Section 4019. Community Nursing Organization Demonstration Projects

Current Law. OBRA 87 required the Secretary to conduct demonstration projects to test a prepaid capitated, nurse-managed system of care. Covered services include home health care, durable medical equipment, and certain ambulatory care services. Four sites (Mahomet, Illinois; Tucson, Arizona; New York, New York; and St. Paul, Minnesota) were awarded contracts in September 1992, and represent a mix of urban and rural sites and different types of health provider, including a home health agency, a hospital-based system, and a large multi-specialty clinic. The community nursing organization (CNO) sites completed development activities and implemented the demonstration in January 1994, with service delivery beginning February 1994.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would extend the CNO demonstration for an additional period of 2 years, and the deadline for the report on the results of the demonstration would be not later than 6 months before the end of the extension.

Chapter 3—Medicare Payment Advisory Commission

Section 4021. Medicare Payment Advisory Commission

Current Law. The Prospective Payment Assessment Commission (ProPac) was established by Congress through the Social Security Act Amendments of 1983 (P.L. 98-21). The Commission is charged with reporting each year its recommendation of an update factor for PPS payment rates and for other changes in reimbursement policy. It is also required each year to submit a report to Congress which provides background information on trends in health care delivery and financing. The Physician Payment Review Commission (PPRC) was established by the Congress through the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 (P.L. 99-272). It was charged with advising and making recommendations to the Congress on methods to reform payment to physicians under the Medicare program. In subsequent laws, Congress mandated additional responsibilities relating to the Medicare and Medicaid programs as well as the health care system more generally.

The law specified that both Commissions were to be appointed by the Director of the Office of Technology Assessment and funded through appropriations from the Medicare trust funds. In 1995, the Office of Technology Assessment was abolished. In May 1997, P.L. 105-13 was enacted; this legislation extended the terms of those Commission members whose terms were slated to expire in 1997 to May 1, 1998.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would establish the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission (hereafter referred to as the Commission) to review and make recommendations to Congress concerning payment policies under Medicare. The Commission would be required to submit a report to Congress by March 1 of each year (beginning in 1998) containing the results of its reviews of payment policies and its recommendations concerning such policies and an examination of issues affecting the Medicare program.

The Commission would be charged with the following specific review responsibilities with respect to the MedicarePlus program: (1) the methodology for making payments to the plans, including the making of differential payments and the distribution of differential updates among different payment areas; (2) the risk adjustment mechanisms and the need to adjust such mechanisms to take into account health status; (3) the implications of risk selection among MedicarePlus organizations and between the MedicarePlus option and the Medicare fee-for-service option; (4) in relation to payment under MedicarePlus, the development and implementation of quality assurance mechanisms for those enrolled with MedicarePlus organizations; (5) the impact of the MedicarePlus program on beneficiary access to care; (6) the appropriate role for Medicare in addressing the needs of individuals with chronic illnesses; and (7) other major issues in implementation and further development of the MedicarePlus program.

In addition, the Commission would be required to review payments policies under Medicare Parts A and B fee-for-service system, including: (1) factors affecting expenditures in different sectors, including the process for updating hospital, skilled nursing facility, physician, and other fees; (2) payment methodologies; and (3) the relationship of payment policies to access and quality of care. It would also review the effect of Medicare payment policies on the delivery of health care services not provided under Medicare and assess the implications of changes in the health services market on Medicare.

The Commission would be required to evaluate required reports on payment policies submitted by the Secretary to Congress (or a committee of Congress). The Commission would be required to submit a report on the evaluation within 6 months of the Secretary's report. The commission would also be required to consult with the Chairmen and ranking Members of the appropriate committees of Congress (House Ways and Means, House Commerce, and Senate Finance) regarding its agenda. The Commission would be authorized to submit from time to time other reports as requested by such Chairmen and Members and as it deemed appropriate. The reports would be made public.

The Commission would be composed of 11 members appointed by the Comptroller General, with the first appointments being made by September 30, 1997. These members would have to meet specific qualifications (such as national recognition for their expertise). Commission membership would consist of a broad mix of different professionals, a broad geographic representation, and a balance between urban and rural representatives. It would include representatives of consumers and the elderly. Health care providers could not constitute a majority of the membership. Commissioners would serve for 3-year staggered terms. The provision would include a mechanism for filling vacancies, compensating commissioners, appointing a chair and vice chair; convening meetings; and providing for the executive director and other staff, experts, and consultants. The Commission would be authorized to secure directly from any department or agency information to carry out these provisions. It would be required to collect and assess information (which would be available on an unrestricted basis to GAO). The Commission would be subject to periodic audit by GAO.

The provision would require the Commission to submit appropriations requests in the same manner as the Comptroller General does; however, the amounts appropriated for each would be separate. It would authorize such sums as may be necessary to be appropriated from the Medicare trust funds (60 percent from Part A and 40 percent from Part B).

The Commission would require that the Comptroller first provide for appointment of members of the Commission (to be known as MedPAC) by not later than September 30, 1997. As quickly as possible after they were first appointed, the Comptroller General (in consultation with ProPac and PPRC) would provide for termination of these entities. As of that date, ProPac and PPRC would be abolished. To the extent possible, the Comptroller General would be required to provide for the transfer to the new commission assets and staff of the former commissions without any loss of benefits or seniority by virtue of such transfers. Fund balances available to the former commissions would be transferred to the new commission. MedPAC would be responsible for the preparation and submission of reports required by law to be submitted (and which had not been submitted by the time it was established) by the former commissions.

Chapter 4—Medigap Protections

Section 4031. Medigap protections

Current Law. Medigap is the term used to describe individually-purchased Medicare supplement policies. In 1990, Congress provided for a standardization of Medigap policies; the intention was to enable consumers to better understand policy choices. Implementing regulations generally limit the number of different types of Medigap plans that can be sold in a State to no more than 10 standard benefit plans; these are known as Plans A through J. The Plan A standardized package covers a basic benefits package. Each of the other nine plans includes the basic benefits plus a different combination of additional benefits.

All insurers offering Medigap policies are required to offer a 6-month open enrollment period for persons turning age 65. This is known as guaranteed open enrollment. There is no guaranteed open enrollment provision for the under-65 disabled population.

At the time insurers sell a Medigap policy, whether or not during an open enrollment period, they are permitted to limit or exclude coverage for services related to a preexisting health condition; such exclusions cannot be imposed for more than 6 months. An individual who has met the preexisting condition limitation in one Medigap policy does not have to meet the requirement under a new policy for previously covered benefits. However, an insurer could impose exclusions for newly covered benefits.

Federal requirements for open enrollment and limits on preexisting condition exclusions are designed to insure beneficiaries have access to Medigap protection. However, persons who disenroll (or wish to disenroll) from managed care plans and move back into fee-for-service Medicare may not have the same access to Medigap coverage as those who join during the open enrollment period.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would guarantee issuance of a Medigap “A”, “B”, “C”, or “F” policy without a pre-existing condition exclusion for certain continuously covered individuals. The insurer also would be prohibited from discriminating in the pricing of such policy on the basis of the individual’s health status, claims experience, receipt of health care, or medical condition.

The provision would specify those persons covered under the guaranteed issuance provision. They include:

Individuals enrolled under an employee welfare benefit plan that provides benefits supplementing Medicare and the plan terminates or ceases to provide such benefits.

Persons enrolled with a MedicarePlus organization who discontinue under circumstances permitting disenrollment other than during an annual election period. (These include: (1) the termination of the entity's certification, (2) the individual moves outside of the entity's service area; or (3) the individual elects termination due to cause.)

Persons enrolled with a risk or cost contract HMO, a similar organization operating under a demonstration project authority, a Medicare SELECT policy, and enrollment ceases for the reasons noted above, and in the case of a SELECT policy, there is no applicable provision in State law for continuation of such coverage.

Individuals enrolled under a Medigap policy and enrollment ceases because of the bankruptcy or insolvency of the issuer, or because of other involuntary termination of coverage and there is no provision under applicable State law for the continuation of such coverage.

The guaranteed issue provision would also apply to an individual who: (1) was enrolled under a Medigap policy; (2) subsequently terminates such enrollment and enrolls with a MedicarePlus organization, a risk or cost contract HMO, a similar organization operating under a demonstration project authority, or a Medicare SELECT policy; and (3) terminates such enrollment within 6 months (or within 3 months beginning in 2003), but only if the individual was never previously enrolled with such an entity. The guarantee would also apply to persons who terminate such first time enrollment (occurring in 2002 or later) during the next coordinated annual coordinated election period. At the time of the event which results in the cessation of enrollment or loss of coverage, the organization, insurer, or plan administrator (whichever is appropriate) would notify the individual of his or her rights and the obligations of issuers of Medigap policies. The individual must seek to enroll under the Medigap "A", "B", "C", or "F" policy not later than 63 days after termination of other enrollment and provide evidence of the date of termination or disenrollment along with the application for such Medicare supplemental policy. Individuals who re-enroll with a Medigap plan after the one time test of MedicarePlus could re-enroll in the same Medigap policy (if still available from the same issuer) as they had before trying MedicarePlus.

The provision would limit the application of a preexisting condition exclusion during the initial 6-month open enrollment period. Specifically, such an exclusion could not be imposed on an individual who, on the date of application, had a continuous period of at least 6 months of health insurance coverage defined as "creditable coverage" under the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA). If the individual had less than 6 months coverage, the policy would reduce the period of any pre-existing exclusion by the aggregate of periods of "creditable coverage" applicable to the individual as of the enrollment date. The rules used to determine the reduction would be based on rules used under HIPAA.

The provision would give the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) 9 months to modify its regulations to conform to the new requirements. If the NAIC, did not make the changes within this time, the Secretary would make the appropriate modification in the regulations.

The provision would be effective July 1, 1998. In general, a State would not be deemed out of compliance due solely to failure to make changes before 1 year after the date the NAIC or Secretary made changes in its regulations. A longer time may be permitted if a State requires legislation.

Section 4032. Medicare prepaid competitive pricing demonstration project

Current Law. Under Section 402 of the Social Security Amendments of 1967 (P.L. 90-248, 42 U.S.C. 1395b-1), the Secretary is authorized to develop and engage in experiments and demonstration projects for specified purposes, including to determine whether, and if so, which changes in methods of payment or reimbursement for Medicare services, including a change to methods based on negotiated rates, would have the effect of increasing the efficiency and economy of such health services. Under this authority, HCFA is seeking to demonstrate the application of competitive bidding as a method for establishing payments for risk contract HMOs in the Denver area. HCFA's actions have been challenged in the courts.

Explanation of Provision. The provision requires the Secretary of HHS to provide for a demonstration of competitive pricing for private health plans participating in Medicare.

a. Establishment of Project. The Secretary would be required to provide, no later than one year after enactment, for implementation of a project to demonstrate the application of, and the consequences of applying, a market-oriented pricing system for the provision of a full range of Medicare benefits in several geographic areas.

b. Research Design Advisory Committee. Before implementing the project, the Secretary would be required to appoint a national advisory committee, including independent actuaries and individuals with expertise in competitive health plan pricing, to recommend to the Secretary the appropriate research design for implementing the project, including the method for area selection, benefit design among plans offered, structuring choice among health plans offered, methods for setting the price to be paid to plans, collection of plan information, information dissemination, and methods of evaluating the results of the project. Upon implementation of the project, the Committee would continue to advise the Secretary on the application of the design in different areas and changes in the project based on experience with its operations.

c. Area Selection. Taking into account the national advisory committee's recommendations, the Secretary would be required to designate demonstration areas. Upon such designation, the Secretary would be required to appoint an area advisory committee, composed of representatives of health plans, providers, and beneficiaries in each demonstration area. The committee could advise the Secretary on marketing and pricing of plans in the area, and other relevant factors.

d. Monitoring and Report. Taking into considerations the recommendations of the advisory committee (established under (b)), the Secretary would be required to closely monitor the impact of projects in areas on the price and quality of, and access to, Medicare covered services, choice of plans, changes in enrollment, and other relevant factors. The Secretary would be required to periodically report to Congress on project progress.

e. Waiver Authority. The provision authorizes the Secretary to waive such requirements of Section 1876 (relating to Medicare risk, cost, and HCPP plans) and of MedicarePlus as may be needed to carry out the demonstration project.

f. Denver Demonstration. Except as specified above, the Secretary would be prohibited from conducting or continuing any ongoing demonstration project (i.e., the Denver demonstration) designed to demonstrate competitive bidding as an alternative to paying plans on the basis of the AAPCCs (as specified under current law) or the Medicare Plus capitation rates (as established under new Section 1853 of the provision).

SUBTITLE B—PREVENTION INITIATIVES

Section 4101. Screening mammography

Current Law. Medicare provides coverage for screening mammograms. Frequency of coverage is dependent on the age and risk factors of the woman. For women ages 35–39, one test is authorized. For women ages 40–49, a test is covered every 24 months, except, an annual test is authorized for women at high risk. Annual tests are covered for women ages 50–64. For women aged 65 and over, the program covers one test every 24 months. Medicare's Part B deductible and coinsurance apply for these services.

Explanation of provision. The proposal would authorize coverage for annual mammograms for all women ages 40 and over. It would also waive the deductible for screening mammograms. These provisions would be effective January 1, 1998.

Section 4102. Screening pap smear and pelvic exams

Medicare covers a screening Pap smear once every 3 years for purposes of early detection of cervical cancer. The Secretary is permitted to specify a shorter time period in the case of women at high risk of developing cervical cancer.

Explanation of provision. The provision would authorize coverage, every 3 years, for a screening pelvic exam which would include a clinical breast examination. It would modify the purpose of Pap smears to include early detection of vaginal cancer.

The provision would specify that for both Pap smears and screening pelvic exams, coverage would be authorized on a yearly basis for women at high risk of developing cervical or vaginal cancer (as determined pursuant to factors identified by the Secretary). Coverage would also be authorized on a yearly basis for a woman of childbearing age who had not had a test in each of the preceding 3 years that did not indicate the presence of cervical or vaginal cancer. The provision would waive the deductible for screening Pap smears and screening pelvic exams. The provisions would be effective January 1, 1998.

The provision would require the Secretary, within 6 months of enactment, to submit a report to Congress on the extent to which the use of supplemental computer-assisted diagnostic tests (consisting of interactive automated computer imaging of an exfoliative cy-tology test) in conjunction with pap smears improves the early detection of cervical or vaginal cancer. The report must also consider cost implications.

Current law. Medicare does not cover prostate cancer screening tests.

Explanation of provision. The provision would authorize an annual prostate cancer screening test for men over age 50. The test could consist of any (or all) of the following procedures: (1) a digital rectal exam; (2) a prostate-specific antigen blood test; and (3) after 2001, other procedures as the Secretary finds appropriate for the purpose of early detection of prostate cancer, taking into account such factors as changes in technology and standards of medical practice, availability, effectiveness, and costs.

The provision would specify that payment for prostate-specific antigen blood tests would be made under the clinical laboratory fee schedule. The provisions would be effective January 1, 1998.

Section 4104. Coverage of colorectal screening

Current law. Medicare does not cover preventive colorectal screening procedures. Such services are covered only as diagnostic services.

Explanation of provision. The provision would authorize coverage of colorectal cancer screening tests. A test covered under the provision would be any of the following procedures furnished for the purpose of early detection of colorectal cancer: (1) screening fecal-occult blood test; (2) screening flexible sigmoidoscopy; (3) screening colonoscopy for a high-risk individual; (4) screening barium enema, if found by the Secretary to be an appropriate alternative to screening flexible sigmoidoscopy or screening colonoscopy; and (5) after 2002, other procedures as the Secretary finds appropriate for the purpose of early detection of colorectal cancer, taking into account such factors as changes in technology and standards of medical practice, availability, effectiveness, and costs. A high-risk individual (for purposes of coverage for screening colonoscopy) would be defined as one who faces a high risk for colorectal cancer because of family history, prior experience of cancer or precursor neoplastic polyps, a history of chronic digestive disease condition (including inflammatory bowel disease, Crohn's disease or ulcerative colitis), the presence of any appropriate recognized gene markers, or other predisposing factors. The Secretary would be required to make a decision with respect to coverage of screening barium enema tests within 2 years of enactment; the determination would be published.

The provision would establish frequency and payment limits for the tests. For screening fecal-occult blood tests, payment would be made under the lab fee schedule. In 1998, the payment amount could not exceed $5; in future years the update would be limited to the update applicable under the fee schedule. Medicare could not make payments if the test were performed on an individual under age 50 or within 11 months of a previous screening fecal-occult blood test.

The provision would require the Secretary to establish a payment amount under the physician fee schedule for screening flexible sigmoidoscopies that is consistent with payment amounts for similar or related services. The payment amount could not exceed the amount the Secretary specifies, based upon the rates recognized for diagnostic flexible sigmoidoscopy services. For services performed in ambulatory surgical centers or hospital outpatient departments, the payment amount could not exceed the lesser of the payment rate that would apply to such services if they were performed at either site. Medicare could not make payments for a screening flexible sigmoidoscopy if the test were performed on an individual under age 50 or within 47 months of a previous screening flexible sigmoidoscopy.

The provision would require the Secretary to establish a payment amount under the physician fee schedule for screening colonoscopy for high risk individuals that is consistent with payment amounts for similar or related services. The payment amount could not exceed the amount the Secretary specifies, based upon the rates recognized for diagnostic colonoscopy services. For services performed in ambulatory surgical centers or hospital outpatient departments, the payment amount could not exceed the lesser of the payment rate that would apply to such services if they were performed at either site. Medicare could not make payments if the test were performed on a high-risk individual within 23 months of a previous screening colonoscopy.

The provision would establish special payment rules, in the case of both a screening flexible sigmoidoscopy or screening colonoscopy, if a lesion or growth is discovered during the procedure which results in a biopsy or removal of the lesion or growth during the procedure. In these cases, payment would be made for the procedure classified as either a flexible sigmoidoscopy with such biopsy or removal or screening colonoscopy with such biopsy or removal.

The provision would require the Secretary to review from time to time the appropriateness of the amount of the payment limit for fecal-occult blood tests. The Secretary could, beginning after 2000, reduce the amount of the limit as it applies nationally or in a given area to the amount the Secretary estimates is required to assure that such tests of an appropriate quality are readily and conveniently available.

The provision would require the Secretary to review periodically the appropriate frequency for performing colorectal cancer screening tests based on age and other factors the Secretary believes to be pertinent. The Secretary may revise from time to time the frequency limitations, but no revisions could occur before January 1, 2001.

Nonparticipating physicians providing screening flexible sigmoidoscopies or screening colonoscopies for high risk individuals would be subject to limiting charge provisions applicable for physicians services. The Secretary could impose sanctions if a physician or supplier knowingly and willfully imposed a charge in violation of this requirement.

The provision would require the Secretary to establish payment limits and frequency limits for screening barium enema tests if the Secretary issues a determination that such tests should be covered. Payment limits would be consistent with those established for diagnostic barium enema procedures.

Section 4105. Diabetes screening tests

Current law. In general, Medicare covers only those items and services which are medically reasonable and necessary for the diagnosis or treatment of illness or injury. In addition, Medicare covers home blood glucose monitors and associated testing strips for certain diabetes patients. Home blood glucose monitors enable diabetics to measure their blood glucose levels and then alter their diets or insulin dosages to ensure that they are maintaining an adequate blood glucose level. Home glucose monitors and testing strips are covered under Medicare's durable medical equipment benefit. Coverage of home blood glucose monitors is currently limited to certain diabetics, formerly referred to as Type I diabetics, if: (1) the patient is an insulin-treated diabetic; (2) the patient is capable of being trained to use the monitor in an appropriate manner, or, in some cases, another responsible person is capable of being trained to use the equipment and monitor the patient to assure that the intended effect is achieved; and (3) the device is designed for home rather than clinical use.

Explanation of provision. Effective January 1, 1998, the provision would include among Medicare's covered benefits diabetes outpatient self-management training services. These services would include educational and training services furnished to an individual with diabetes by a certified provider in an outpatient setting meeting certain quality standards. They would be covered only if the physician who is managing the individual's diabetic condition certifies that the services are needed under a comprehensive plan of care to provide the individual with necessary skills and knowledge (including skills related to the self-administration of injectable drugs) to participate in the management of the individual's condition. Certified providers for these purposes would be defined as physicians or other individuals or entities designated by the Secretary that, in addition to providing diabetes outpatient self-management training services, provide other items or services reimbursed by Medicare. Providers would have to meet quality standards established by the Secretary. They would be deemed to have met the Secretary's standards if they meet standards originally established by the National Diabetes Advisory Board and subsequently revised by organizations who participated in the establishment of standards of the Board, or if they are recognized by an organization representing persons with diabetes as meeting standards for furnishing such services. In establishing payment amounts for diabetes outpatient self-management training provided by physicians and determining the relative value for these services, the Secretary would be required to consult with appropriate organizations, including organizations representing persons or Medicare beneficiaries with diabetes.

In addition, beginning January 1, 1998, the provision would extend Medicare coverage of blood glucose monitors and testing strips to Type II diabetics and without regard to a person's use of insulin (as determined under standards established by the Secretary in consultation with appropriate organization). The provision would also reduce the national payment limit for testing strips by 10 percent beginning in 1998.

The Secretary, in consultation with appropriate organizations, would be required to establish outcome measures, including glycosylated hemoglobin (past 90-day average blood sugar levels), for purposes of evaluating the improvement of the health status of Medicare beneficiaries with diabetes. The Secretary would also be required to submit recommendations to Congress from time to time on modifications to coverage of services for these beneficiaries.

The Committee notes the important role of registered dietitians and other qualified nutrition professionals in providing dietary counseling and education services related to diabetes self-management training. These health care professionals are trained and authorized by the States to perform these services and regularly do so in private sector health plans. While this section does not authorize direct reimbursement for these professionals to perform diabetes self-management services, nothing in this bill precludes them from providing services under arrangements with individuals or entities authorized to receive payment for services under this Title.

Explanation of provision. The provision authorizes coverage of bone mass measurement for the following high risk persons: an estrogen-deficient woman at clinical risk for osteoporosis; an individual with vertebral abnormalities; an individual receiving long-term glucocorticoid steroid therapy, and an individual with primary hyperparathyroidism, or an individual being monitored to assess the response to or efficacy of an approved osteoporosis drug therapy. The Secretary would be required to establish frequency limits. Payments would be made under the physician fee schedule. The provision would be effective July 1, 1998.

Section 4107. Vaccines outreach expansion

Current law. The Health Care Financing Administration, in conjunction with the Centers for Disease Control and the National Coalition for Adult Immunization, conducts an Influenza and Pneumococcal Vaccination Campaign. The Campaign is scheduled to cease operations in 2000.

Explanation of provision. The provision would extend the campaign through the end of FY 2002. The provision would appropriate $8 million for each Fiscal Year 1998 through 2002 to the Campaign; 60 percent of the appropriation would come from the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and 40 percent from the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund.

Section 4108. Study on preventive benefits

Current Law. No provision.

Explanation of provision. The provision would require the Secretary to request the National Academy of Sciences, in conjunction with the United States Preventive Services Task Force, to analyze the expansion or modification of preventive services covered under Medicare. The study would consider both the short term and long term benefits and costs to Medicare. The study would have to include specific findings with respect to the following: (1) nutrition therapy, including parenteral and enteral nutrition; (2) standardization of coverage for bone mass measurement; (3) medically necessary dental care; (4) routine patient care costs for beneficiaries enrolled in approved clinical trial programs; and (5) elimination of time limitation for coverage of immunosuppressive drugs for transplant patients. The Secretary would be required to provide such funding as may be necessary in FY 1998 and FY 1999.

SUBTITLE C—RURAL INITIATIVES

Current law. No provision.

Explanation of provision. The provision would require the Secretary to begin, no later than 9 months after enactment, a 4-year demonstration project designed to use eligible health care provider telemedicine networks to apply high-capacity computing and advanced networks for the provision of health care to Medicare beneficiaries who are residents of medically underserved rural and inner-city areas. The project would focus on improvements in primary care and prevention of complications for those residents with diabetes mellitus. The objectives of the project would include: (1) improving patient access to and compliance with appropriate care guidelines for chronic diseases through direct telecommunications links with information networks; (2) developing a curriculum to train, and provide standards for credentialing and licensure of, health professionals (particularly primary care) in the use of medical informatics and telecommunications; (3) demonstrating the application of advanced technologies to assist primary care providers in assisting patients with chronic illnesses in a home setting; (4) applying medical informatics to residents with limited English language skills; (5) developing standards in the application of telemedicine and medical informatics; and (6) developing a model for the cost-effective delivery of primary and related care both in a managed care and fee-for-service environment.

The provision defines an eligible health care provider telemedicine network as a consortium that includes at least one tertiary care hospital, at least one medical school (but no more than two such hospitals), and at least one regional telecommunications provider, no more than four facilities in rural or urban areas, and meets certain additional requirements. The provision would define those services to be covered under Part B for the purposes of this demonstration project. Medicare payment for covered Part B services would be made at a rate of 50 percent of the reasonable costs of providing such services. The Secretary would be required to recognize the following project costs as permissible costs for coverage under Part B: (1) the acquisition of telemedicine equipment for use in patient homes; (2) curriculum development and training of health professionals in medical informatics and telemedicine, (3) payment of certain telecommunications costs, including costs of telecommunications between patients' homes and the eligible network and between the network and other entities under the arrangements described in the bill; and (4) payments to practitioners and providers under Medicare. Costs not covered under Part B would include: (1) purchase or installation of transmission equipment, (2) the establishment or operation of a telecommunications common carrier network, (3) the costs of construction (except for minor renovations related to the installation of reimbursable equipment), or (4) the acquisition or building of real property.

The total amount of Medicare payments permitted under the project would be $30 million. The project would be prohibited from imposing cost sharing on a Medicare beneficiary for the receipt of services under the project of more than 20 percent of the recognized costs of the project attributable to these services. The Secretary would be required to submit to the House Committee on Ways and Means, House Committee on Commerce and the Senate Committee on Finance interim reports on the project and a final report on the project within 6 months of the conclusion of the project. The final report would be required to include an evaluation of the impact of the use of telemedicine and medical informatics on improving the access of Medicare beneficiaries to health care services, on reducing the costs of such services, and on improving the quality of life of such beneficiaries.

The Committee continues to recognize the need to make quality mental health care services available to Medicare beneficiaries and is particularly concerned about access to such services in rural communities. The Committee encourages the Secretary to assess the availability and geographic distribution of mental health professionals who are Medicare providers and to submit information to the Committee identifying characteristics of the program that may serve to impede beneficiary access to mental health services.

SUBTITLE D—ANTI-FRAUD AND ABUSE PROVISIONS

Section 4301. Permanent exclusion for those convicted of 3 health care related crimes

Current law. Section 1128(a) of the Social Security Act directs the Secretary of Health and Human Services to mandatorily exclude individuals and entities from participation in the Medicare program and State health care programs (Medicaid, Title V Maternal and Child Health Block Grants, and Title XX Social Services Block Grants) upon conviction of certain criminal offenses including Medicare and Medicaid program-related crimes, patient abuse crimes, health care fraud felonies, and felonies relating to controlled substances. Such mandatory exclusions are, in most cases, for a minimum period of 5 years.

Explanation of provision. The provision would provide that if an individual has been mandatorily excluded by the Secretary from participation in Federal health care programs, as defined in Section 1128b(f) of the Social Security Act (see Section 4311 of this title), and State health care programs, because of a conviction relating to Medicare and Medicaid program-related crimes, patient abuse, or felonies related to health care fraud or controlled substances, that the exclusion be either for a period of 10 years if the individual has been convicted on only one previous occasion of one or more offenses for which such an exclusion may be imposed, or that the exclusion be permanent if the individual has been convicted on two or more previous occasions of one or more offenses for which such an exclusion may be imposed. The provision would apply to exclusions based on a conviction occurring on or after the date of enactment of this section where the individual has had prior convictions occurring before, on or after the date of enactment of this section.

Section 4302. Authority to refuse to enter into Medicare agreements with individuals or entities convicted of felonies

Current law. Section 1866 of the Social Security Act sets forth certain conditions under which providers may become qualified to participate in the Medicare program. The Secretary may refuse to enter into an agreement with a provider, or may refuse to renew or may terminate such an agreement, if the Secretary determines that the provider has failed to comply with provisions of the agreement, other applicable Medicare requirements and regulations, or if the provider has been excluded from participation in a health care program under Section 1128 or 1128A of the Social Security Act. Section 1842 of the Social Security Act permits physicians and suppliers to enter into agreements with the Secretary under which they become “participating” physicians or suppliers under the Medicare program.

Explanation of provision. The provision would add a new section giving the Secretary authority to refuse to enter into an agreement, or refuse to renew or terminate an agreement with a provider if the provider has been convicted of a felony under Federal or State law for an offense which the Secretary determines is inconsistent with the best interests of program beneficiaries. This authority would extend to the Secretary’s agreements with physicians or suppliers who become “participating” physicians or suppliers under the Medicare program. Similar provisions would apply to the Medicaid program. This section would take effect as of the date of enactment of this Act, and apply to new and renewed contracts on or after that date.

Section 4303. Inclusion of toll-free number to report Medicare waste, fraud and abuse in explanation of benefits forms

Current law. An explanation of benefits is provided to beneficiaries in conjunction with Medicare claims payments. The explanation provides certain information including a toll-free telephone number for enrollees to obtain information on participating physicians and suppliers.

Explanation of provision. The provision would specify that each explanation of benefits form contain a toll-free telephone number maintained by the Inspector General in the Department of Health and Human Services for persons to report complaints and information about waste, fraud and abuse in Medicare services or billing for services.

Section 4304. Liability of Medicare carriers and fiscal intermediaries for claims submitted by excluded persons

Current law. Carriers and fiscal intermediaries are the entities which process claims for Medicare. Intermediaries process claims submitted by institutional providers of services and carriers process claims submitted by physicians and suppliers.

Explanation of provision. The provision would provide that agreements with fiscal intermediaries or carriers require that such organizations reimburse the Secretary for any amounts paid for services under Medicare which have been furnished, directed, or prescribed by an individual or entity during any period in which the individual or entity has been excluded from participation under Medicare, if the amounts have been paid after the fiscal intermediary or carrier has received notice of the exclusion. Similar restrictions would be imposed upon States under the Medicaid program. These provisions would apply to contracts and agreements entered into, renewed, or extended after the date of enactment of this Act, but only with respect to claims submitted on or after either January 1, 1998, or the effective date of the contract, whichever is later.

Section 4305. Exclusion of entity controlled by family member of a sanctioned individual

Current law. Section 1128 of the Social Security act authorizes the Secretary of HHS to impose mandatory and permissive exclusions of individuals and entities from participation in the Medicare program, Medicaid program and programs receiving funds under the Title V Maternal and Child Health Services Block Grant, or the Title XX Social Services Block Grant. The Secretary may exclude any entity which the Secretary determines has a person with a direct or indirect ownership or control interest of 5 percent or more in the entity or who is an officer, director, agent, or managing employee of the entity, where that person has been convicted of a specified criminal offense, or against whom a civil monetary penalty has been assessed, or who has been excluded from participation under Medicare or a State health care program.

Explanation of provision. The provision would provide that if a person transfers an ownership or control interest in an entity to an immediate family member or to a member of the household of the person in anticipation of, or following, a conviction, assessment or exclusion against the person, that the entity may be excluded from participation in Federal health care programs (see Section 4311 of this bill) on the basis of that transfer. The terms “immediate family member” and “member of the household” are defined in this section. This provision would take effect 45 days after enactment of this Act.

Section 4306. Imposition of civil money penalties

Current law. Section 1128A of the Social Security Act sets forth a list of fraudulent activities relating to claims submitted for payments for items of services under a Federal health care program. Civil money penalties of up to $10,000 for each item or service may be assessed. In addition, the Secretary of HHS (or head of the department or agency for the Federal health care program involved) may also exclude the person involved in the fraudulent activity from participation in a Federal health care program, defined as any program providing health benefits, whether directly or otherwise, which is funded directly, in whole or in part, by the United States Government (other than the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program).

Explanation of provision. The provision would add a new civil money penalty for cases in which a person contracts with an excluded provider for the provision of health care items or services, where the person knows or should know that the provider has been excluded from participation in a Federal health care program.

Section 4307. Disclosure of information and surety bonds

Current law. Section 1834(a) of the Social Security Act establishes requirements for payments under Medicare for covered items defined as durable medical equipment. Home health agencies are required, under Section 1861(o) of the Social Security Act, to meet specified conditions in order to provide health care services under Medicare, including requirements, set by the Secretary, relating to bonding or establishing of escrow accounts, as the Secretary finds necessary for the effective and efficient operation of the Medicare program.

Explanation of provision. The provision would require that suppliers of durable medical equipment provide the Secretary with full and complete information as to persons with an ownership or control interest in the supplier, or in any subcontractor in which the supplier has a direct or indirect 5 percent or more ownership interest, other information concerning such ownership or control, and a surety bond for at least $50,000. Home health agencies, comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facilities, and rehabilitation agencies would also be required to provide a surety bond for at least $50,000. The Secretary may impose the surety bond requirement which applies to durable medical equipment suppliers to suppliers of ambulance services and certain clinics that furnish medical and other health services (other than physicians' services). In each of these cases the Secretary could waive the surety bond requirement if the entity provides a comparable surety bond under State law.

The amendments with respect to suppliers of durable medical equipment would apply to equipment furnished on or after January 1, 1998. The amendments with respect to home health agencies would apply to services furnished on or after such date, and the Secretary of HHS is directed to modify participation agreements with home health agencies to provide for implementation of these amendments on a timely basis. The amendments with respect to ambulance services, certain clinics, comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facilities and rehabilitation agencies would take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

Section 4308. Provision of certain identification numbers

Current law. Section 1124 of the Social Security Act requires that entities participating in Medicare, Medicaid and the Maternal and Child Health Block Grant programs (including providers, clinical laboratories, renal disease facilities, health maintenance organizations, carriers and fiscal intermediaries), provide certain information regarding the identity of each person with an ownership or control interest in the entity, or in any subcontractor in which the entity has a direct or indirect 5 percent or more ownership interest.

Section 1124A of the Social Security Act requires that providers under part B of Medicare also provide information regarding persons with ownership or control interest in a provider, or in any subcontractor in which the provider has a direct or indirect 5 percent or more ownership interest.

Explanation of provision. The provision would require that all Medicare providers supply the Secretary with both the employer identification number and social security account number of each disclosing entity, each person with an ownership or control interest, and any subcontractor in which the entity has a direct or indirect 5 percent or more ownership interest. The Secretary of HHS is directed to transmit to the Commissioner of Social Security information concerning each social security account number and to the Secretary of the Treasury information concerning each employer identification number supplied to the Secretary for verification of such information. Social security numbers would not be disclosed to other persons or entities, and use of such numbers would be limited to verification and matching purposes only. The Secretary would reimburse the Commissioner and the Secretary of the Treasury for costs incurred in performing the verification services required by this provision. The Secretary of HHS would report to Congress on the steps taken to assure confidentiality of social security numbers to be provided to the Secretary under this section before it becomes effective. This section's reporting requirements would then become effective 90 days after submission of the Secretary's report to Congress on confidentiality of social security numbers.

Section 4309. Advisory opinions regarding certain physician self-referral provisions

Current law. Section 1877 of the Social Security Act establishes a ban on certain financial arrangements between a referring physician and an entity. Specifically, if a physician (or immediate family member) has an ownership or investment interest in or a compensation arrangement with an entity, the physician is prohibited from making certain referrals to the entity for services for which Medicare would otherwise pay.

Explanation of provision. The provision would require the Secretary of HHS to issue written advisory opinions concerning whether a physician referral relating to designated health services (other than clinical laboratory services) is prohibited under Section 1877 of the Social Security Act. Such opinions would be binding as to the Secretary and the party requesting the opinion. To the extent practicable, the Secretary is to apply the regulations issued under the advisory opinion provisions of Section 1128D of the Social Security Act to the issuance of advisory opinions under this provision.

Section 4310. Notification of availability of providers as part of discharge planning process

Current law. Hospitals are required to have a discharge planning process meeting certain requirements. The discharge planning evaluation must include an evaluation of the patient's need for likely post-hospital services and the availability of those services.

Explanation of provision. The provision would include, as part of this evaluation, the availability of those services through individuals and entities that participate in Medicare, serve the geographic area where the patient resides, and request to be listed by the hospital as available. The provision would prohibit the discharge plan from specifying or otherwise limiting the qualified provider which may provide post-hospital care. The plan would also identify any provider (to whom the individual is referred) in which the hospital has a disclosable financial interest or which has such disclosable interest in the hospital.

The Committee intends that a hospital, for a Medicare beneficiary who is not enrolled in a managed care plan, may not restrict the selection of a qualified home health agency to provided post-hospital services for such agency expressed by the patient.

The provision would require hospitals with a financial interest in a provider of post-hospital services (including an entity which furnishes durable medical equipment) to maintain and disclose to the Secretary information on the nature of the financial interest; the number of individuals who were discharged from the hospital who were identified as requiring the type of services provided by such provider; and, the percentage of such individuals who receive services from such provider or another such provider. The provision would further require the Secretary to make available disclosed information to the public.

Section 4311. Other fraud and abuse related provisions

Current law. Section 1128D provides for safe harbors, advisory opinions, and fraud alerts as guidance regarding application of health care fraud and abuse sanctions. Section 1128E of the Social Security Act directs the Secretary of HHS to establish a national health care fraud and abuse data collection program for the reporting of final adverse actions against health care providers, suppliers, or practitioners.

Explanation of provision. The provision would make certain technical changes in provisions added by the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996. The provision would also provide that mandatory and permissive exclusions under Section 1128 apply to any Federal health care program, defined as any program providing health benefits, whether directly or otherwise, which is funded directly, in whole or in part, by the United States Government (other than the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program). A new provision is added to the health care fraud and abuse data collection program to provide a civil money penalty of up to $25,000 to be imposed against a health plan that fails to report information on an adverse action required to be reported under this program. The Secretary would also publicize those government agencies which fail to report information on adverse actions as required.

The change in the Federal programs under which a person may be excluded under Section 1128 of the Social Security Act would be effective on the date of enactment of this Act. The sanction provision for failure to report adverse action information as required under Section 1128E of the Social Security Act would apply to failures occurring on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

The other amendments made by this section would be effective as if included in the enactment of the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996.

SUBTITLE E—PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT SYSTEMS

Chapter 2—Payment Under Part B

SUBCHAPTER A—PAYMENT FOR HOSPITAL OUTPATIENT DEPARTMENT SERVICES

Section 4411. Elimination of formula-driven overpayments [FDO] for certain outpatient hospital services

Current law. Medicare payments for hospital outpatient ambulatory surgery, radiology, and other diagnostic services equals the lesser of: (1) the lower of a hospital's reasonable costs or its customary charges, net of deductible and coinsurance amounts, or (2) a blended amount comprised of a cost portion and a fee schedule portion, net of beneficiary cost-sharing. The cost portion of the blend is based on the lower of the hospital's costs or charges, net of beneficiary cost sharing, and the fee schedule portion is based, in part, on ambulatory surgery center payment rates or the rates for radiology and diagnostic services in other settings, net of beneficiary coinsurance (for those settings). The hospital cost portion and the ambulatory surgical center (ASC) cost portion are 42 percent and 58 percent, respectively. For diagnostic services the hospital cost portion is 50 percent and the fee schedule portion is 50 percent.

A hospital may bill a beneficiary for the coinsurance amount owed for the outpatient service provided. The beneficiary coinsurance is based on 20 percent of the hospital's submitted charges for the outpatient service, whereas Medicare usually pays based on the blend of the hospital's costs and the amount paid in other settings for the same service. This results in an anomaly whereby the amount a beneficiary pays in coinsurance does not equal 20 percent of the program's payment and does not result in a dollar-for-dollar decrease in Medicare program payments.

Explanation of provision. The provision would require that beneficiary coinsurance amounts be deducted later in the reimbursement calculation for hospital outpatient services, so that Medicare payments for covered services would be lower than under current law. Medicare's payment for hospital outpatient services would equal the blended amounts less any amount the hospital may charge the beneficiary as coinsurance for services furnished during portions of cost reporting periods occurring on or after October 1, 1997.

Section 4412. Extension of reductions in payments for costs of hospital outpatient services

a. Reduction in payments for capital-related costs. Hospitals receive payments for Medicare's share of capital costs associated with outpatient departments. OBRA 93 extended a 10 percent reduction in payments for the capital costs of outpatient departments through FY 1998.

b. Reduction in payments for non-capital-related costs. Certain hospital outpatient services are paid on the basis of reasonable costs. OBRA 93 extended a 5.8 percent reduction for those services paid on a cost-related basis through FY 1998.

a. Reduction in payments for capital-related costs. The provision would extend the 10 percent reduction in payments for outpatient capital through FY 1999 and during FY 2000 before January 1, 2000.

b. Reduction in payments for non-capital-related costs. The 5.8 percent reduction for outpatient services paid on a cost basis would be extended through FY 1999 and during FY 2000 before January 1, 2000.

Section 4413. Prospective payment system for hospital outpatient department services [ODP]

Current law. Medicare payments for hospital outpatient ambulatory surgery, radiology, and other diagnostic services equals the lesser of: (1) the lower of a hospital's reasonable costs or its customary charges, net of deductible and coinsurance amounts, or (2) a blended amount comprised of a cost portion and a fee schedule portion, net of beneficiary cost-sharing. The cost portion of the blend is based on the lower of the hospital's costs or charges, net of beneficiary cost sharing, and the fee schedule portion is based, in part, on ambulatory surgery center payment rates or the rates for radiology and diagnostic services in other settings, net of beneficiary coinsurance (for those settings). For cost reporting periods beginning on or after January 1, 1991, the hospital cost portion and the ASC cost portion are 42 percent and 58 percent, respectively. For diagnostic services the hospital cost portion is 50 percent and the fee schedule portion is 50 percent.

Explanation of provision. The provision would require the Secretary to establish a prospective payment system for covered OPD services furnished beginning in 1999. The Secretary would be required to develop a classification system for covered OPD services, such that services classified within each group would be comparable clinically and with respect to the use of resources. The Secretary would be required to establish relative payment rates for covered OPD services using 1996 hospital claims and cost report data, and determine projections of the frequency of utilization of each such service or group of services in 1999. The Secretary would be required to determine a wage adjustment factor to adjust the portions of payment attributable to labor-related costs for relative geographic differences in labor and labor-related costs that would be applied in a budget neutral manner. The Secretary would be required to establish other adjustments as necessary, including adjustments to account for variations in coinsurance payments for procedures with similar resource costs, to ensure equitable payments under the system. The Secretary would also be required to develop a method for controlling unnecessary increases in the volume of covered OPD services.

Hospitals OPD copayments would be limited to 20 percent of the national median of the charges for the service (or services within the group) furnished in 1996 updated to 1999 using the Secretary's estimate of charge growth during this period. The Secretary would be required to establish rules for the establishment of a coinsurance payment amount for a covered OPD service not furnished during 1996, based on its classification within a group of such services.

For 1999, the Secretary would be required to establish a conversion factor for determining the Medicare OPD fee payment amounts for each covered OPD service (or group of services) furnished in 1999 so that the sum of the products of the Medicare OPD fee payment amounts and the frequencies for each service or group would be required to equal the total amounts estimated by the Secretary that would be paid for OPD services in 1999. In subsequent years, the Secretary would be required to establish a conversion factor for covered OPD services furnished in an amount equal to the conversion factor established for 1999 and applicable to services furnished in the previous year increased by the OPD payment increase factor. The increase factor would be equal to the hospital market basket (MB) percentage increase plus 3.5 percentage points. When the amount of the beneficiary coinsurance for an individual procedure is equal to 20 percent of the total payment, both the coinsurance and the Medicare program payment would be increased by the market basket.

The Secretary would be required to establish a procedure under which a hospital, before the beginning of a year (starting with 1999), could elect to reduce the coinsurance payment for some or all covered OPD services to an amount that is not less than 25 percent of the total (Medicare program plus beneficiary coinsurance payment) amount for the service involved, adjusted for relative differences in labor costs and other factors. A reduced copayment amount could not be further reduced or increased during the year involved, and hospitals could disseminate information on the reduction of copayment amount.

The Secretary would be authorized periodically to review and revise the groups, relative payment weights, and the wage and other adjustments to take into account changes in medical practice, medical technology, the addition of new services new cost data, and other relevant information. Any adjustments made by the Secretary would be made in a budget neutral manner. If the Secretary determined that the volume of services paid for under this subsection increased beyond amounts established through those methodologies, the Secretary would be authorized to adjust the update to the conversion factor otherwise applicable in a subsequent year.

The provision would provide that the copayment for covered OPD services would be determined by the provisions of this bill instead of the standard 20 percent coinsurance for other Part B services. The provision would prohibit administrative or judicial review of the prospective payment system. The provision would also provide for conforming amendments regarding approved ambulatory surgical center procedures performed in hospital OPDs, for radiology and other diagnostic procedures, and for other hospital outpatient services.

In the interest of achieving better clinical homogeneity and comparability of economic resources of services and products provided on a hospital outpatient basis, the Committee encourages the Secretary to develop appropriate categories of hospital outpatient services and items. It is anticipated that this will facilitate identification of those products whose costs do not correlate with the procedure with which they are used. Following such identification, the Secretary may consider instituting a system of separate payment or creating separate classification groups for such products, if such a change would more accurately reflect the clinical and economic components of the total service provided.

The Committee also strongly encourages the Secretary to make any appropriate adjustments to prospective payment rates that would reflect the patient mix and treatments of freestanding cancer centers.

SUBCHAPTER B—REHABILITATION SERVICES

Section 4421. Rehabilitation agencies and services

Current law. Medicare provides for special payment rules for certain types of providers of services covered under Part B and paid out of the SMI Trust Fund.

Explanation of provision. For outpatient physical therapy and occupational therapy services, payments for services provided in 1998 would be the least of: (1) the actual charges for the services; (2) the adjusted reasonable costs for the services, defined as reasonable costs reduced by 5.8 percent of the reasonable costs for operating costs and 10 percent of the reasonable cost for capital; or (3) a blended rate equal to the sum of 50 percent of the adjusted reasonable cost for the services and 50 percent of the applicable physician fee schedule amount for the services. After 1998, payment for these services would be 80 percent of the lesser of the actual charge for the services, or the applicable physician fee schedule amount. The provision would also exclude from Medicare coverage outpatient occupational therapy and physical therapy services furnished as an incident to a physician's professional services that did not meet the standards provided for outpatient physical therapy services furnished by a provider in a clinic, rehabilitation agency, public health agency, or by others under an arrangement with and under the supervision of such providers.

The provision would also apply the per beneficiary cap of $900 per year for outpatient physical therapy services.

Section 4422. Comprehensive outpatient rehabilitation facilities [CORFs]

Current law. Medicare provides for special payment rules for certain types of providers of services covered under Part B and paid out of the SMI Trust Fund.

Explanation of provision. CORF payments for services provided in 1998, would be the least of: (1) the charges for the services; (2) the adjusted reasonable costs for the services, defined as reasonable costs reduced by 5.8 percent of the reasonable costs for operating costs and 10 percent of the reasonable cost for capital; or (3) a blended rate equal to the sum of 50 percent of the adjusted reasonable cost for the services and 50 percent of the applicable physician fee schedule amount for the services. After 1998, payment for these services would be 80 percent of the lesser of the actual charge for the services, or the applicable physician fee schedule amount.

SUBCHAPTER C—AMBULANCE SERVICES

Section 4431. Payments for ambulance services

Current law. Payment for ambulance services provided by freestanding suppliers is based on reasonable charge screens developed by individual carriers based on local billings. Hospital or other provider-based ambulance services are paid on a reasonable cost basis; payment cannot exceed what would be paid to a freestanding suppliers.

Explanation of provision. The provision would specify payment limits for ambulance services for FY 1998 through FY 2002. For ambulance services paid on a reasonable cost basis, the annual increase in the costs recognized as reasonable on a per trip basis would be limited to the percentage increase in the consumer price index reduced for fiscal years 1998 and 1999 by 1 percent. Similarly, for ambulance services furnished on a reasonable charge basis, the annual increase in the charges recognized as reasonable would be limited to the percentage increase in the consumer price index reduced for fiscal years 1998 and 1999 by 1 percent.

The provision would require the Secretary to establish a fee schedule for ambulance services through a negotiated rule-making process. In establishing the fee schedule, the Secretary would be required to: (1) establish mechanisms to control Medicare expenditure increases; (2) establish definitions for services; (3) consider appropriate regional and operational differences; (4) consider adjustments to payment rates to account for inflation and other relevant factors; and (5) phase-in the application of the payment rates in an efficient and fair manner. In establishing the fee schedule, the Secretary would be required to consult with various national organizations representing individuals and entities who furnish and regulate ambulance services. The Secretary would be required to assure that payments in FY 2000 under the fee schedule did not exceed the aggregate amount of payments which would have been made in the absence of the fee schedule. The annual increase in the payment amounts in each subsequent year would be limited to the increase in the consumer price index. Medicare payments would equal 80 percent of the lesser of the fee schedule amount or the actual charge.

The provision would authorize payment for advanced life support (ALS) services provided by paramedic intercept service providers in rural areas. The ALS services would be provided under contract with one or more volunteer ambulance services. The volunteer ambulance service involved must be certified as qualified to provide the service, provide only basic life support services at the time of the intercept, and be prohibited by State law from billing for services. The ALS service provider must be certified to provide the services and bill all recipients (not just Medicare beneficiaries) for ALS intercept services.

Current law. No provision.

Explanation of provision. The provision would require the Secretary to establish up to three demonstration projects under which, at the request of a county or parish, the Secretary enters into agreement with such entity to furnish or arrange for the furnishing of ambulance services. The county or parish could not enter into a contract unless the contract covered at least 80 percent of the residents enrolled in Part B. Individuals or entities furnishing services would have to meet the requirements otherwise applicable. The Secretary would make monthly per capita payments to the county or parish. In the first year, the capitated payment would equal 95 percent of the average annual per capita payment for ambulance services made in the most recent 3 years for which data is available. In subsequent years, it would be the amount established for the preceding year increased by the CPI. Payments under the contract would be in lieu of other payments for ambulance services.

The contract could provide for the inclusion of persons residing in additional counties or parishes, permit transportation to non-hospital providers, and implement other innovations proposed by the county or parish.

The Secretary would be required to evaluate the demonstration projects and report by January 1, 2000, on the study including recommendations regarding modifications to the payment methodology and whether to extend or expand such projects.

Chapter 3—Payment Under Parts A and B

Section 4441. Prospective payment for home health services

Current law. Medicare reimburses home health agencies on a retrospective cost-based basis. This means that agencies are paid after services are delivered for the reasonable costs (as defined by the program) they have incurred for the care they provide to program beneficiaries, up to certain limits. In provisions contained in the Orphan Drug Act of 1983, OBRA 87 and OBRA 90, Congress required the Secretary to develop alternative methods for paying for home health care on a prospective basis. In 1994, the Office of Research and Demonstration in the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) completed a demonstration project that tested prospective payment on a per visit basis. Preliminary analysis indicates that the per visit prospective payment methodology had no effect on cost per visit or volume of visits. HCFA has begun a second project, referred to as Phase II, to test prospective payment on a per episode basis, and has also undertaken research to develop a home health case-mix adjustor that would translate patients' varying service needs into specific reimbursement rates.

Explanation of provision. The provision would require the Secretary to establish a prospective payment system for home health and implement the system beginning October 1, 1999. All services covered and paid on a reasonable cost basis at the time of enactment of this section, including medical supplies, would be required to be paid on a prospective basis. In implementing the system, the Secretary could provide for a transition of not longer than 4 years during which a portion of the payment would be based on agency-specific costs, but only if aggregate payments were not greater than they would have been if a transition had not occurred.

In establishing the prospective system, the Secretary would be authorized to consider an appropriate unit of service, as well as the number, type, and duration of visits provided within that unit, potential changes in the mix of services provided within that unit and their cost, and a general system design that provides for continued access to quality services.

Under the new system, the Secretary would compute a standard prospective payment amount (or amounts) that would initially be based on the most current audited cost report data available to the Secretary. For fiscal year 2000, payment amounts under the prospective system would be computed in such a way that total payments would equal amounts that would have been paid had the system not been in effect, but would also reflect a 15 percent reduction in cost limits and per beneficiary limits in effect September 30, 1999. Payment amounts would be standardized in a manner that eliminates the effect of variations in relative case mix and wage levels among different home health agencies in a budget neutral manner. The Secretary could recognize regional differences or differences based on whether or not services are provided in an urbanized area. Beginning with FY 2001, standard prospective payment amounts would be adjusted by the home health market basket.

The payment amount for a unit of home health service would be adjusted by a case mix adjustor factor established by the Secretary to explain a significant amount of the variation in the cost of different units of service. The labor-related portion of the payment amount would be adjusted by an area wage adjustment factor that would reflect the relative level of wages and wage-related costs in a particular geographic area as compared to the national average. The Secretary could provide for additions or adjustments to payment amounts for outliers because of unusual variations in the type or amount of medically necessary care. The total amount of outlier payments could not exceed 5 percent of total payments projected or estimated to be made in a year. The Secretary would be required to reduce the standard prospective payments by amounts that in the aggregate would equal outlier adjustments. If a beneficiary were to transfer to or receive services from another home health agency within the period covered by a prospective payment amount, then the payment would be prorated between the agencies involved.

Claims for home health services furnished on or after October 1, 1998, would be required to contain an appropriate identifier for the physician prescribing home health services or certifying the need for care. Claims would also be required to include, for four home health service categories, information (coded in an appropriate manner) on the length of time of a service, as measured in 15-minute increments. The four categories of services for which time information would have to be included on a claim would be: skilled nursing care; therapies—physical and occupational therapy and speech language pathology; medical social services; and home health aide services.

Administrative or judicial review would not be permitted for the transition period (if any) for the prospective system; the definition and application of payment units; the computation of initial standard payment amounts; adjustments for outlier, case-mix and area wage adjustments; and the amounts or types of exceptions or adjustments to the prospective payment amounts.

Periodic interim payments for home health services would be eliminated. All home health care agencies would be paid according to the prospective payment system.

In order for home health services to be considered covered care, home health care agencies would be required to submit claims for all services, and all payments would be made to a home health agency without regard to whether or not the item or service was furnished by the agency, by others under arrangement, or under any other contracting or consulting arrangement.

SUBTITLE G—PROVISIONS RELATING TO PART B ONLY

Chapter 1—Physicians' Services

Section 4601. Establishment of single conversion factor for 1998

Current law. Medicare pays for physicians services on the basis of a fee schedule. The fee schedule assigns relative values to services. Relative values reflect three factors: physician work (time, skill, and intensity involved in the service), practice expenses, and malpractice costs. These relative values are adjusted for geographic variations in the costs of practicing medicine. Geographically-adjusted relative values are converted into a dollar payment amount by a dollar figure known as the conversion factor. There are three conversion factors—one for surgical services, one for primary care services, and one for other services. The conversion factors in 1997 are $40.96 for surgical services, $35.77 for primary care services, and $33.85 for other services.

Explanation of provision. The provision would set a single conversion factor for 1998, based on the 1997 primary care conversion factor, updated to 1998 by the Secretary's estimate of the weighted average of the three separate updates that would occur in the absence of the legislation.

Section 4602. Establishing update to conversion factor to match spending under sustainable growth rate

Current law. The conversion factors are updated each year by a formula specified in the law. The update equals inflation plus or minus actual rate of spending growth in a prior period compared to a target known as the Medicare volume performance standard (MVPS). (For example, fiscal year 1995 data were used in calculating the calendar 1997 update.) However, regardless of actual performance during a base period, there is a 5 percentage point limit on the amount of the reduction. There is no limit on the amount of the increase.

Explanation of provision. The provision would specify the update to the conversion factor that would apply beginning in 1999 (unless otherwise provided for by law). The provision would specify that the update to the single conversion factor for a year would equal the Medicare Economic Index (MEI) subject to an adjustment to match spending under a sustainable growth rate. Specifically, the update for a year would be calculated by multiplying: (1) 1 plus the percentage change in the MEI, times (2) 1 plus the update adjustment factor (expressed as a percentage) for the year. The result would be reduced by 1 and multiplied by 100.

The provision links the update to the sustainable growth rate. The update adjustment factor would be calculated as follows: First, the Secretary would estimate the difference between the cumulative sum of allowed expenditures for July 1, 1997 through June 30 of the year involved and the cumulative sum of actual expenditures for July 1, 1997 through June 30 of the preceding year. This amount would be divided by the actual expenditures for the 12-month period (ending June 30) of the preceding year, increased by the applicable sustainable growth rate. For the 12-month period ending June 30, 1997, allowed expenditures would be defined as actual expenditures for the period, as estimated by the Secretary. For a subsequent 12-month period, allowed expenditures would be defined as allowed expenditures established for the previous period, increased by the sustainable growth rate established for the fiscal year which begins during that 12-month period.

The provision would establish limits on the amount of variation from the MEI; the update could not be more than three percentage points above or seven percentage points below the MEI.

Section 4603. Replacement of volume performance standard with sustainable growth rate

Current law. The Medicare Volume Performance Standard (MVPS), used to calculate the update in the conversion factor, is a goal for the rate of expenditure growth from one fiscal year to the next. The MVPS for a year is based on estimates of several factors (changes in fees, enrollment, volume and intensity, and laws and regulations). The calculation is subject to a reduction known as the performance standard factor.

Explanation of provision. The provision would replace the MVPS with the sustainable growth rate based on real gross domestic product (GDP) growth. Specifically, the rate for FY 1998 and subsequent years would be equal to the product of: (1) 1 plus the weighted average percentage change in fees for all physicians services in the fiscal year; (2) 1 plus the percentage change in the average number of individuals enrolled under Part B (other than private plan enrollees) from the previous fiscal year; (3) 1 plus the Secretary's estimate of the percentage growth in real GDP per capita from the previous fiscal year; and (4) 1 plus the Secretary's estimate of the percentage change in expenditures for all physicians services in the fiscal year which will result from changes in law and regulations (excluding changes in volume and intensity resulting from changes in the conversion factor update). The result would be reduced by one and multiplied by 100. The term "physicians services" would exclude services furnished to a MedicarePlus plan enrollee.

Section 4604. Payment rules for anesthesia services

Current law. Anesthesia services are paid under a separate fee schedule (based on base and time units) with a separate conversion factor. The 1997 conversion factor is $16.68.

Explanation of provision. The provision would specify that the conversion factor would equal 46 percent of the conversion factor established for other services for the year.

Section 4605. Implementation of resource-based physician practice expense

Current law. P.L. 103-432 required that the Secretary develop and provide for the implementation, beginning in 1998, of a resource-based methodology for payment of practice expenses under the physician fee schedule. Such expenses are currently paid on the basis of historical charges.

Explanation of provision. The provision would delay implementation of the practice expense methodology for 1 year until 1999. It would provide for a phase-in of the new methodology. In 1999, 25 percent of the practice payment would be based on the new methodology. This percentage would increase to 50 percent in 2000 and 75 percent in 2001. Beginning in 2002, the payment would be based solely on the new methodology.

The provision would require the Secretary, to develop new resource-based relative value units. In developing the units, the Secretary would be required to utilize, to the maximum extent practicable, generally accepted accounting principles and standards which recognize all staff, equipment, supplies and expenses, not just those that can be tied to specific procedures. The Secretary would be required to use actual data on equipment utilization and other key assumptions such as the proportion of costs which are direct versus indirect. The Secretary would be required to study whether hospital cost reduction methods and changing practice patterns may have increased physician practice costs and consider adverse effects on patient access. The Secretary would further be required to consult with organizations representing physicians regarding methodology and data to be used.

The Secretary would be required to transmit a report to the House Committee on Ways and Means, House Committee on Commerce and the Senate Committee on Finance by March 1, 1998. The report would include a presentation of the data used and an explanation of the methodology.

The Secretary would be required to publish a notice of proposed rulemaking by May 1, 1998, and allow for a 90-day public comment period.

The proposed rule would include: (1) detailed impact projections which compare proposed payment amounts with data on actual practice expenses; (2) impact projections for specialties, sub-specialties, geographic payment localities, urban versus rural localities, and academic versus non-academic medical staffs; and (3) impact projections on access to care for Medicare patients and physician employment of clinical and administrative staff.

Section 4606. Dissemination of hospital-specific per admission relative values for inpatient hospital services.

Current Law. In general, the law does not include a specific limit on the number or mix of physicians services provided in connection with an inpatient hospital stay. (However, the law does require that certain services provided in connection with a surgery be included in a global surgical package and not billed separately.)

Explanation of Provision. During 1999 and 2001, the Secretary would determine for each hospital the hospital-specific per admission relative value amount for the following year and whether this amount is projected to be excessive (based on the 1998 national median of such values). The Secretary would be required to notify the medical executive committee of each hospital having been identified as having an excessive hospital-specific relative value.

The hospital-specific relative value projected for a non-teaching hospital would be the average per admission relative value for inpatient physicians services furnished by the medical staff for the second preceding calendar year, adjusted for variations in case mix and disproportionate share status. For teaching hospitals, the projected hospital-specific relative value would be: (1) the average per admission relative value for inpatient physicians services furnished by the medical staff for the second preceding calendar year; plus (2) the equivalent per admission relative value for physicians services furnished by interns and residents during the second preceding year, adjusted for case-mix, disproportionate share status, and teaching status among hospitals. The Secretary would be required to determine the equivalent relative value unit per intern and resident based on the best available data and could make such adjustment in the aggregate. The Secretary would be required to adjust the allowable per admission relative value otherwise determined to take into account the needs of teaching hospitals and hospitals receiving additional payments under PPS as disproportionate share hospitals or on the basis of their classification as Medicare-dependent small rural hospitals. The adjustment for teaching or disproportionate share status could not be less than zero.

Section 4607. No x-ray required for chiropractic services.

Current Law. Medicare covers chiropractic services involving manual manipulation of the spine to correct a subluxation demonstrated to exist by X-ray. Medicare regulations prohibit payment for the X-ray either if performed by a chiropractor or ordered by a chiropractor.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would eliminate the X-ray requirement effective January 1, 1998. It would also require the Secretary to develop and implement utilization guidelines relating to coverage of chiropractic services when a subluxation has not been demonstrated to exist by X-ray.

Section 4608. Temporary coverage restoration for portable electrocardiogram transportation.

Current Law. Medicare regulations for the 1997 physician fee schedule eliminated the separate payment for transportation of EKG equipment by any supplier.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would restore separate payment for 1 year, 1998, for transportation of EKG equipment based on the coding in effect in 1996. By July 1, 1998, GAO would submit a report to Congress on the appropriateness of continuing such payment.

Chapter 2—Other Payment Provisions

Current Law

(a) Freeze in Durable Medical Equipment (DME) Updates. DME is reimbursed on the basis of a fee schedule. Items are classified into five groups for purposes of determining the fee schedules and making payments: (1) inexpensive or other routinely purchased equipment (defined as items costing less than $150 or which is purchased at least 75 percent of the time); (2) items requiring frequent and substantial servicing; (3) customized items; (4) oxygen and oxygen equipment; and (5) other items referred to as capped rental items. In general, the fee schedules establish national payment limits for DME. The limits have floors and ceilings. The floor is equal to 85 percent of the weighted median of local payment amounts and the ceiling is equal to 100 percent of the weighted median of local payment amounts. Fee schedule amounts are updated annually by the consumer price index for all urban consumers (CPI-U).

(b) Update for Orthotics and Prosthetics. Prosthetics and orthotics are paid according to a fee schedule with principles similar to the DME fee schedule. The fee schedule establishes regional payment limits for covered items. The payment limits have floors and ceilings. The floor is equal to 90 percent of the weighted average of regional payment amounts and the ceiling is 120 percent. Fee schedule amounts are updated annually by CPI-U.

(c) Payment Freeze for Parenteral and Enteral Nutrients, Supplies, and Equipment (PEN). Parenteral and enteral nutrients, supplies, and equipment are paid on the basis of the lowest reasonable charge levels at which items are widely and consistently available in the community.

Explanation of Provision

(a) Freeze in Durable Medical Equipment (DME) Updates. The provision would eliminate updates to the DME fee schedules for the period 1998 through 2002.

(b) Update for Orthotics and Prosthetics. The update for the prosthetics and orthotics fee schedule would be limited to 1 percent for each of the years 1998 through 2002.

(c) Payment Freeze for Parenteral and Enteral Nutrients, Supplies, and Equipment (PEN). Payments for PEN would be frozen at 1995 levels for the period 1998 through 2002.

Section 4612. Oxygen and oxygen equipment

Current Law. Under Medicare oxygen and oxygen equipment are considered durable medical equipment and are paid according to a DME fee schedule. The fee schedule establishes a national payment limit for oxygen and oxygen equipment.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would reduce the national payment limit for oxygen and oxygen equipment by 20 percent for each of the years 1998 through 2002.

Section 4613. Reduction in updates to payment amounts for clinical diagnostic laboratory tests

Current Law. Clinical diagnostic laboratory tests are paid on the basis of an area wide fee schedules. The law sets a cap on payment amounts equal to 76 percent of the median of all fee schedules for the test. The fee schedules amounts are updated by the percentage change in the CPI.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would freeze fee schedule payments for the 1998–2002 period. It would also lower the cap from 76 percent of the median to 72 percent of the median beginning in 1998.

Section 4614. Simplification in administration of laboratory services benefit

Current Law. Significant variations exist among carriers in rules governing requirements labs must meet in filing claims for payments.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would require the Secretary to divide the country into no more than five regions and designate a single carrier for each region to process laboratory claims no later than January 1, 1999. One of the carriers would be selected as a central statistical resource. The allocation of claims to a particular carrier would be based on whether the carrier serves the geographic area where the specimen was collected or other method selected by the Secretary.

The provision would require the Secretary, by July 1, 1998, to adopt uniform coverage, administration, and payment policies for lab tests using a negotiated rule-making process. The policies would be designed to promote uniformity and program integrity and reduce administrative burdens with respect to clinical diagnostic laboratory tests in connection with beneficiary information submitted with a claim, physicians' obligations for documentation and record keeping, claims filing procedures, documentation, and frequency limitations.

The provision would permit the use of interim regional policies where a uniform national policy had not been established and there is a demonstrated need for policy to respond to aberrant utilization or provision of unnecessary services. The Secretary would establish a process under which designated carriers could collectively develop and implement interim national standards for up to 2 years.

The Secretary would be required to conduct a review, at least every 2 years, of uniform national standards. The review would consider whether to incorporate or supersede interim regional or national policies.

With regard to the implementation of new requirements in the period prior to the adoption of uniform policies, and the development of interim regional and interim national standards, carriers must provide advance notice to interested parties and allow a 45 day period for parties to submit comments on proposed modifications.

The provision would require the inclusion of a laboratory representative on carrier advisory committees. The representative would be selected by the committee from nominations submitted by national and local organizations representing independent clinical labs.

Section 4615. Updates for ambulatory surgical services

Current Law. Medicare pays for ambulatory surgical center (ASC) services on the basis of prospectively determined rates. These rates are updated annually by the CPI-U. OBRA 93 eliminated updates for ASCs for FY 1994 and FY 1995.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would set the updates for FY 1996 and FY 1997 at the percentage increase in the CPI-U. For FY 1998 through FY 2002, the update increase would be the increase in the CPI-U minus 2.0 percentage points. For and succeeding fiscal years, the update increase would be the increase in the CPI-U.

Section 4616. Reimbursement for drugs and biologicals

Current Law. Payment for drugs is based on the lower of the estimated acquisition cost or the national average wholesale price. Payment may also be made as part of a reasonable cost or prospective payment.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would specify that in any case where payment is not made on a cost or prospective payment basis, the payment would equal 95 percent of the average wholesale price, as specified by the Secretary.

Section 4617. Coverage of oral anti-nausea drugs under chemotherapeutic regimen

Current Law. Medicare provides coverage for certain oral cancer drugs. The Administration has specified that Medicare will pay for self-administrable oral or rectal versions of self-administered anti-emetic drugs when they are needed for the administration and absorption of primary Medicare covered oral anti-cancer chemotherapeutic agents when a high likelihood of vomiting exists.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would provide coverage, under specified conditions, for an oral drug used as an acute anti-emetic used as part of an anticancer chemotherapeutic regimen. It would have to be administered by or under the supervision of a physician for use immediately before, at the time of or immediately after the administration of the chemotherapeutic agent and used as a full replacement for the anti-emetic therapy which would otherwise be administered intravenously.

The provision would establish a per dose payment limit equal to 90 percent of the average per dose payment basis for the equivalent intravenous anti-emetics administered during the year, as computed based on the payment basis applied in 1996. The Secretary would be required to make adjustments in the coverage of, or payment, for the anti-nausea drugs so that an increase in aggregate payments per capita does not result.

Section 4618. Rural health clinics (RHCs)

Current Law. Medicare establishes payment limits for RHC services provided by independent RHCs. RHCs, among other requirements, must have appropriate procedures for utilization review of clinic services. The Secretary is required to waive the RHC requirement for certain staffing of health professionals if the clinic has been unable to hire a physician assistant, nurse practitioner, or certified nurse-midwife in the previous 9 years. The Secretary is prohibited from granting a waiver to a facility if the request for the waiver is made less than 6 months after the date of the expiration of previous waiver of the facility. RHCs are required to be located in a health professionals shortage area. For RHCs that are in operation and subsequently fail to meet the requirement of being located in a health professions shortage area, the Secretary would be required to continue to consider the facility to meet the health professions shortage area requirement.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would apply per-visit payment limits to all RHCs, other than such clinics in rural hospitals with fewer than 50 beds. The provision would require that RHCs have a quality assessment and performance improvement program, in addition to appropriate procedures for utilization review. The provision would amend the waiver on the staffing requirement, to provide a waiver if the facility has not yet been determined to meet the requirement of having a nurse practitioner, physician assistant, or a certified nurse-midwife available 50 percent of the time the clinic operates. The provision would require that shortage designations for RHCs be reviewed every 3 years. The provision would further amend the shortage area requirement by adding that RHCs must be located in area in which there are insufficient numbers of needed health care practitioners as determined by the Secretary. The provision would require that RHCs that are in operation and subsequently fail to meet the requirement of being located in a health professions shortage area, continue to be considered to meet the health professions shortage requirement, but only when, under criteria established by the Secretary in regulations, to be essential to the delivery of primary care services that would otherwise be unavailable in the geographic area served by the clinic. The Secretary would be required to issue final regulations implementing the grandfathered clinics that would be required to take effect no later than January 1 of the third calendar year beginning at least 1 month after enactment. The provision would take effect on the effective date of the regulations.

Section 4619. Increased Medicare reimbursement for nurse practitioners and clinical nurse specialists

Current Law. Separate payments are made for nurse practitioner (NP) services provided in collaboration with a physician, which are furnished in a nursing facility. Recognized payments equal 85 percent of the physician fee schedule amount. Nurse practitioners and clinical nurse specialists (CNSs) are paid directly for services provided in collaboration with a physician in a rural area. Payment equals 75 percent of the physician fee schedule amount for services furnished in a hospital and 85 percent of the fee schedule amount for other services.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would remove the restriction on settings. It would also provide that payment for NP and CNS services could only be made if no facility or other provider charges are paid in connection with the service. Payment would equal 80 percent of the lesser of either the actual charge or 85 percent of the fee schedule amount for the same service if provided by a physician. For assistant-at-surgery services, payment would equal 80 percent of the lesser of either the actual charge or 85 percent of the amount that would be recognized for a physician serving as an assistant at surgery. The provision would authorize direct payment for NP and CNS services.

The provision would clarify that a clinical nurse specialist is a registered nurse licensed to practice in the State and who holds a master's degree in a defined clinical area of nursing from an accredited educational institution.

Section 4620. Increased Medicare reimbursement for physician assistants

Current Law. Separate payments are made for physician assistant (PA) services when provided under the supervision of a physician: (1) in a hospital, skilled nursing or nursing facility, (2) as an assistant at surgery, or (3) in a rural area designated as a health professional shortage area.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would remove the restriction on settings. It would also provide that payment for PA services could only be made if no facility or other provider charges are paid in connection with the service. Payment would equal 80 percent of the lesser of either the actual charge or 85 percent of the fee schedule amount for the same service if provided by a physician. For assistant-at-surgery services, payment would equal 80 percent of the lesser of either the actual charge or 85 percent of the amount that would be recognized for a physician serving as an assistant at surgery. The provision would further provide that the PA could be in an independent contractor relationship with the physician. Employer status would be determined in accordance with State law.

Section 4621. Renal dialysis-related services

Current Law. Medicare covers persons who suffer from end-stage renal disease. Facilities providing dialysis services must meet certain requirements.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would require the Secretary to audit a sample of cost reports of renal dialysis providers for 1995 and for each third year thereafter. The Secretary would also be required to develop and implement by January 1, 1999, a method to measure and report on the quality of renal dialysis services provided under Medicare in order to reduce payments for inappropriate or low quality care.

Section 4622. Payment for cochlear implants as customized durable medical equipment

This provision would transfer cochlear implants from its current prosthetic fee schedule to that of a customized device in the durable medical equipment classification.

Chapter 3—Part B Premium

Section 4631. Part B premium

Current Law. When Medicare was established in 1965, the Part B monthly premium was intended to equal 50 percent of program costs. The remainder was to be financed by Federal general revenues, i.e., tax dollars. Legislation enacted in 1972 limited the annual percentage increase in the premium to the same percentage by which social security benefits were adjusted for cost-of-living increases (i.e., cost-of-living or COLA adjustments). As a result, revenues dropped to below 25 percent of program costs in the early 1980s. Since the early 1980s, Congress has regularly voted to set the premium equal to 25 percent of costs. Under current law, the 25 percent provision is extended through 1998; the COLA limitation would again apply in 1999.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would permanently set the Part B premium at 25 percent of program costs.

SUBTITLE H—PROVISIONS RELATING TO PARTS A AND B

Chapter 1—Provisions Relating to Medicare Secondary Payer

Section 4701. Permanent extension of certain secondary payer provisions

Current Law. Generally, Medicare is the primary payer, that is, it pays health claims first, with an individual's private or other public plan filling in some or all of the coverage gaps. In certain cases, the individual's other coverage pays first, while Medicare is the secondary payer. This is known as the Medicare secondary payer (MSP) program. The MSP provisions apply to group health plans for the working aged, large group health plans for the disabled, and employer health plans (regardless of size) for the end-stage renal disease (ESRD) population for 18 months. The MSP provisions for the disabled expire October 1, 1998. The MSP provisions for the ESRD population apply for 12 months, except the period is extended to 18 months for the February 1, 1991-October 1, 1998 period.

The law authorizes a data match program which is intended to identify potential secondary payer situations. Medicare beneficiaries are matched against data contained in the Social Security Administration and Internal Revenue Service files to identify cases where a working beneficiary (or working spouse) may have employer-based health insurance coverage.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would make permanent the provisions relating to the disabled and the data match program.

The provision would extend application of the MSP provisions for the ESRD population for 30 months. This would apply to items and services furnished on or after enactment with respect to periods beginning on or after the date that is 18 months prior to enactment.

Section 4702. Clarification of time and filing limitations

Current Law. In many cases where MSP recoveries are sought, claims have never been filed with the primary payer. Identification of potential recoveries under the data match process typically takes several years—considerably in excess of the period many health plans allow for claims filing. A 1994 appeals court decision held that HCFA could not recover overpayments without regard to an insurance plan's filing requirements.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would specify that the U.S. could seek to recover payments if the request for payments was submitted to the entity required or responsible to pay within 3 years from the date the item or service was furnished. This provision would apply notwithstanding any other claims filing time limits that may apply under an employer group health plan. The provision would apply to items and services furnished after 1990. The provision should not be construed as permitting any waiver of the 3-year requirement in the case of items and services furnished more than 3 years before enactment.

Section 4703. Permitting recovery against third party administrators

Current Law. A 1994 appeals court decision held that HCFA could not recover from third party administrators of self-insured plans.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would permit recovery from third party administrators of primary plans. However, recovery would not be permitted where the third-party administrator would not be able to recover the amount at issue from the employer or group health plan for whom it provides administrative services due to the insolvency or bankruptcy of the employer or plan.

The provision would clarify that the beneficiary is not liable in MSP recovery cases unless the benefits were paid directly to the beneficiary.

The provision would apply to services furnished on or after enactment.

Chapter 2—Home Health Services

Section 4711. Recapturing savings resulting from temporary freeze on payment increases from home health services

Current Law. Home health care agencies are currently reimbursed on the basis of reasonable costs, up to specified limits. Cost limits are determined separately for each type of covered home health service (skilled nursing care, physical therapy, speech pathology, occupational therapy, medical social services, and home health aide), and according to whether an agency is located in an urban or rural area. Cost limits, however, are applied to aggregate agency expenditures; that is, an aggregate cost limit is set for each agency that equals the limit for each type of service multiplied by the number of visits of each type provided by the agency. Limits for the individual services are set at 112 percent of the mean labor-related and nonlabor per visit costs for freestanding agencies. Cost limits are updated annually by applying a market basket index to base year data derived from home health agency cost reports. The labor-related portion of a service limit is adjusted by the current hospital wage index.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 (OBRA 93) required that there be no changes in home health cost limits (including no adjustments for changes in the wage index or other updates of data) for cost reporting periods beginning on or after July 1, 1994, and before July 1, 1996. The Secretary was also required, when granting or extending exceptions to cost limits, to limit any exception to the amount that would have been granted if there were no restriction on changes in the cost limits. OBRA 93 also repealed the requirement that additional payments be made to hospital-based home health agencies for costs attributable to excess overhead allocations, effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1993.

Explanation of Provision. In establishing home health limits for cost reporting periods beginning after September 30, 1997, the Secretary would be required to capture the savings stream resulting from the OBRA 93 freeze of home health limits by not allowing for the market basket updates to the limits that occurred during the cost reporting periods July 1, 1994, through June 30, 1996. In granting exemptions or exceptions to the cost limits, the Secretary would not consider the preceding provision for recapturing savings from the OBRA 93 freeze.

Section 4712. Interim payments for home health services

Current Law. Limits for individual home health services are set at 112 percent of the mean labor-related and nonlabor per visit costs for freestanding agencies (i.e., agencies not affiliated with hospitals), and are applied in the aggregate to all agency visits. The limits are effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after July 1 of a given year and ending June 30 of the following year.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would reduce per visit cost limits to 105 percent of the national median of labor-related and nonlabor costs for freestanding home health agencies, effective for cost-reporting periods beginning October 1, 1997 (in effect, also delaying the cycle for updating the limits).

For cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1997, home health agencies would be paid the lesser of: (1) their actual costs (i.e., allowable reasonable costs); (2) the per visit limits, reduced to 105 percent of the national median, applied in the aggregate; or (3) a new agency-specific per beneficiary annual limit calculated from 1994 reasonable costs (including non-routine medical supplies), based on a blend of 75 percent of agency-specific costs and 25 percent regional average costs, updated by the home health market basket, and applied to the agency's unduplicated census count of patients. For new providers and those providers without a 12-month cost reporting period ending in calendar year 1994, the per beneficiary limit would be equal to the median of these limits (or the Secretary's best estimates) applied to home health agencies. Home health agencies that have altered their corporate structure or name would not be considered new providers for these purposes. For beneficiaries using more than one home health agency, the per beneficiary limit would be prorated among the agencies.

The Secretary would be required to expand research on a prospective payment system for home health that ties prospective payments to a unit of service, including an intensive effort to develop a reliable case mix adjuster that explains a significant amount of variance in cost. The Secretary would be authorized to require all home health agencies to submit additional information that is necessary for the development of a reliable case-mix system, effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1997.

Section 4713. Clarification of part-time or intermittent nursing care

Current Law. Both Parts A and B of Medicare cover home health visits for persons who need skilled nursing care on an intermittent basis or physical therapy or speech therapy. Once beneficiaries qualify for the benefit, the program covers part-time or intermittent nursing care provided by or under the supervision of a registered nurse and part-time or intermittent home health aide services, among other services. Coverage guidelines issued by HCFA have defined part-time and intermittent.

Explanation of Provision. Effective for services furnished on or after October 1, 1997, the provision would include in Medicare statute definitions for part-time and intermittent skilled nursing and home health aide. For purposes of receiving skilled nursing and home health aide services, "part-time or intermittent" would mean skilled nursing and home health aide services furnished any number of day per week as long as they are furnished (combined) less than 8 hours each day and 28 or fewer hours each week (or, subject to review on a case-by-case basis as to the need for care, less than 8 hours each day and 35 or fewer hours per week). For purposes of qualifying for Medicare's home health benefit because of a need for intermittent skilled nursing care, "intermittent" would mean skilled nursing care that is either provided or needed on fewer than 7 days each week, or less than 8 hours of each day for periods of 21 days or less (with extensions in exceptional circumstances when the need for additional care is finite and predictable).

Section 4714. Study of definition of homebound

Current Law. In order to be eligible for home health care, a Medicare beneficiary must be confined to his or her home. The law specifies that this "homebound" requirement is met when the beneficiary has a condition that restricts the ability of the individual to leave home, except with the assistance of another individual or with the aid of a supportive device (such as crutches, a cane, a wheelchair, or a walker), or if the individual has a condition such that leaving his or her home is medically contraindicated. The law further specifies that while an individual does not have to be bedridden to be considered confined to home, the condition of the individual should be such that there exists a normal inability to leave home, that leaving home requires a considerable and taxing effort by the individual, and that absences from home are infrequent or of relatively short duration, or are attributable to the need to receive medical treatment.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would require the Secretary to conduct a study of the criteria that should be applied, and the method for applying the criteria, in determining whether an individual is considered homebound for purposes of qualifying for Medicare's home health benefit. Criteria would have to include the extent and circumstances under which a person may be absent from the home but nonetheless qualify. The Secretary would be required to submit to Congress a report on the study, together with specific recommendations, by October 1, 1998.

Section 4715. Payment based on location where home health service is furnished

Current Law. Some home health agencies are established with the home office in an urban area and branch offices in rural areas. Payment is based on the where the service is billed, in this case the urban area with its higher wage rate, even if the service had been delivered in a rural area.

Explanation of Provision. Effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1997, home health agencies would be required to submit claims on the basis of the location where a service is actually furnished.

Section 4716. Normative standards for home health claims denials

Current Law. As long as they remain eligible, home health users are entitled to unlimited number of visits.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would authorize the Secretary to establish normative guidelines for the frequency and duration of home health services. Payments would be denied for visits that exceed the normative standard. The provision would also authorize the Secretary to establish a process for notifying a physician when the number of home health visits furnished according to a prescription or certification of the physician significantly exceeds the threshold normative number of visits that would be covered for specific conditions or situations.

Section 4717. No home health benefits based solely on drawing blood

Current Law. In order to qualify for Medicare's home health benefit, a person must be homebound and be in need a intermittent skilled nursing care or physical or speech therapy.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would clarify that a person could not qualify for Medicare's home health benefit solely on the basis of needing skilled nursing care for venipuncture for the purpose of obtaining a blood sample.

Section 4718. Making Part B primary payor for certain home health services

(a) Making Part B primary payor for certain home health services

Current Law. Both Parts A and B of Medicare cover home health. Neither part of the program applies deductibles or coinsurance to covered visits, and beneficiaries are entitled to an unlimited number of visits as long as they meet eligibility criteria. Section 1833(d) of Medicare law prohibits payments to be made under Part B for covered services to the extent that individuals are also covered under Part A for the same services. As a result, the comparatively few persons who have no Part A coverage are the only beneficiaries for whom payments are made under Part B.

Explanation of Provision. Effective October 1, 1997, the provision would transfer from Part A to Part B home health visits that are not post-hospital home health services. Post-hospital home health service services would be defined as the first 100 visits furnished to an individual under a plan of treatment established when the individual is an inpatient of a hospital or rural primary care hospital for at least 3 consecutive days, or during a covered SNF stay, so long as services are initiated within 30 days after discharge from the institution.

The Secretary would be required to calculate the increase in the Part B premium attributable to the transfer of visits to Part B. This increase would be phased in between 1998 and 2003. For 1998, the Part B premium would be increased by one-seventh of the extra costs due to the transfer; for 1999, the Part B premium would be increased by two-sevenths of the extra costs; for 2000, three-sevenths; for 2001, four-sevenths; for 2002, five-sevenths; and for 2003, six-sevenths of the extra costs due to the transfer.

(b) Maintaining appeal rights for home health services

Current Law. Medicare beneficiaries have a right to a hearing before an administrative law judge for disputed claims of at least $500.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would lower the hearing threshold to $100 for home health services covered under Part B.

(c) Report

Current Law. No provision.

Explanation of Provision. The Secretary would be required to submit to Congress by October 1, 1999, a report on the impact on home health utilization and admissions to hospitals and skilled nursing facilities of covering only the first 100 post-hospital home health visits under Part A of Medicare. In addition, the Secretary would be required to re-examine and submit a report on this impact 1 year after the full implementation of the home health prospective payment system required under this bill.

Chapter 3—Baby Boom Generation Medicare Commission

Current Law. No provision.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would establish a commission to be known as the Bipartisan Commission on the Effect of the Baby Boom Generation on the Medicare Program, hereafter referred to as “the Commission.” It would be required to: (1) examine the financial impact on the Medicare program of the significant increase in the number of Medicare eligible individuals which will occur beginning approximately in 2010 and lasting for approximately 25 years, and (2) make specific recommendations to Congress with respect to a comprehensive approach to preserve the Medicare program for the period during which such individuals are eligible for Medicare. In making its recommendations, the Commission would be required to consider: (1) the amount and sources of Federal funds to finance Medicare, including innovative financing methods; (2) methods used by other nations to respond to comparable demographics; (3) modifying age-based eligibility to correspond to that under the OASDI program; and (4) trends in employment-related health care for retirees, including the use of medical savings accounts and similar financing devices; and (5) the role Medicare should play in addressing the needs of persons with chronic illness.

The Commission would be composed of 15 voting members, 6 appointed by the Majority Leader of the Senate in consultation with the Minority Leader, of whom no more than 4 are of the same party; 6 by the Speaker of the House, after consultation with the Minority Leader, of whom no more than 4 are in the same party; and 3 ex officio members of the Board of Trustees of the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and of the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund who are Cabinet-level officials. The provision spells out the appointment of a chair and vice chair, appointment of staff and consultants, compensation, the procedure for filling vacancies, and requirements relating to meetings and quorums. The Chairman, in consultation with the vice chairman, could appoint an advisory panel. Upon request of the Commission, the Comptroller General would be required to conduct such studies or investigations as the Commission determined were needed to carry out its duties. The Director of the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) would be required to provide the Commission with cost estimates, for which CBO would be compensated. The Commission would be authorized to detail to it employees of Federal agencies, and to obtain technical assistance and information from Federal agencies.

The Commission would be required to submit to Congress a report, no later than May 1, 1999, containing its findings and recommendations regarding how to protect and preserve the Medicare program in a financially solvent manner until 2030 (or, if later, throughout a period of projected solvency of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund). The report would be required to include detailed recommendations for legislative initiatives respecting how to accomplish this objective. The Commission would terminate 30 days after the date of submission of the mandated report. An amount of $1.5 million would be authorized to be appropriated; 60 percent would be payable from the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and 40 percent from the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund.

Chapter 4—Provisions Relating to Direct Graduate Medical Education

Section 4731. Limitation on payment based on number of residents and implementation of rolling average FTE count

Current Law. The direct costs of approved graduate medical education (GME) programs (such as the salaries of residents and faculty, and other costs related to medical education programs) are excluded from PPS and are paid on the basis of a formula that reflects Medicare's share of each hospital's per resident costs. Medicare's payment to each hospital equals the hospital's costs per full-time-equivalent (FTE) resident, times the weighted average number of FTE residents, times the percentage of inpatient days attributable to Medicare Part A beneficiaries. Each hospital's per FTE resident amount is calculated using data from the hospital's cost reporting period that began in FY 1984, increased by 1 percent for hospital cost reporting periods beginning July 1, 1985, and updated in subsequent cost reporting periods by the change in the CPI. OBRA 93 provided that the per resident amount would not be updated by the CPI for costs reporting periods during FY 1994 and FY 1995, except for primary care residents in obstetrics and gynecology. The number of FTE residents is weighted at 100 percent for residents in their initial residency period (i.e., the number of years of formal training necessary to satisfy specialty requirements for board eligibility). Residents in preventive care or geriatrics are allowed a period of up to 2 additional years in the initial residency training period. For residents not in their initial residency period, the weighing factor is 50 percent. On or after July 1, 1986, residents who are foreign medical graduates can only be counted as FTE residents if they have passed designated examinations.

Explanation of Provision. For cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1997, the provision would limit the total number of full-time equivalent (FTE) residents (excluding dental residents) for which Medicare would make payments to the number of FTE residents in training during the hospital's cost reporting period ending December 31, 1996. For the cost reporting period beginning on or after October 1, 1997, the total number of FTE equivalent residents counted for determining the hospital's direct GME payment would equal the average FTE counts for the cost reporting period and the preceding cost reporting period. For each subsequent cost reporting period, the total number of FTEs residents counted for determining the hospital's direct GME payment, would be equal to the average of the actual FTE counts for the cost reporting period and preceding two cost reporting periods. The provision would allow that, if a hospital's cost reporting period beginning on or after October 1, 1997, was not equal to 12 months, the Secretary would make appropriate modifications to ensure that the average FTE resident counts are based on the equivalent of full 12-month cost reporting periods.

Section 4732. Phased-in limitation on hospital overhead and supervisory physician component of direct medical education costs Current Law. Medicare's direct medical education costs for a cost reporting period includes an aggregate amount that is the product of the hospital's approved FTE, resident amount and the weighted average number of FTE residents in the hospitals approved medical residency training programs in that period.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would phase-in a limitation on hospital overhead and supervisory physician costs. For hospitals with overhead GME amounts in a base period that exceed the 75 percentile of the weighted overhead GME amount in such period for all hospitals, the GME amount made for periods beginning on or after October 1, 1997, would be reduced by the lesser of: (1) 20 percent of the amount by which the overhead GME amount exceeds the 75th percentile amount, or (2) 15 percent of the hospital's overhead GME amount otherwise determined without regard to this provision. The overhead GME amount for a period would be the product of the percentage of the hospital's per resident payment amount for the base period that was not attributable to salaries and fringe benefits, and the hospital specific per resident payment amount for the period involved. The base period would be defined as the cost reporting period beginning in FY 1984 or the period used to establish the hospital's per resident payment amount for hospitals that did not have approved residency training programs in FY 1984. The Secretary would be required to establish rules for the application of this provision in the case of a hospital that initiated medical residency training programs during or after the base cost reporting period.

Section 4733. Permitting payment to non-hospital providers

Current Law. No provision.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would require the Secretary to submit to Congress, no later than 18 months after enactment, a proposal for payment to qualified non-hospital providers for their direct costs of medical education, if those costs are incurred in the operation of a Medicare approved medical residency training program. The proposal would be required to specify the amounts, form, and manner in which such payments would be made, and the portion of the payments that would be made from each of the Medicare trust funds. The Secretary would be authorized to implement the proposal for residency years beginning no earlier than 6 months after the date the report is submitted. Qualified non-hospital providers would include Federally qualified health centers, rural health clinics, MedicarePlus organizations, and other providers the Secretary determined to be appropriate.

The provision would also require the Secretary to reduce the aggregate approved amount to the extent payment would be made to non-hospital providers for residents included in the hospital's count of FTE residents, and in the case of residents not included in the FTE count, the Secretary would be required to provide for such a reduction in aggregate approved amounts under this subsection to assure that the application of non-hospital providers does not result in any increase in expenditures than would have occurred if payments were not made to non-hospital providers.

Section 4734. Incentive payments under plans for voluntary reduction in number of residents

Current Law. No provision.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would establish a program to provide incentive payments to hospitals that developed plans for the voluntary reduction in the number of residents in a training program. For voluntary residency reduction plans for which an application was approved, the qualifying entity submitting the plan would be required to be paid an applicable hold harmless percentage equal to the sum of the amount by which (1) the amount of payment which would have been made under this subsection if there had been a 5 percent reduction in the number of FTE residents in the approved medical education training programs as of June 30, 1997, exceeded the amount of the payment which would be made taking into account the reduction in the number effected FTEs under the plan; and (2) the amount of the reduction in payment under Medicare's indirect medical education adjustment that was attributable to the reduction in the number of residents effected under the plan.

The provision would prohibit the Secretary from approving the application of a qualifying entity unless: (1) the application was submitted in a form and manner specified by not later than March 1, 2000; (2) the application provided for the operation of a plan for the reduction in the number of FTE residents in the approved medical residency training programs of the entity were consistent with those specified in the provision; (3) the entity elected whether such reduction occurs over a period of not longer than 5 residency training years, or 6 residency training years; (4) the Secretary determined that the application and the entity and the plan meet other requirements as the Secretary specifies in regulations.

The provision specifies that qualifying entities would include individual hospitals operating one or more approved medical residency training programs; two or more hospitals operating residency programs that apply as a single qualifying entity; or a qualifying consortium. In the case of an application by a qualifying entity consisting of two hospitals, the Secretary would be prohibited from approving the application unless the application represented that the qualifying entity either (1) would not reduce the number of FTE residents in primary care during the period of the plan, or (2) would not reduce the proportion of its residents in primary care (to the total number of residents) below such proportion as in effect during the period the residency reduction plan was in effect. In the case of an application from a consortia, the Secretary would be prohibited from approving the application unless the application represented that the qualifying entity would not reduce the proportion of residents in primary care (to total residents) below such proportion in effect during the period the residency reduction plan was in effect.

For individual hospital applicants, the number of FTE residents in all the approved medical residency training programs operated by or through the facility would be required to be reduced as follows: (1) if the base number of residents exceeded 750 residents, by a number equal to at least 20 percent of the base number; (2) if the base number of residents exceeded 500, but was less than 750 residents, by 150 residents; (3) if the base number of residents did not exceed 500 residents, by a number equal to at least 25 percent of the base number; (4) in the case of a qualifying entity that was a consortia, by a number equal to at least 20 percent of the base number. The reductions in the number of FTE residents in the approved medical residency programs operated through or by an entity would be below the base number of residents for the entity and would be fully effective no later than the 5th residency training year for entities electing a 5-year plan, or the 6th residency training year for entities making the election of a 6-year reduction plan.

The provision would require that entities provide assurance that in reducing the number of residents, entities maintained their primary care residents. Entities would be required to provide assurance that they would maintain the number of primary care residents if: (1) the base number of residents is less than 750; (2) the number of FTE residents in primary care included in the base year was at least 10 percent of the total number of residents; and (3) the entity represented in its application that there would be no reduction under the plan in the number of FTE residents in primary care. If the entity failed to comply with the requirement that the number of FTE residents in primary care were maintained, the entity would be subject to repayment of all amounts received under this program.

The base number of residents would be defined as the number of FTE residents in residency training program of the entity as of June 30, 1997. The “applicable hold harmless percentage” for entities electing a 5-year reduction plan would be 100 percent for the first and second residency training years in the reduction plan; 75 percent in the third year; 50 percent in the fourth year; and 25 percent in the fifth year. The “applicable hold harmless percentage” for entities electing a 6-year reduction plan would be 100 percent in the first residency training year of the plan; 95 percent in the second year of the plan; 85 percent in the third year; 70 percent in the fourth year; 50 percent in the fifth year; 25 percent in the sixth year. In addition, if payments were made under this program to an entity that increased the number of FTE residents above the number provided in the plan, the entity would then be liable for repayment to the Secretary of the total amount paid under the plan. The Secretary would also be required to establish rules regarding the counting of residents who are assigned to institutions that do not have medical residency training programs participating in a residency reduction plan.

The requirements of the residency reduction plan would not apply to any residency training demonstration project approved by HCFA as of May 27, 1997. The Secretary would be required to take necessary action to assure that in no case the amount of payments under the plan would exceed 95 percent of what payments would have been prior to the plan for direct GME payments under Medicare. As of May 27, 1997, the Secretary would be prohibited from approving any demonstration project that would provide for additional Medicare payments in connection with reductions in the number of residents in a training program for any residency training year beginning before July 1, 2006. The Secretary would be authorized to promulgate regulations, that take effect on an interim basis, after notice and pending opportunity for public comment, by no later than 6 months after the date of enactment.

Section 4735. Demonstration project on use of consortia

Current Law. No provision.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would require the Secretary to establish a demonstration project under which, instead of making direct GME payments to teaching hospitals, the Secretary would make payments to each consortium that met the requirements of the demonstration project. A qualifying consortia would be required to be in compliance with the following: (1) the consortium would consist of an approved medical residency training program in a teaching hospital and one or more of the following entities: a school of allopathic or osteopathic medicine, another teaching hospital, another approved medical residency training program, a Federally qualified health center, a medical group practice, a managed care entity, an entity providing outpatient services, or an entity determined to be appropriate by the Secretary; (2) the members of the consortium would have agreed to participate in the programs of graduate medical education that are operated by entities in the consortium; (3) with respect to receipt by the consortium of direct GME payments, the members of the consortium would agree on a method for allocating the payments among the members; and (4) the consortium would meet additional requirements established by the Secretary. The total payments to a qualifying consortium for a fiscal year would not be permitted to exceed the amount that would have been paid under the direct GME payment to teaching hospitals in the consortium. The payments would be required to be made in such proportion from each of the Medicare trust funds as the Secretary specifies.

Section 4736. Recommendations on long-term payment policies regarding financing teaching hospitals and graduate medical education

Current Law. No provision.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would require the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission (established by the bill) to examine and develop recommendations on whether and to what extent Medicare payment policies and other Federal policies regarding teaching hospitals and graduate medical education should be reformed. The Commission's recommendations would be required to include each of the following: (1) the financing of graduate medical education, including consideration of alternative broad-based sources of funding for such education and models for the distribution of payments under any all-payer financing mechanism; (2) the financing of teaching hospitals, including consideration of the difficulties encountered by such hospitals as competition among health care entities increases, including consideration of the effects on teaching hospitals of the method of financing used for the MedicarePlus program under Part C of Medicare; (3) possible methodologies for making payments for graduated medical education and the selection of entities to receive such payments, including consideration of matters as (A) issues regarding children's hospitals and approved medical residency training programs in pediatrics, and (B) whether and to what extent payments were being made (or should be made) for training in the various nonphysician health professions; (4) Federal policies regarding international graduates; (5) the dependence of schools of medicine on service-generated income; (6) whether and to what extent the needs of the U.S. regarding the supply of physicians, in the aggregate and in different specialties, would change during the 10-year period beginning on October 1, 1997, and whether and to what extent any such changes would have significant financial effects of teaching hospitals; (7) methods for promoting an appropriate number, mix, and geographical distribution of health professionals; and (8) the treatment of dual training programs in primary care fields.

The Commission would be required to consult with the Council on Graduate Medical Education and individuals with expertise in the area of graduate medical education, including (1) deans from allopathic and osteopathic schools of medicine; (2) chief executive officers (or their equivalent) from academic health centers, integrated health care systems, approved medical residency training programs, and teaching hospitals that sponsor approved medical residency training programs; (3) chairs of departments or divisions from allopathic and osteopathic schools of medicine, schools of dentistry, and approved medical residency training programs in oral surgery; (4) individuals with leadership experience from each of the fields of advanced practice nursing, physician assistants, and podiatric medicine; (5) individuals with substantial experience in the study of issues regarding the composition of the U.S. health care workforce; and (6) individuals with expertise on the financing of health care.

This provision applies to residents enrolled in a combined medical residency training program that includes an obstetrics and gynecology program so long as the program with which the obstetrics and gynecology program is combined is a primary care training program.

Chapter 5—Other Provisions

Current Law. No provision.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would create a new program, the Centers of Excellence, under which the Secretary would be required to use a competitive process to contract with specific hospitals or other entities for furnishing services related to surgical procedures, and for furnishing services (unrelated to surgical procedures) to hospital inpatients that the Secretary determines to be appropriate. The services could include any services covered by Medicare that the Secretary determined were appropriate, including post-hospital services. The Secretary would be required to contract with entities that meet quality standards established by the Secretary, and contracting entities would be required to implement a quality improvement plan approved by the Secretary.

Payment for services provided under the program would be made on the basis of a negotiated all-inclusive rate. The amount of payment made for services covered under a contract would be required to be equal to or less than the aggregate amount of payments that would have been made otherwise for these same services. The contract period would be required to be 3 years, and could be renewed as long as the entity continued to meet quality and other contractual standards. The Secretary would be prohibited from considering price as a factor in selecting hospitals or other entities to participate in the program, except to ensure that payments would be equal to or less than would have been otherwise. Entities under these contracts would be permitted to furnish additional services (at no cost to a Medicare beneficiary) or waive costsharing, subject to approval by the Secretary. The Secretary would be required to limit the number of centers in a geographic area to the number needed to meet project demand for contracted services.

Section 4742. Medicare Part B special enrollment period and waiver of Part B late enrollment penalty and Medigap special open enrollment period for certain military retirees and dependents

Current Law. Persons generally enroll in Part B when they turn 65. Persons who delay enrollment in the program after their initial enrollment period are subject to a premium penalty. This penalty is a surcharge equal to 10 percent of the premium amount for each 12 months of delayed enrollment. There is no upper limit on the amount of penalty that may apply. Further, the penalty continues to apply for the entire time the individual is enrolled in Part B.

Some persons declined Part B coverage because they thought they would be able to get health care coverage at a nearby military base; many of these bases subsequently closed.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would waive the delayed enrollment penalty for certain persons who enroll during a special 6-month enrollment period which begins with the first month that begins at least 45 days after enactment. An individual covered under this provision is one: (1) who, on the date of enactment is at least 65 and eligible to enroll in Part B; (2) who, at the time the individual first met the enrollment requirements was a "covered beneficiary" under the military medical and dental care program. Covered beneficiary as defined in Section 1072(5) of Title 10 of the U.S. Code excludes an active duty beneficiary. Part B coverage would begin the month after enrollment.

The provision would also guarantee issuance of a Medigap type "A", "B", "C", or "F" policy to an individual who enrolls with a Medigap plan during the same 6-month enrollment period.

Section 4743. Competitive bidding

Current Law. Medicare does not use competitive bidding for the selection of providers authorized to provide covered services to beneficiaries.

Explanation of Provision. The provision would require the Secretary, within 1 year of enactment, to establish and operate, over a 2-year period, demonstration projects in two geographic areas selected by the Secretary. Under the demonstration, the amount of payment for selected items or services furnished in the region would be the amount determined pursuant to a competitive bidding process. The process would have to meet the requirements imposed by the Secretary to ensure cost-effective delivery to beneficiaries of items and services of high quality.
