LEGISLATIVE ACTIVITIES REPORT

MARCH 20, 1997.—Ordered to be printed
—————

Mr. HELMS, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, submitted the following

REPORT

INTRODUCTION BY SENATOR JESSE HELMS, CHAIRMAN, SENATE COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN RELATIONS

This review and report of activities of the Committee on Foreign Relations during the 104th Congress is submitted in response to the requirements of Rule XXVI 8(b) of the Standing Rules of the Senate, which stipulate that all standing committees report to the Senate, not later than March 31 of each odd-numbered year, on its legislative activities during the preceding Congress.

The Committee on Foreign Relations engaged in a full schedule of activities during the 104th Congress, including legislation, treaties and nominations, oversight hearings, meetings and discussions with foreign visitors, and general oversight of U.S. foreign policy decisions.

The Committee undertook four major legislative initiatives during the 104th Congress that were reported favorably by the Committee to the Senate: (1) legislation to reorganize and revitalize the foreign affairs agencies, (2) legislation to authorize foreign assistance programs, (3) legislation to strengthen the U.S. embargo against Cuba, and (4) legislation to improve certain defense and security assistance provisions in the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 and the Arms Export Control Act.

Although the President vetoed legislation to reorganize and revitalize the foreign affairs agencies, that issue continues to be a priority for the Committee's legislative agenda in the 105th Congress. The Congress approved, and the President signed into law, the LIBERTAD Act in March 1996, making it illegal under U.S. law to traffic in property stolen from U.S. citizens. The Congress also approved, and the President signed into law, H.R. 3121, regarding defense and security assistance.

The Full Committee considered 39 treaties, 135 nominees, 1,485 foreign service officer promotions, 13 bills and joint resolutions, and 16 concurrent and Senate resolutions during the 104th Congress. Nomination hearings included consideration of seven State Department Assistant Secretaries, 88 country ambassadors, and the entire panel of the newly created Broadcasting Board of Governors. The Committee also formally received 63 heads of State.

Treaties considered in the 104th Congress included bilateral tax and investment treaties important to protecting and furthering U.S. business interests abroad. Also, the Committee approved 14 treaties strengthening U.S. law enforcement through extradition of criminals and access to criminal evidence in other countries. One notable example of the impact of these treaties was the ratification of the U.S. extradition treaty with Jordan, which enabled the U.S. to take into custody a suspect in the World Trade Center bombing. Extensive hearings were held to consider the START II Treaty and the Convention on Chemical Weapons. The Committee also considered and the Senate ratified three multilateral treaties dealing with land mines, the rubber industry, and international fisheries laws.

Oversight hearings were numerous and productive. Some of the highlights included around the world briefings with Secretary of State Warren Christopher, numerous hearings regarding U.S. policy towards the former Yugoslavia, the Dayton Peace Accords, and the role of NATO in Bosnia; U.S. dependence on foreign oil; illegal trade of human body parts in China, and World Bank projects in China; a critical report by the Agency for International Development's Inspector General regarding programs in South Africa; U.S. drug policy towards Mexico; a look at U.S. goals and objectives in foreign policy with former Secretary of State Kissinger; and U.S. policy regarding the ABM Treaty.

The Committee and its subcommittees conducted 178 meetings. This could not have been undertaken without tremendous efforts by Senators chairing the subcommittees. I thank my colleagues for their contributions to the Committee during the 104th Congress. The Committee was productive because of their efforts and the work of our respective staffs.

I especially thank the distinguished ranking member, the Honorable Claiborne Pell, whose retirement from the Senate at the end of the 104th Congress concluded Senator Pell's 36 years of dedicated service. Also, two other distinguished members of the Committee retired in 1996: The Honorable Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas and the Honorable Hank Brown of Colorado, both of whom were actively engaged in the Committee's work and will be missed greatly.

The table that follows is a tabulation of the legislation in this report.
